—The remarkable popularity achieved
by the new musical composition of Th.

Their Handsome New Store.

Visitors to Waltham should not fail to see the improvements at the Central Dry Goods Company's stores, which have been completely made over the last few months.

Partitions have been taken out, the walls and ceilings have been newly finished and the new mammoth store has a metropolitan appearance which would not suffer in comparison with any store in Boston.

The Central aims to supply its customers with goods of good quality, that will prove satisfactory to the purchasers and make them desire to come again, and they give every time full value for the money. They aim to make every chance customer a permanent one, and that they succeed is shown by the continued growth of the store and the demands for more and better accommodations. They claim now to have the most up-to-date store in any suburban city, and it is usual to hear patrons say that they can get more satisfactory bargains there than they can by running all over Boston.

They are now celebrating the completion of the recent improvements by opening the finest stock of spring goods they have ever displayed, bought with care and certain to attract the attention of careful shoppers.

The men's furnishing goods, men's and boy's clothing, makes a department by itself, and they invite special attention to their ladies' furnishing goods, ladies' suits, waists, bicycle suits, dress goods, linings, laces, hamburgs, ribbons, etc., etc., and their very complete stock of housekeeping necessities.

Newton High School Alumni Association.

The second annual meeting and dance of the Association to be held next Monday evening at the High School promises to be as successful as last year's affair.

The Alumni show much interest in the affairs of the High School and the formation of this Association has done much to keep up the school spirit and to renew many acquaintances made during school years.

The Executive Committee are very anxious to enlarge the membership this year, that the good work already accomplished may be continued, so that every Alumnus, whether a graduate or not, is urged to join.

One dollar sent to the Treasurer gives one a life membership without further assessment, so that members will always be in touch with the work of the School and its organization so important to its future welfare.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

APPOINTMENT OF CITY ENGINEER IRVING T. FARNHAM PROVED NO END OF TALK AT MONDAY EVENING'S MEETING OF BOARD OF ALDERMEN—MAYOR WAS FINALLY SUSTAINED HOWEVER—ATTEMPT TO REDUCE SALARY OF CITY ENGINEER DEFEATED—SEVERAL OTHER MATTERS.

Every promise and every anticipation of interest and excitement at Monday evening's meeting of the board of aldermen was fulfilled and realized. Of course the appointment of a city engineer was the feature of the evening. The mayor's nomination was the whole show. It embodied the three rings, the menagerie, the hippodrome and the side show.

And not unlike a circus was the consideration of the city engineer's appointment. At any rate it was full of interesting. Spectators were lacking and there was an absence of lemonade and saw-dust. Some of the debate was as dry as the latter circus adjunct, however, but fortunately there was no lack of ice-water. As a matter of fact the page was kept busy handling the pitcher and glasses. Noisily he stole from one desk to another and supplied the thirsty orators. They were too busy to thank him, and eagerly gulped it down.

President Bailey was in the chair promptly at 7.45 and was not a second tardy in calling the board to order. The first communication came from the committee on awards for which was in substance. The prizes for the Eliot essays for 1899 have been awarded as follows: The essays were divided into two classes, Class A, length 1,000 words open to those from 10 to 18 years; 1st prize $3, 2nd prize $2. Class B, length 2,000 words open to those from 15 to 20 years of age, 1st prize $10 and 2nd prize $5.

In Class B the 1st prize was awarded to Alfred B. Kershaw, 35 Cross street, West Newton, a senior at the high school and the 2nd to Miss Nina Crandell, formerly of the Williams school at Abundale, but now of the 4th grade of the high school.

In Class A the 1st prize was awarded Ethel L. Hall of 127 Winchester street, Newton Highlands, a junior in the Newton High school.

Noticing the absence in the above report of any reference to a class A 2nd prize, Col. Kingsbury wrote to superintendent Field that the matter might be understood and explained at Monday evening's meeting of the aldermen. The following reply was received from Mr. Field:

Dear Sir:—In reply to yours of March 27 would say there was no award made of a 2nd prize in Class A as the committee did not think there were any essays which deserved the prize. It was evident that the conditions had not been fully understood by all competitors, and therefore the committee was compelled to classify the essays into A and B by the length rather than the age limit followed last year.

Yours truly,
ALBERT B. FIFIELD.

All these interesting communications were read and placed on file.

A communication was received from Buildings Commissioner Elder notifying the board that C. C. Butler had petitioned for permission to erect a stone and wooden building on his land adjoining the Woodland Park Hotel, said building to be used as a heating plant. The communication was referred to the license committee.

The republican ward and city committee requested the use of ward rooms in which to hold caucuses on April 18 for the choice of delegates to the national convention. The request was granted.

C. F. Johnson's petition for a sewer on Erie avenue was referred to the sewer committee. The same petitioner's request for a street light was referred to the same committee.

C. A. Miner and F. A. Day were appointed auditors.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The finance committee reported recommending appropriation of $93,500 for city expenses during April, 1900; recommending appropriation of $18 for prizes from Eliot Memorial Fund; recommending rescinding of bond issue of $25,000 for Bigelow school and appropriating $25,000 therefrom from city treasury. Reports received. The journal committee reported recommending approval of records to date. Report received.

The license committee reported recommending granting leave to withdraw on three junk petitions and two common victualer petitions. One of the latter was that of D. Saleme of Ward 7. Saleme's petition was the one over which there was no end of discussion in last year's board. Part of the ground was gone over by some of last year's board members on Monday evening. It seemed to amuse the new members. In the end the committee's recommendation was sustained.

The license committee recommended granting licenses for an amusement park to the Norambeca park company and of a permit to N. J. Holmes, that he might erect a wooden building on Curve street, Ward 3. These recommendations were adopted. The following licenses were also granted, inholder, C. C. Butler, Ward 4.

Intelligence classes—Ellen A. O'Neill, Ward 3; George Lane, Ward 7; Newton Centre Women's Club, Ward 6; Mrs. J. C. Jones, Ward 2; Mrs. M. A. Johnson, Ward 3. Hackney carriages—Randall Ross, Ward 6; George W. Bush, Ward 7; Patrick Cruise, Ward 3; F. T. Meloy, Ward 4; Fitzgerald Bros., Ward 4; Henry A. Spear, Ward 5; C. C. Butler, Ward 4; John Monaghan, Ward 3; Henry C. Daniels, Ward 7; Henry F. Cate, Ward 3; Robert Weir, Ward 6; Margaret Brady, Ward 2; E. Whalen, Ward 1; C. C. Tinkham, Ward 4; F. L. Richardson & Co., Ward 6.

NO STREET MUSIC UNTIL MAY 1.

There will be no street music until May 1. There were 14 permits granted Monday evening and an amended ordinance governing itinerant musicians was also expected. Under the provisions of the amended ordinance music cannot begin until 9 a. m. and must cease before 10 p. m. Of course there will be no music on Sunday. Each holder of a license will have to pay a fee of 50 cents. The licenses will not become operative until May 1, from which it is clear we will not hear street music for a month.

OTHER COMMITTEE REPORTS.

In addition to the ordinance committee's report on the street music problem these reports were received from the committee on sewers: Recommending passage of order rescinding sewer assessment of $58.74 upon estate of West Newton English and Classical school; from the street light committee recommending granting New England Telephone & Telegraph Company attachments on Glen avenue and Langley road, Ward 6; Pleasant street, Ward 6; Waban avenue, Ward 5; Marlboro street, Ward 7; recommending granting Newton & Watertown Gas Light Company pole locations on Ripley street, Ward 6.

ORDERS.

These orders were adopted: Appropriating $93,500 for April 1900; appropriating $18 for prizes under Eliot Memorial Fund; rescinding issue of bonds for Bigelow school and appropriating $25,000 therefrom from city treasury; rescinding sewer assessment of $58.74 upon estate of West Newton English and Classical school; granting New England Telephone and Telegraph Co. attachments on Glen avenue, Ward 6; Langley road, Ward 6; Pleasant street, Ward 6; Waban avenue, Ward 5; Marlboro street, Ward 7; granting Newton & Watertown Gas Light Co. pole locations on Ripley street, Ward 6; amending standing regulations of board of aldermen relating to street musicians.

THE FARNHAM INCIDENT.

The confirmation of Mayor Wilson's appointment of Irving T. Farnham as city engineer was assigned for this meeting just as it has been for many previous meetings. Strangely enough it was disposed of last Monday evening.

The debate was opened by Alderman Dana. In many respects what I have to say is a painful duty. I believe it to be my duty. As the issue has to be met I must meet it as best I can. I would like to vote to confirm Mr. Farnham, but I do not believe it would be in the best interests of the public. I think it against public interest. I think it in defiance of it. I think the committee to whom this matter was first referred would have preferred to have Mr. Childs. The majority thought they could do nothing but consider Mr. Farnham's name. This position maintained by the majority of the committee I do not believe to be tenable. It is surprising that the laymen not the lawyers took it.

At this point Mr. Dana pointed out what in his mind was the proper stand to take in the matter. As an alderman he felt he should advise the mayor. To support this theory he quoted Daniel Webster, Story and Eaton. His dissertation consumed some time.

Continuing, I believe this appointment if carried through will show the power of a trust. The right of the board to adjust this matter is a right to be exercised not abused. I believe a gross injustice has been done. I believe Mr. Childs is the best public servant the city has. I do not know any public servant that is his superior. Every one thought Mr. Childs would be appointed. After his services I believe he entitled to it. It is not appointed to Mr. Childs. I believe it will be a blow to good government.

Alderman Lyman tried to raise a point of order, explaining that Alderman Dana should not bring in the name of any other candidate for the position of city engineer. Alderman Bailey ruled the point not well taken and permitted Mr. Dana to read several letters of recommendation in support of Mr. Childs. Among the letters were some written by George F. Swain, George S. Rice, Dwight Porter and Judge Bishop. Mr. Dana held in his hand but refrained from reading at least 10 others.

Mr. Dana continued. In reference to Mayor Wilson's nominee what is there to say? There is this. He was the first to be discharged. Certainly it was not on the grounds of economy. Mayor Wilson said, and I believe him, that Mr. Woods' judgment entirely governed the matter. How then, after his discharge, did Mayor Wilson become acquainted with Mr. Farnham? I know his attention was called to the young man by the street commissioner. Mr. Farnham is Mr. Childs' junior. Mr. Farnham has not had Mr. Childs' experience. Mr. Farnham was brought here to block off Mr. Childs. I am told that if Mr. Farnham's nomination is not put through the city is a candidate forthcoming from Providence, R. I.

I think an injustice has been done Mr. Childs. He has received unfair treatment for three years. For three years I have fought his battles. Mr. Dana said at this point that there had been friction between Street Commissioner Ross and Mr. Childs over several petty matters. The street commissioner he pointed out was a man to fight his battles. Men who are always in a hurry, and most men are, want a soap for the toilet that will lather quickly and freely in hot or cold water. Other soaps than Ivory may have this quality, but will likely contain alkali, which is injurious to the skin. Ivory Soap is made of pure vegetable oils, no alkali, produces a white, foamy lather, that cleanses thoroughly and rinses easily and quickly. Money cannot buy a better soap for the toilet.

was a $1500 man, then a $2,000, then $2,500 and then $3,000.

We may do as we please with our own money, but not as we please with the city's money. The mayor had no right to engage or nominate a $3,000 man and to have a man of these tender years dictate his price is to establish a precedent, which cannot fail to result disastrously.

Mr. Bailey eulogized the heads of the various departments. The city clerk, the chief of police, the chief of the fire department especially were greatly underpaid. He lamented this fact and pointed out the many duties incumbent upon the officials, which made them rich in valuable experience. He thought the salary too much.

Mr. Dana moved at this point to have the matter postponed indefinitely. The motion was lost with 16 yeas against 3 yeas.

Hen Thief Punished.

In the capture and punishment of John J. Mead, a self-confessed hen thief, it is probable there will be a suppression of thefts of this character which have occurred for months with uncommon and alarming frequency. Complaint after complaint has been entered concerning the robbing of hen-roosts, and not until Monday were the police successful in securing an arrest.

Mead's conviction does not mean that the police have caught the man responsible for all the thefts, but it will probably prevent any more hen thefts inasmuch as any thieves that may now be caught will be dealt with even greater severity.

Officers in different sections of the city have been on the alert and displayed decided determination to catch the thieves. The matter has also been brought to the attention of Judge Kennedy.

For several weeks the residents in the vicinity of Beacon and Walnut streets, Newton Highlands, have been the victims of a hen thief, who has been making nightly raids. Last Monday evening a disturbance in a large henhouse off Beacon street, gave warning to those residing in the vicinity, and several men rushed to the place.

They were not quick enough, however, to catch a man who suddenly dashed out the door of the henhouse and ran down the street. Officer Groth happened along about that time, and, seeing the man, who had a hen under each arm, running down the street, promptly held him up. The man proved to be John J. Mead of Newton Centre, and as he could give no satisfactory explanation as to how he came by the hens, he was placed under arrest. Later his house at 1030 Beacon street was searched and in the cellar was found a crate containing eight hens. These have since been identified as the property of Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. Kelley, residents of Beacon street, whose hen-roosts had been recently plundered.

In court, Tuesday morning, Mead was arraigned on two counts of larceny before Judge Kennedy. He was found guilty on each and was sentenced to ten months in the house of correction on the first, and seven months on the second.

Accepts Call to Newton Centre.

The First Baptist church of Newton Centre is to be congratulated on having secured Rev. Everett D. Burr for its pastor.

At a meeting of the prudential committee of the Ruggles Street Baptist church, Roxbury, Monday evening, the resignation of the pastor, the Rev. Everett D. Burr, was discussed, and it was voted after much reluctance to accept it, and to request the society at a meeting to be held next Monday evening to do the same.

The Rev. Mr. Burr presided at the meeting, and he announced his decision as final. The resignation will take effect Easter Sunday, when the pastor will preach his farewell sermon. He will accept the call extended to him by the Newton Centre Baptist church, and will begin his labors there May 1. Mr. Burr will publicly announce the foregoing to his congregation next Sunday.

Millions Given Away.

It is certainly gratifying to the public to know of one concern which is not afraid to give away its goods. The proprietors of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, have given away over ten million trial bottles and have the satisfaction of knowing it has cured thousands of hopeless Asthma, Bronchitis, and Gripes. All throat, Chest and Lung diseases are surely cured by it. Call on all Druggists and get a free trial bottle. Regular size 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

Eliot Church's New Vesper Services.

Many of our musical people have been attracted Sunday afternoons by the Arlington Street church's 4 o'clock vesper services into Boston. They have been repaid for their waste of two hours of Sunday's time in the electric by the magnificent music rendered by probably the finest quartet of soloists in New England.

Our own Eliot church seems just this need for our city and has recently held instead of their evening service, three Sunday afternoon vesper services at 4:30 o'clock during Lent. Last Sunday afternoon was a full musical service at which Dubois' great masterpiece "The Seven Last Words of Christ," was given by its large chorus choir and fine quartet. The great audience composed of our best music loving people was not disappointed either with the quality of the music or the manner in which it was rendered, and Newton has its share of fastidiously musical people. This great work is deeply religious and dramatic. These features were evident from the very introductory work by the organ through to the last solo, "If I Finished," and the closing chorus, "Christ, we all Adore Thee! and Praise Thee Forever!"

The opening chorus "He is death guilty! take him! take him! let us crucify him!" was so intensely dramatic that its auditors could easily under its spell imagine themselves surrounded with the frenzied populace, calling for the crucifixion of their Messiah. Felix Mendelssohn's dramatic chorus in Elijah of Baals Priests, "Baal we cry to thee! Baal we cry to thee! Hear, Hear and Answer Us!" is not more realistic nor intense. The work was full of rich religious harmony and melody, and the choir and soloists, "Christ, we all Adore Thee! and Praise Thee Forever!"

contagious cases at the Newton Hospital is a serious matter and something will have to be done in the immediate future.The present buildings were put up by the city some ten years ago, on land owned by the Hospital, and at that time it was the custom to put up the cheapest kind of building for such cases, so that they might be destroyed after a certain time, in order to disinfect them properly. The buildings have been used until the present time,
but they are now very much out of repair,
and it would not pay to repair them as they are entirely out of date. The great improvements in the science of disinfection and sanitary building has brought about a change in policy and now cities and hospitals are building substantial structures for contagious cases, so constructed that they can be easily disinfected.They are now built entirely of stone or brick with artificial stone floors, and all the finishings of such a nature that they can be easily scrubbed and purified. The first cost is of course greater but as they are built to last it is much cheaper in the end. The present buildings are also entirely inadequate to the demands upon them. There are accommodations for only three nurses and the past year twelve have often been compelled to share these accommodations. There has been also a great overcrowding of patients, and at times three and four times as many patients as the buildings were intended for have been crowded into these rooms. During the past winter although there has been no epidemic, yet without these contagious wards there would probably have been one as there have been many contagious cases of various kinds and if these had been cared for in private houses there would have been great danger of infection,
and the red cards of the board of health would have been posted all about the city.With these arguments for new and larger buildings, the city officials are said to recognize their necessity of doing something before another winter and there have been some discussions of plans. It is said that the cost of the new buildings necessary would be between twenty and thirty thousand dollars, but they would be permanent structures. If we should have the same amount of sickness another winter the present city government would be severely censured for not having taken the necessary steps to provide what was needed. It would cost a good deal to repair the present buildings so that they would be fit to use another winter and it would be money thrown away also. Those who have studied the question hope that some action will be taken at once.MAYOR WILSON'S appointment of Mr.
Farnham to be city engineer went through on Monday night after being held up for several months. It was a remarkable proceeding, certainly, and it is difficult to understand the position of the opponents of the Mayor. The charter gives him full power to appoint, and the aldermen have nothing to do with the selection of a candidate, they only consider his fitness for the position. There was no question of Mr.
Farnham's fitness, as he was conceded to be a thoroughly well qualified, but some of the aldermen thought Mr. Childs should be appointed, and they have conducted a campaign for some months to prevent the cuted the orders of my superiors."The man who could say that has evidently none of the characteristics of a Moses, and the fear that he would take McLean as his superior, instead of Hanna, will not help him. What the country needs is a president with some deep convictions, and the qualities of independent leadership, a man who will be true to the guiding star of high principle, and not one who will shift about with every wind. Thomas B. Reed would be accepted as such a leader, or General Miles, but they have qualities which Dewey does not seem to possess.So far Dewey's announcement of his candidacy has aroused chiefly a feeling of pity for the hero of Manila.THERE was a good deal of kicking over the party traces in the Senate's discussion of the Porto Rican bill. Senator Dewey even went so far as to declare that the foreigner did not pay the tariff tax, which is true of course, but just before election that is a bit of humbug that protection speakers are fond of getting off upon the credulous public. But Senator Dewey's clients are in the railroad business so he is perhaps to be excused. Senator Wellington of Maryland was one of the Republicans who came out strongly against the bill and said, "the legislative monstrosity now before us transgresses every principle of national honor, patriotism, good faith and justice." Senator Clay of Georgia created a laugh by saying that the President had advocated free trade in a message, and there was no official record of his having changed his mind. Any reference to the shifting character of the President's mind is always sure to be greeted with laughter in Congress.HIGH SCHOOL pupils may now be carried for half fare, on their way to and from school, on the street railways of the state, as the bill providing for it was signed by the governor on Wednesday. The bill was introduced by Representative Sam Roads and was very shrewdly managed and pushed through both houses. Up to this time in Newton grammar school pupils were alone carried for half rates, and the High school pupils had to pay full fares.Like many other good things the agitation for this reduction was started in Newton,

and it was a very shrewd move to get Mr.
Roads to take charge of it as he has a winning way with him in such matters.Parents will make quite a saving by this reduction, as it is estimated that some four hundred of our High school pupils use the cars more or less.The Waltham aldermen gave a hearing to the new Waltham street railway company, Monday evening. Among those who favored granting the new company a location were several residents of Crafts street in Newton, represented by M. S. Williams.The hearing was quite a lively one, as there were a number of remonstrants, representing the Newton Street Railway Company, and also President Parker of the Boston & Lexington street railway. Col. Stearns of Waltham claimed that the Newton Street Railway should have the preference as there were many Waltham citizens interested in that road. No decision was reached and evidently work on building the new road will not begin this week.SOME of the Boston papers think that it is real wicked for the legislature to make any investigation into Mr. Whitney's gas and coke company. The Whitney benefactions, as the Springfield Republican calls them, have been very generous to the Boston papers, and they are for Mr. Whitney and his interests every time, without regard to the interests of the gas consumers.An analysis of Senator Hanna's ship subsidy bill shows that the Standard Oil fleet and the American line, owned by Standard Oil magnates, will receive 80 per cent of the bounty, and the Pacific lines will get most of the remainder. As Mr.
Hanna is not in politics for his health he must be expecting a large campaign contribution from Mr. Rockefeller.CIVIL service reform has scored a victory in the legislature as all the petitioners attacking the present law have been given leave to withdraw. This was in spite of the appearance of Jesse Gove, or perhaps it was because of it.Nominations Filed For Delegates.
Under the provisions of the Boston Can-cuses Act, adopted last October by Newton Republicans, Charles E. Hatfield, secretary of the Republican Ward and City Committee, received nominations for delegates to the state and congressional conventions.The caucuses will be held in each of the seven wards of this city on Wednesday evening, April 18. The Massachusetts State convention for the choice of delegates to the national republican convention will be held at Boston, April 26. The date for the 11th congressional district convention has not yet been decided upon.It is in the 11th congressional district convention that Newton republicans are specially interested, inasmuch as Mr. Sam'l
L. Powers is mentioned as a probable nominee. It is safe to say that Newton would give him a strong support.Yesterday afternoon Mr. Hatfield showed his familiarity with the Boston Cancaus Act
but in Wards 1 and 3 there was a blunder in the filing. In both wards state delegates were omitted. The vacancies in the ballot will be filled by the ward and city committee before April 18.Following were the names filed this yesterday: Ward 1, congressional—John T.
Langford, E. O. Childs, John T. Leide;

The lives of half a dozen people were endangered Wednesday afternoon, by the frantic actions of a horse in one of the most sensational and peculiar runaway accidents that has occurred in this city. As a result of the affair three people were badly shaken up, two others terribly frightened, and aplate glass window valued at $75, completely wrecked. Other property was also damaged. Shortly after 3, as a carriage owned by Maj. W. F. Lawrence of West Newton, and occupied by Mr. W. H. Dame and Miss
M. Dame, the former handling the reins, was passing through Newtonville square,
the horse became frightened at an automobile. Mr. Dame was unable to control the animal and immediately it started at a mad gallop down Washington street towards Newton.Every vehicle in the path gave the horse and carriage a wide berth, the electric cars passing up and down the Washington street boulevard held up rather than increase the horse's madness. Everything was excitement, but pandemonium developed when the horse reached Nonantum square.The square was crowded with teams, electrics and pedestrians, who were warned
of the approach of the mad animal by Patrolman B. F. Burke, who caught the first Newton, Feb. 1, 1879, and for several years of Newtonville. There was a hustle for the sidewalk on the part of men, women and children.Patrolman Burke, however, took in the situation at a glance and ran into the centre of the square to check, if possible, the horse's flight. At that time the animal was headed directly towards Nonantum square.Burke caught the horse by the head but was completely carried off his feet. Still clinging to the bridle he was dragged more than ten yards. Not until the animal plunged through the window of Julius Jacobson's barber shop did the officer let go.The crash of the glass was the only warning that Jacobson and a customer named Jennings, had of the horse's presence.
Jennings leaped from the chair and with Jacobson ran to the rear of the store. They were not a moment too soon. In another second the horse had struck the barber's chair and almost demolished it. Other furniture, including a toilet rack, was —In the Unitarian church parlors on Friday evening the last sociable was held. An amusing vaudeville show was given consisting of banjo selections, monologue and other features under the direction of Miss Marie Phelps, and a one act comedy by several young people of the church. Refreshments followed the entertainment.

—Mrs. Hugh McNally of Derby street died last Friday. A husband and five children survive her. The funeral was held from the house Sunday afternoon, and the interment was at Waltham. On Monday morning, at 8 o'clock, requiem mass was celebrated at St. Bernard's church by Rev. Fr. O'Toole.

—Mr. Charles A. Miner, for nearly 12 years clerk of the board of assessors, with headquarters at City Hall, has resigned, his resignation to take effect next Saturday. Mr. Miner was the originator of the present block system and it was mainly through his efforts that the office is in its present excellent condition. Mr. Miner still retains his position as an assessor but will connect himself with another line of business.

—Monday was one of the busiest of the year in the office of Agent H. A. Stone of the board of health. Mr. Stone, in the capacity of inspector of provisions, is obliged to inspect all the provisions, produce, fruit, fish, dairy and other wares whose applicants may apply for the necessary permit to carry on business. Monday many of these people called at City Hall, and at times the streets which bound the municipal building presented an interesting and unique sight.

—The funeral of Bartholomew F. Ryan took place this morning at St. Bernard's church. Mr. Ryan was 47 years old and a native of this city. He made his home at 4 Auburndale avenue. He was a carpenter by trade and followed that profession successfully for many years. Death was due to consumption. During the last few days he ran with old Triton 3 of this place. He is survived by a wife and 10 children. The interment was at Calvary cemetery, Waltham.

Kindergarten Music-Building.

The Original System of Kindergarten Music in the United States.

The purpose of this unique method is to inspire true love for music in the minds of the little ones, thus making what was once a drudgery both interesting and pleasurable. A child gains at the end of the term greater musical knowledge than it does in several quarters, who begins at the instrument in the usual way. These lessons do not interfere with any method what-ever, and leave no ground to be gone over when instrumental lessons begin. During sea on of 1900 classes will be formed for Tiny Tots in Color Music, for Children preparing to study instrumental music, and for those needing the ear cultivated and foundation study in music building. These classes will be supervised by the author and originator, Mrs. N. K. Darlington. Also Normal classes during the season. Address, New England Conservatory of Music, 1092 Boylston Street, Boston. Send for circular.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Boston, April 4, 1900.

Notwithstanding the vicissitudes of legislation, Representative Langford continues to plead for direct caucus nomination for public officers and Representative Chadwick for simplification of caucus laws. Both are right. The caucus act is going to take up a very large portion of the new public statutes when the commission now consolidating and arranging them reports next January, and if that commission succeeds on getting them into anything like harmony, it will do much better than anybody expects at the present time. Somebody committed a great error of judgment that he did not seize the opportunity this year afforded to upset and redraw the whole election statute in the direction of simplicity. It has got to be done, sooner or later, and when the time comes the citizen will wonder that so cumbersome an enactment was allowed to stay on the statute books so long.

The effort to break down the civil service law will fail, of course. Probably the petitioners expected nothing more. If they gain one point they will be more than pleased. They would like to have the law amended so that the appointing power may nominate any person on the eligible list. They say that this could in no way injure the law; that every name on the eligible list has the certificate of the examiners as to qualifications; but of course this idea is not agreed to by the advocates of the system as it stands. Amid the certificates to the worth of the system as at present administered, put in by Counsel Wellman of the civil service board last week, was this:

Hon. Arthur H. Wellman,
Boston, Mar. 24, 1900.

Dear Sir:—I start for the West today and shall therefore be unable to attend the hearing on Tuesday next, but I want to protest against the attempts now being made to injure, or destroy, our civil service laws. I am not a doctrinaire. An actual experience of five years with the law and its operations in the City of Newton has proved to me its great value. During my terms of service as alderman, in which time I was chairman of the committee on highways and president of the board, as well as during the time that I was mayor, I was brought in to close relations with the clerical and labor forces of the city. It was then, and it now is, the consensus of opinion of those who have had practical experience under the law, that its influence is extremely beneficial, in fact, that the law is a right law. So strongly was this believed by the committee on highways in 1894 (under whom some 400 men were employed) and by all the twenty-one members of the city council of that year, that the laboring force, so called, was brought under the provisions of the act. The result has been most satisfactory, giving an improved service from the head of the department down. My experience and observation leads me to believe that the law is not at fault, but that sometimes the local officials charged with its enforcement are; that instead of final criticisms of the law, all citizens should unite in condemnation of those officials who seek by clever means, to evade it.

(Signed) HENRY E. BOTHELD,
Ex-Mayor of Newton.

The house accepted the adverse report of the probate and insolvency committee on the revision question without a single vote in opposition, the other day. This was very remarkable, considering the strong efforts of Rev. H. D. Wagoner and his friends before the committee. Whether it was the petitioners themselves were convinced that the friends of vivisection as practised in Massachusetts were right and they wrong, or whether the reason of the apathy was that they felt that all the progress that could be expected had been obtained through the exploitation of their views, and they must wait until some other year before making any more sentiment, I do not know. At all events, the agitation subsided much more suddenly than anybody had a right to expect, considering the days devoted to hearings.

The gas investigation seemed in danger of petering out suddenly also. On Friday of last week Senator Woodman, the chairman of the committee on manufactures, suddenly took the reins and ruled that he would permit the cross-examination of the witnesses. W. Lawson no further. It was something like a blow to the petitioners, evidently, for on Monday the petitioners closed their case, without attempting to examine the various legislative witnesses. Others who had been summoned, and who were released from further attendance. But Monday afternoon the committee went into executive session and voted, 10 to 5, to examine the books of the New England Gas and Coke company. This gave new life to the investigation. Mr. Howell of Boston led the opposing five.

Mr. Langford began the week with hearings on the Clinton and Sterling damages cases on Monday. This is of course first cousin to the investigation movement, Judge Corcoran allying at the hearing that 25 per cent of the land of Clinton was taken by the water board, and that the claims for damage by loss of taxes are still unsettled. West Boylston having received an annuity of $12,000. He is also anxious for consequential damages for residents below the dam. It did not, however, do much.

The Newton members feel far more confident than the writer that when the Boston and Albany lease bill is reported it will contain a provision for the abolition of the crossings in the northern part of the city. It will certainly be a good thing if the provision is there, and I do not doubt, as I said a week ago, that careful provision will be made to secure Newton and all other places on the line the right to proceed in the direction of the elimination of grade crossings now provided in the general law; but there is small doubt the lease already safeguards the city in this direction, so that the provision, unless it is direct in its nature, will not materially alter the bill.

There was a gentle surprise party on Monday afternoon when the house substituted for an adverse report of the committee on railroads a bill to provide that the entire expense of grade crossing separations shall be borne by the railroads. What does Newton think of that? Not to give away one of the Newton members too much, it may be remarked that probably nobody was more astonished than Representative Langford, who himself had an idea of modifying the grade crossings act, but who expected to meet opposition rather than a spirit of socialism that would upset the whole order, and perhaps prevent the elimination of a single new crossing. There is a lot to say about this question, and small room to say it. Perhaps when a bill is offered by Mr. Langford in place of the adverse report on the Hyde Park petition, which he has upon the table, it will be possible to discuss the matter. It suffices it now to say that possible Mr. Mellen of Worcester was justified in shedding tears over the way the Commonwealth is getting the bad end of it in these grade separations. Cities may gain in taxable property, as well as in safety; railroads may gain in improved facilities; but was not the case in Brockton, and to some extent at least in Newton. Nobody loses except the treasury of the Commonwealth.

The committee on Public Service has reported a bill increasing the salary of the members of the railroad commission to $500 for the chairman and $450 for the other members. Congratulate Commissioner Bishop.

THE LABOR IDEAS OF RUSKIN.

By Rev. R. Heber Newton, D.D.

Ruskin translated the terms of political economy from the language of things to the language of life. Wealth he found not in the accumulation of things, but in the accumulation of things useful for life. Life is the essential thing in political economy as in art. "There is no wealth but life," life, including all its powers of love, of joy, and of admiration. That country is the richest which nourishes the greatest number of noble and happy beings; that man is richest who, having performed the functions of his own life to the utmost, has also the widest influence, both personal and by means of his possessions, over the lives of others.

At the beginning of his constructive system he placed the State's restriction of marriage. "The beginning of sanitary and moral law is in the regulation of marriage." He would have every citizen well born.

Then he would have every citizen well educated. By education, however, he meant a somewhat revolutionary conception of the work that we thus name. He would have the State provide in a most munificent fashion for the education of its children—not a poor education for the children of the poor, but the most generous education for the children of the State. School-houses are to be models of beauty and adorned and filled with treasures of art, as the true picture galleries.

The curriculum which he prescribes all leads up to the development of life and to the development of the highest form of life—character. "You do not educate a man by telling him what he knew not, but by making him what he was not."

Then he would have labor organized in the most thorough fashion. Work is to be found for all, and all are, through a rightful education, to be fitted for work, and then all are to be forced to work. There are to be no cultured idlers and there are to be no untrained bunglers.

Co-operative associations commended themselves but slightly to him. Shops and factories are to be established under government to maintain high standards of work, which will thus force private enterprise up to the government standards.

He was no thorough-going democrat, but believed in an aristocracy of his own fashion, the different classes of which, however, were to be all equalled by the State, none of them receiving the "profits" of our present capital nor the "rents" of land as in our present tenure. His ideal looked forward to a genuine collectivism; the control of the means of production by the State for the people as the ultimate ideal.

High-flavored butter. "High-flavored butter" is a term used in what is called a gilt-edged grocery store in New York City.

The writer asked the liberty of inspecting the butter. It was a pure gold in color, quite firm, though not of rock-like hardness, but from its depts it emitted a sweet odor which was most delightful. It sold for eighty cents per pound, done up in packages of a quarter of a pound each, each package stamped with the name of the maker.

On inquiry it was found that this very expensive butter was worth more from the producer's standpoint than the ordinary butter. It actually cost more to make it. Cows are cows, you will say, and can eat only just so much. But there are other points.

The barn in which these cows were kept was not so bad at all, but a building especially constructed for the animals. Their floor was of sand renewed daily, and in the whole structure there was no odor.

Each day the cows were fed at regular hours in certain amounts, and the food was varied. Hay was, of course, included, but there was the best of meal made into the feed, so it seemed enough for a person to eat, so it seemed. On pleasant days the cows were allowed to sun themselves in an open barnyard, but on other days they took their exercise in an addition which was shut in with sand and had a dirt floor. The milking took place at regular hours; and after the milk was set in the perfectly sweet porcelain pans, it was never disturbed until it had gelled by slow process all its cream upon the top.

Everything about the churning was managed with a special regard for cleanliness and sweetness; for milk and cream and butter take up odors quickly. The cream was churned in a sweet state or only very slightly turned, but by no means sour. If, after the churning, it was not as yet as the market required, a very small portion of vegetable coloring matter was added and carefully worked through and through the butter. This addition of color is a pleasant touch and may, if properly done, be as harmless as the adding of a crushed strawberry to lemonade, or a drop of coffee to corn starch, to make it a rich gold. But all these things cost time and money. True, they give it back in the end. And it becomes a problem for the farmer and his wife to determine just how much it will pay them to spend upon the cows and just how much, or how soon, they can hope to get it back.

THE LAUGHING PLANT.

Among curious plants one of the most notable has been discovered recently in Arabia, where it is known by the natives as the "laughing plant." It does not do any laughing itself, as might be inferred from its title, but it causes whosoever eats its seeds to break out into fits of the most uncontrolled and immoderate mirth.

DO YOU KNOW WHAT YIDDISH IS?

By Israel Zangwill.

Yiddish is a lingual patchwork stretched on a frame of bad German. The corruption of both pronunciation and grammatical form varies with the locality. Since Germany is bordered by many other countries, wherein Jews reside, this dialect has naturally diffused itself among the Jews in all of them. It may be said roughly that Yiddish is the mother tongue of the Jews of Europe. Indeed, I regard it as being more civilized than classical Greek. For it does not worry about the infinite shades and declensions of the three genders.

In defense, moreover, of the apparent corruption of the German it may be said that it is only within a century or so that German itself has become unlearned and classical, and this under the guidance of pedantic grammarians and writers rather than as a spontaneous outcome of the life of the people.

Thus Yiddish may partly represent an earlier geological stratum of German before that language had crystallized to the rigidity of to-day. To this original stock Yiddish has added a wealth of idiomatic expressions and proverbs drawn from its own peculiar experiences in the various Ghettoes of the world; from the odd incidents and odd characters which the Ghetto produced. Some of the proverbs could only be understood by Jews, others are universal in character, such as: "When is a hunchback overjoyed? When he meets another hunchback." Or, "Loud drumming in front, and no soldiers behind." The following, too, may perhaps carry home: "Nine rabbis cannot make a congregational quorum, but ten tailors can." The tailor, instead of being a ninth part of a man, is a full member of the brotherhood of Israel, while even the rabbi cannot count as more than one. How vividly this emphasizes the absence of priestcraft.

In addition, the original Yiddish vocabulary has been greatly enriched by words drawn from every language with which the wandering Jews came into contact. Hebrew has, of course, always been the chief source of these extra supplies, for naturally a number of characteristic social and religious circumstances could only find expression in the words and phrases of ancient tradition.

In New York, of course, there is a large proportion of English words in the Yiddish of common use. But, whatever language Yiddish draws from, it squeezes all of the borrowed expressions into German modes as egotistically as the French language modulates and pronounces everything it borrows, a la Française.

The most comical grammatical forms result from this distortion of foreign grammar. For instance, there is one Hebrew word which means "he who vows." This has been made into a Yiddish verb to express the act of offering money to the synagogue, and when it is conjugated into the past tense, as it is

were a verb, it reads literally—Mr. Ansell, he-who-vows-ed, 50 cents," the hybrid "he-who-vows-ed" stands for "offered."

Yiddish is printed in three ways—in Hebrew letters, in German letters and in English letters—and the spelling varies fearfully and wonderfully; yet a whole world of books and newspapers flows daily from the European and American presses in this composite jargon, and the most characteristic output of the Jewish mind may be found in these Yiddish publications. And in addition, there is scarcely a book or a play that does not find its way sooner or later into the Yiddish theater through Yiddish books. Yiddish newspapers or the Yiddish theater.

CORRECT SPELLING GLOVES.

Only heavy glove kid gloves are worn by the girl who understands and appreciates the demands of the fashionable tailor gown. The newest street glove is heavily stitched, and the favorite colors are dull, brownish red for morning and the pastel shades for evening. The chief novelty of the spring glove lies in the manner of its fastening. The tiny buttons of former years are replaced by huge pearl ones as big as ten-cent pieces. A new-fangled unfastener, designed for the spring glove, has no end of engagements on her hands and very little time to fill them, may be had in a string fastened to the lower clasp. A single pull, and the glove seems to open of its own volition.

CITY AND COUNTRY DOGS.

There is a marked difference between city and country dogs. A city dog turned loose in a pasture lot nopes along, paying no attention to the birds and other animals around it but a country dog turned free in a city street, after the temporary embarrassment that countrified folks always feel, observes the sparrows to be unusually tame and amorous. Then comes a round of sport that makes the country dog feel itself very much at home. The country dog delights in chasing small birds and the city dog doesn't, but after a few hours' racing the dog's feet would be as sore as any clodhopper's that walked the stones for any length of time, especially on a hot day.

Lasell Notes.

On the evening of the 9th, at 7.30, will occur the pupils' musical rehearsal for the closing term.

On Saturday evening, April 7, the Fiske Jubilee Singers are to give a concert, under the auspices of the Canoe Club of the seminary.

Dr. Winslow's lecture on Friday evening was well attended, and roused considerable interest in the subject, "Electricity." The proceeds were devoted to the cause of missions, which was in the ascendant then.

On Saturday evening the symphony party considered themselves especially fortunate in having the opportunity to hear Brema.

Miss Clara Cushman's Sunday morning mission talk to the school on the Chinese women and their needs was of marked interest and value. Miss Cushman, having been, herself, a missionary in that field, speaks that whereof she knows. She illustrated her remarks by various Chinese articles which served to make the lecture partly an object lesson.

The Rev. Henry G. Spaulding's Thursday evening lecture on "The Life of the Virgin in Art," was finely illustrated by stereopticon views. It was a comprehensive and scholarly presentation of a decidedly interesting subject.

The Lasell young women of the seminary missionary society, gave on Saturday last, a corridor party in behalf of the mission cause. Each of the rooms on one hall was arranged and decorated to represent some country where mission work is done. These were well worth seeing, since with draperies, curiosities from the countries represented, girls in costume at the various booths inside, pictures, and certain realistic hand-painted scenes, they were made very picturesque sort, they were made attractive and quite fairly representative. Italy, Turkey, Africa, China, Japan, India, Mexico, Greenland, Alaska, and the Hawaiian and Philippine Islands, with Cuba and Porto Rico were to be seen, besides the Mission Statistics room, the Gypsy Fortune Teller's room, and the North American Indian room. The Gypsy was imposed in black felt, lace mantles, spangles and jewelry, and did a merry dance; the North American Indian gleamed and glowed at you from a vivid scarlet background, in uncouth pictures wherein he was to be seen in all sorts of costume and equipment, while nearby were various bowls and other utensils from his wigwam, relieved against a wall hung with brightly colored Indian blankets, and in a corner hung General Custer's sword (?) suspiciously bright and glittering, and suggesting "sword drill" in the gymnasium. Hatchet and scalp alone were wanting. In the statistics room sundry maps and recently prepared charts were hung conspicuously about; the treasurer, pro tem, presided, and took care of a mob of mite-boxes on the table. The hall was decorated from end to end with gay bunting, and in the various rooms goodies were to be had for pennies, nickels, or dimes, while at the end of the hall stood a fancy work table, the dainty wares of which were contributed by the girls and their teachers, and sold by enticing young saleswomen, who so effectively lured the unwary passers by that they disposed of their entire stock for no less gratifying a sum than fifteen dollars. The goodies? Well, Turkey sold peanut candy, in the golden glamor of a yellow light; Greenland, in fetching little white snow-hut overlaid with green pine boughs, (the entire room was pine decked) and lighted by one green star, sold raspberry frappe, as did her neighbor, Alaska, guarded by her token, an hourglass by mighty drifts of snow, with ice bergs looming up around, and ensigned in her snow built cabin, under the cold white light of the polar star. In the room of "Our Foreign Possessions" they sold sundries, and olives, of course, and the vendors were especially proud of their costumes, their native jewelry, and their culture. In this room was the straw-hatched hut that elicited such admiration and wonder during the evening. In Japan and China, nuts and popcorn were to be had from Chinese and Japanese ladies, and the array of curiosities was surprising. One of the most noteworthy was one of the signs once posted in Japan against Christians and Christianity. This, as so many others of the curios, was lent for the occasion by a returned missionary, and was genuine. India sold under a red light, salted peanuts, in a room made interesting by various Buddha relics, and other articles suggestive of that land, and in several cases brought them in. In Mexico one brought "Mexican" chila drink, which tasted much like delicious lemonade, and was served by a Mexican maid. Here were articles of the famous Mexican draw-work pictures, and moose, and other objects explanatory of the various products, conditions, customs, and costumes of the Mexicans. From 7.30 p. m. till 9.30 the crowd surged through hall and rooms, sometimes buying, sometimes examining curiosities, reading statistics, or hearkening to their fortunes, sometimes listening to the strains of music evoked by the wandering violin player, an Italian, if her dress may be believed, who strayed up and down the hall playing during the evening, at times accompanied by vigorous young drummer girl, Africa, favored by her ugly little god, sold all her luscious oranges, or nearly so; the frappe, peanuts, candy, "chila drink," everything, even to the "Mexican" chila drink, in the Italian quarter, went like hot cakes, and at the end a tired, but happy set of missionary society officers counted as their gains from the evening's traffic, together with Mr. Bagshaw's contribution, the boards in the mite boxes, and the proceeds of Wednesday evening's electrical lecture, and the chocolate table of Wednesday and Friday afternoons, a good round sum to devote to the needs of suffering heathendom. It was surely an all-round success.

The Lasell young women of the seminary missionary society, gave on Saturday last, a corridor party in behalf of the mission cause. Each of the rooms on one hall was arranged and decorated to represent some country where mission work is done. These were well worth seeing, since with draperies, curiosities from the countries represented, girls in costume at the various booths inside, pictures, and certain realistic hand-painted scenes, they were made very picturesque sort, they were made attractive and quite fairly representative. Italy, Turkey, Africa, China, Japan, India, Mexico, Greenland, Alaska, and the Hawaiian and Philippine Islands, with Cuba and Porto Rico were to be seen, besides the Mission Statistics room, the Gypsy Fortune Teller's room, and the North American Indian room. The Gypsy was imposed in black felt, lace mantles, spangles and jewelry, and did a merry dance; the North American Indian gleamed and glowed at you from a vivid scarlet background, in uncouth pictures wherein he was to be seen in all sorts of costume and equipment, while nearby were various bowls and other utensils from his wigwam, relieved against a wall hung with brightly colored Indian blankets, and in a corner hung General Custer's sword (?) suspiciously bright and glittering, and suggesting "sword drill" in the gymnasium. Hatchet and scalp alone were wanting. In the statistics room sundry maps and recently prepared charts were hung conspicuously about; the treasurer, pro tem, presided, and took care of a mob of mite-boxes on the table. The hall was decorated from end to end with gay bunting, and in the various rooms goodies were to be had for pennies, nickels, or dimes, while at the end of the hall stood a fancy work table, the dainty wares of which were contributed by the girls and their teachers, and sold by enticing young saleswomen, who so effectively lured the unwary passers by that they disposed of their entire stock for no less gratifying a sum than fifteen dollars. The goodies? Well, Turkey sold peanut candy, in the golden glamor of a yellow light; Greenland, in fetching little white snow-hut overlaid with green pine boughs, (the entire room was pine decked) and lighted by one green star, sold raspberry frappe, as did her neighbor, Alaska, guarded by her token, an hourglass by mighty drifts of snow, with ice bergs looming up around, and ensigned in her snow built cabin, under the cold white light of the polar star. In the room of "Our Foreign Possessions" they sold sundries, and olives, of course, and the vendors were especially proud of their costumes, their native jewelry, and their culture. In this room was the straw-hatched hut that elicited such admiration and wonder during the evening. In Japan and China, nuts and popcorn were to be had from Chinese and Japanese ladies, and the array of curiosities was surprising. One of the most noteworthy was one of the signs once posted in Japan against Christians and Christianity. This, as so many others of the curios, was lent for the occasion by a returned missionary, and was genuine. India sold under a red light, salted peanuts, in a room made interesting by various Buddha relics, and other articles suggestive of that land, and in several cases brought them in. In Mexico one brought "Mexican" chila drink, which tasted much like delicious lemonade, and was served by a Mexican maid. CORRECT SPELLING GLOVES.

Only heavy glove kid gloves are worn by the girl who understands and appreciates the demands of the fashionable tailor gown. The newest street glove is heavily stitched, and the favorite colors are dull, brownish red for morning and the pastel shades for evening. The chief novelty of the spring glove lies in the manner of its fastening. The tiny buttons of former years are replaced by huge pearl ones as big as ten-cent pieces. A new-fangled unfastener, designed for the spring glove, has no end of engagements on her hands and very little time to fill them, may be had in a string fastened to the lower clasp. A single pull, and the glove seems to open of its own volition.

CITY AND COUNTRY DOGS.

There is a marked difference between city and country dogs. A city dog turned loose in a pasture lot nopes along, paying no attention to the birds and other animals around it but a country dog turned free in a city street, after the temporary embarrassment that countrified folks always feel, observes the sparrows to be unusually tame and amorous. Then comes a round of sport that makes the country dog feel itself very much at home. The country dog delights in chasing small birds and the city dog doesn't, but after a few hours' racing the dog's feet would be as sore as any clodhopper's that walked the stones for any length of time, especially on a hot day.

GOOD WORK IN THE MANUAL.

INDOOR DRILL OF THE NEWTON GH SCHOOL BATTALION. MEDALS AWARDED TO R. McLELLAN AND CORP. PHILIP HASBROOKE.

The annual indoor drill of the Newton High school battalion was held Saturday afternoon in the school armory off Walnut street, Newtonville. The drill was witnessed by over 400 spectators, including the parents and friends of the boys, officers from the other school battalions and the principal and teachers of the school.

The exhibition was one of the best ever given by the battalion, the various maneuvers being full of snap. Credit is due Capt. Ernest R. Springer, the military instructor, for the good showing made. The drill commenced at 2.30 o'clock, the assembly and company inspection being followed by the customary setting-up exercises, the entire battalion. An innovation was the butts drill, in which a series of calisthenic movements were introduced.

Following in order came the drill of the signal squad, and artillery squad. As usual, the drill of the latter was interesting and won much applause. These detachments were commanded by Lieut. H. Moore and Sergt. S. S. Holmes, respectively.

The competitive drills for the Howard and Fiske medals. The first was contested for by the junior squad, composed of 10 men, commanded by Lieut. F. S. Marshman. The senior squad, which was in the field for the Fiske medal, was commanded by Adj. D. H. Reese. The men of each squad were given two trials, the prize winners being those from those remaining after the second trial. Evening parade, followed by the award of prizes, brought the exercises to a close. The prizes were distributed by Chairman Frank T. Benner of the school board, as follows:

First junior prize (Howard medal), R. McLELLAN; honorable mention, R. C. Ashenden and J. G. Van Norman. First senior prize (Fiske medal), Corp. Philip Hasbrooke, honorable mention, Corp. Harold Daniels and Corp. Roy Atwood.

The judges were Lieut. Col. George H. Benyon, assistant adjutant-general 2d brigade, M. V. M., and Maj. Ballard of the 4th regiment, M. V. M., Lieut. H. M. Andrews was the officer of the day. After the drill the floor was cleared, and dancing was enjoyed for several hours.

The battalion roster follows:

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

TREMONT THEATRE—"A Runaway Girl" will take her departure from the stage of the Tremont Theatre at the end of next week, an event that undoubtedly will be regretted by the hosts of playgoers of Boston and the vicinity, who have enjoyed the capital performance given by Augustin Daly's clever company, one of the very best that has ever appeared in musical comedy. With its abundance of rollicking fun, its catchy songs, stirring choruses, swinging marches and dances that set the feet a-going, its clever comedians, charming and capable dancers, its fine and picturesque costumes and artistic scenery, the piece has renewed the popularity it gained during its five weeks run at the same house last season, and during the past week, when it played to big audiences, James T. Powers was never more happily cast than as the cockney jockey turned courier, and he is especially abetted in his fun making by all his associates, without exception. Only for previously made engagements elsewhere the stay of this organization might profitably be prolonged for many weeks.

On Monday, April 16, Francis Wilson will begin his annual engagement at the Tremont, during which he will present "Cyrano de Bergerac," the new comic opera constructed and composed for him by Harry B. Smith and Victor Herbert, in which the unique comic who has won with the greatest success of his career as a fun-maker. During his stay he will also revive for a limited number of performances the ever popular "Erminie." Mr. Wilson's company is the ablest that has ever supported him, including, as it does, Pauline Hall, Lulu Glaser, Jennie Weathersby, William Broderick, and other artists of distinction widely known and deservedly popular in comic opera.

We believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best in the world. A few weeks ago we suffered with a severe cold and a troublesome cough and having read their advertisements in our own and other papers we purchased a bottle to see if it would cure us. It cured us before the bottle was more than half used. It is the best medicine for colds and coughs.—The Herald, Andersonville, Ind. For sale by A. Hudson, Newton; E. F. Partridge, Newtonville; B. George H. Bond.

The political conditions prevailing in the 1st Senatorial Middlesex District will prove very interesting in the coming fall election. The defeat of the Republican candidate by the Democrats from Ashland has, to say the least, produced a feeling that will almost preclude a nomination from any town in that locality, and the feeling is so strong that the nomination of almost any candidate from that section will result, as before, in the election of a Democrat.

In order to harmonize the party, the natural out come would be to look for a candidate who would harmonize the factions, and give the Republicans the District to whom it logically belongs.

Among the names brought forward is that of Mr. Geo. H. Bond of West Newton, one, who, if nominated, would undoubtedly be to the appearance of the town and carry the district if nominated with hardly a doubt. Mr. Bond was born in Saxtonville, in the northern part of Framingham, and spent the first 20 years of his life in that town, and in the affairs of the town took a lively interest. He was for many years in the employ of Luther F. Fuller, a merchant of that town, who is still in business. He afterwards took up his residence in Boston, forming a partnership in the grocery business with Mr. George F. Winch (now of Messrs. Winch Bros., Atlantic avenue, Boston), which continued successfully for 10 years, after which he continued the business with marked success, doing probably the largest business in his locality at the present time.

He was a member of the City Government for two years; was a member of Massachusetts State Central Committee for two years, and for three years a Representative from the 14th Suffolk in the Legislature, serving on Committees on Mercantile Affairs and Prisons, of which last he was House Chairman in 1890. In his last election he received the largest vote cast for any candidate in the ward.

He is well known throughout the State as a Retail Grocer, having been in the Retail Grocers' Association, having served for four years as President of that body. He was General Manager of the first Food Fair ever held in Boston, as also of the two succeeding fairs, which were known to be the most successful affairs of the kind ever held in this country. He is on the Board of Investment of the South Boston Savings Bank, and a Director of the Mattapan Bank, and the City of Boston.

He is a member of St. Paul's Lodge, F. A. M., and a member of St. Omer Commandery; also a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce; the Republican Club of Massachusetts and the American League of Wheelmen.

He removed to West Newton about five years ago, and with the exception of being elected a member of the City Government in 1898, has taken no active part; he is a member of the Newton Club, and enjoys an extensive acquaintance throughout the Newtons.

It would certainly seem, under the conditions prevailing, that he would make an exceptionally strong candidate, and at the present writing would make a very favorable showing when the matter is presented to the voters in the fall.—From Beacon Hill Doings, in "New England Grocer."

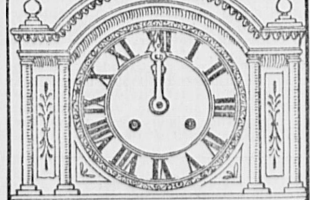

Coppins-Davis.

Miss Alice Eleanor Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rockwood Davis of Park street, was married to Mr. William Towne Coppins, at the Eliot church, Wednesday evening. The event was one of the most important of early spring functions that has taken place in this city. The interior of the edifice was elaborately decorated with palms, hemlock boughs, ferns and Easter lilies to give a green and white effect. Shortly after 8, the bride, leaning upon the arm of her father, and attended by the maid of honor and bridesmaids, entered the church building and passing down a side aisle, was met at the pulpit platform by the groom, the best man and the ushers. Rev. William H. Davis, D. D., pastor of the Eliot church, officiated.

The bride was gowned in white satin. She carried white lilies. The maid of honor, Miss Madeline Bean of Roxbury, wore light blue. The bridesmaids, Miss Marion Freeman of Orange, N. J.; Miss Nellie Pickering of Lowell; Miss Marion Ashley of Wilkesbarre, Pa.; and Miss Caroline L. Copps of Newton. Each wore yellow mousseline de soie and carried bouquets.

The best man was Mr. John T. Alden and the following acted as ushers: Messrs. Raymond G. Goss, Robert H. Howland, Ralph Angier, Walter H. Barker, William Hackett and Robert Barnes.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Coppins met a few relatives and immediate friends at the bride's home on Park street and later left on an extended wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside in Newton.

KENNA, Jackson Co., W. Va.
About three years ago my wife had an attack of rheumatism which confined her to her bed for over a month and rendered her unable to walk a step without assistance, her limbs being swollen to double their normal size. Mr. S. Maddox insisted on my using Chamberlain's Pain-Balm. I purchased a fifty-cent bottle and used it according to the directions and the next morning she walked to breakfast without assistance in any manner, and she has not had a similar attack since.—A. A tasteful appearance in dress often comes as much from good laundering as from the quality of the clothing. Good laundering requires good soap and Ivory Soap is the best.

The fading of delicate shades is frequently the ruin of an expensive garment. Any color that will stand the free application of water can be washed with Ivory Soap.

NEWTON HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNI.

MORE THAN 200 FORMER PUPILS ATTEND A RE-UNION.

A successful re-union of the Newton High School Alumni Association was held Monday evening in the high school building at Newtonville. The affair brought out more than 200 former pupils, and proved an occasion of much social importance and interest.

Shortly after 8 a business meeting was held. Reports were read and these officers were elected: Henry Whitmore '86 pres., Mrs. Arthur G. Hosmer '86, vice pres., and Arthur W. Tarbell '91, secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Enoch C. Adams, headmaster of the High School, made a brief address urging a deeper interest on the part of graduates in the school affairs. Their patronage of athletics he considered especially necessary.

Later in the drill hall dancing was enjoyed and continued until 11. Mrs. Harry D. Corey of Newton, Mrs. Edward H. Mason of Newton Centre, and Mrs. Charles A. Brown of Auburndale were the matrons.

The ushers were Mr. Walter Crawley, Mr. Fred Melcher, Mr. Clifford Kimball, Mr. Luther Paul, Mr. Charles Fitz, Isaac Dillingham, Mr. William Anders, Mr. Irving Paul, Mr. Frank Wood, Mr. Howard Hackett, and Mr. James Barnard. The floor was under the direction of Mr. A. W. Tarbell.

Newton Boat Club Election.

The annual meeting of the Newton Boat Club was held Monday evening at the clubhouse, Riverside. Reports were received from the different officers and later the following were elected: George Royal Purifier pres., Harry L. Burrage vice pres., Richard W. Buntin sec., Charles E. Hatfield treas., and Eugene E. Pettie captain. Arrangements will be made for Saturday evening band concerts during June and September.

Does Coffee Agree With You?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15c and 25c.

The Indian Band.

Mr. B. F. Keith did a work more philanthropic than would at first appear in the presentation of the Indian Band at his theatre last week.

It would have delighted the heart of Helen Hunt Jackson whose "Ramona" was such an appeal for sympathy for the Indian to have seen how well appreciated by the audience were those fifty-five stalwart students from the Carlisle school, so young yet self-reliant and manly. Their leader conducted with great dignity and reserve forces and without any absurd mannerisms. It has certainly been thought that the Indian "had no music in his soul," but that idea is shown to be a mistaken one as their chanting and the veritable display in the selections that ran from grave to gay proved, closing and great applause in the spirited and loyal rendering of "The Star Spangled Banner." It is predicted that this native American band will form a unique feature of the Paris Exposition.

If troubled with rheumatism, give Chamberlain's Pain-Balm a trial. It will not cost you a cent if it does no good. One application will relieve the pain. It also cures sprains and bruises in one-third the time required by any other treatment. Cuts, burns, frostbites, quinsies, pains in the side and chest, glandular and other swellings are quickly cured by applying it. Every bottle warranted. Price 25 and 50 cts. A. Hudson, Newton; E. F. Partridge, Newtonville; B. Billings, Newton Upper Falls; J. H. Green, Newton Highlands.

High School Notes.

By present indications the crew will be a decided success. So many good candidates have tried for it that it has been difficult to decide who shall constitute the crew. Among the candidates are Skelton '92, Seaver (P. G.), Kenway '91, Broad '90, Daniels '90 and Sullivan. All of these have a good show to be on it. But the crew will probably not be picked until next week. Ivy '90 will probably be coxswain.

The gymnastic drill of the girls' battalion will be held in the drill hall Saturday afternoon, April 28th, at 3 o'clock.

Contributions however small will be gratefully received by Miss Ireson for the pictures.

Education Association Lecture.

Prof. Edw. Howard Griggs will lecture at the High school hall, Newtonville, April 19th, at 8 p. m., on "The Influence of the Parent and Teacher in Moral Education."

This lecture is to be given under the auspices of the Newton Education Association and is sure to interest the people of Newton.

Professor Griggs was for seven years professor of Applied Ethics in Leland Stanford Jr. University, and during the last fourteen months has been lecturing under the auspices of the Society for the Extension of University Teaching. He has delivered no less than 400 lectures to large audiences, which have grown from week to week, and there is a constantly increasing demand for his services, both from the general public and from teachers' organizations. He has been selected as the lecturer for next year for the Education Section of the Twentieth Century Club of Boston.

His interest is in the study of concrete human life. He has a strong sympathy with the people and a belief in sound education as a remedy for the ills which threaten and check the development of what is best in our own civilization.

In addition to these fundamental qualifications he possesses a strong, clear, pleasing voice, and a good platform presence, and a marvelous power of following a line of thought consistently without the use of notes, and of expressing his ideas in simple, elegant, vigorous language.

The lecture is free, and as it comes the evening of a holiday, it is hoped there will be a large attendance.

Rev. John Reid, Jr., of Great Falls, Mont., recommended Ely's Cream Balm to me. I can emphasize his statement, "It is a positive cure for catarrh if used as directed."—Rev. Francis W. Poole, Pastor Central Pres. Church, Helena, Mont.

After using Ely's Cream Balm six weeks I believe myself cured of catarrh. Joseph Stewart, Grand Ave., Buffalo, N. Y.

The balm does not irritate the cause sneezing. Sold by druggists at 50 cts. or mailed by Ely Brothers, 50 Warren St., New York.

Wedding at Auburndale.

Miss Lucilla Breed Knapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Knapp of Auburndale, and Mr. Henry Stewart Bosson of Newtonville were married Tuesday evening in the Hancock street Congregational church at Auburndale. The interior of the edifice was beautified with decorations of green and white, and contained a large number of representative people of this city, Boston, Lynn and Brookline.

The ceremony was performed shortly after 8 o'clock by Rev. Dr. Herriek of Boston, assisted by Rev. Charles M. Southgate, pastor of the Hancock street Congregational church.

The bride was gowned in white crepe de chene, trimmed with lace. She wore a tulle veil and carried a spray of lilies of the valley.

Miss Marion C. Bosson, sister of the groom, was maid of honor. There were two little flower girls, Miss Evelyn Coner and Miss Dorothy Winchester.

Mr. Arthur G. Bosson, brother of the groom, was best man, and the following acted as ushers: Nathaniel P. Breed of Lynn, John T. Allen of Boston, George H. Wilder of Hartford, Conn., George C. Dana of Brookline, Robert G. Howard of Newton, Karl Ishburgh of Melrose, A. T. S. Day of Auburndale and Julian B. Keyes of Lowell.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, on Maple street, Auburndale. Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Bosson were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Knapp, Mr. W. B. Bosson and Miss Bosson.

The bride and groom left Tuesday evening on an extended tour, and will pass the summer at Marblehead. Upon their return they will make their home in this city.

Burial of Mrs. James Dorney.

Mrs. James Dorney, one of the oldest and most respected residents of Newtonville, who died of pneumonia, last Friday, at her home on Frederic street, was buried at Waltham, Monday. She was 64 years of age, and spent the greater portion of her life in Newton, where she had endeavored herself to all who knew her by her loving, unselfish and self-sacrificing life. She is survived by a husband and six children, two sons, John and James W., and four daughters, Mary, Sarah, Margaret and Nellie.

A high mass of requiem was celebrated at the Church of Our Lady, Newton, at 9:30 o'clock. Rev. James F. Giffether being celebrant. The singing, under the direction of C. H. D. Murphy, was rendered by the quartet of the church, assisted by Miss N. Neville, Miss Powers and others. The "Dies Irae" and "Salve Regina" were most touchingly rendered by Misses E. K. Hyde, as was also the "Pie Profundi" by Miss Powers, and the "Pie Jesu" by Miss Neville. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, among which were a pillow inscribed "Mother," from the family; a large cross of roses and lilies from Mr. and Mrs. John Dorney; a handsome wreath, with the word "Grandma," from her two little grandchildren; a large wreath of white roses, inscribed "Sister," from Miss Bridget Meehan; a standing cross of white roses and Easter lilies, from her nephews and nieces, the McElroy family; a spiral plant, from ex-Gov. Claflin; a large bunch of Easter lilies, from Mrs. E. W. Dennison of Boston; a beautiful wreath of galax, from Mr. C. S. Dennison and Mrs. Wm. H. Lucas; a large bunch of Easter lilies, from Mrs. Boyle of Newton; a beautiful bunch of cut flowers from Miss Benson and her employees, and a spray of white pinks, from Miss A. E. Cunningham of Newton Lower Falls.

The pallbearers were Messrs. P. Cullen and P. McDermott of Taunton; S. and L. McElroy, J. and T. Kincheil of Newton, all of whom were nephews of the deceased. The interment was in the family lot, Calvary cemetery, Waltham.

A Horrible Outbreak.

"Of large sores on my little daughter's head developed into a case of scald head," writes C. D. Ishill Morgan, Tenn., but Bucklen's Arnica Salve completely cured her. It's a guaranteed cure for Eczema, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pimples, Sores, Ulcers and Piles. Only 25c at all Druggists.

Death Statistics.

The total number of deaths in this city during March was 65. The rate for the month was 28.27 per thousand. Of the 65 deaths 28 were males and 37 females. The principal cause of death was pneumonia, of which there were 12 cases, and influenza, of which there were 8.

The Best in the World.

We believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best in the world. A few weeks ago we suffered with a severe cold and a troublesome cough and having read their advertisements in our own and other papers we purchased a bottle to see if it would effect us. It cured us before the bottle was more than half used. It is the best medicine out for colds and coughs.—The Herald, Andersonville, Ind. For sale by A. Hudson, Newton; E. F. Partridge, Newtonville; B. Billings, Newton Upper Falls; J. H. Green, Newton Highlands.

"Monster!" exclaimed the setting hen. "Would you tear me from my unhatched brood?" "I would," said the fox, "and take the eggs, too, if I had an incubator."—Puck.

Uncle Silas: "Statistics show that the world keeps getting healthier and healthier. People live longer than they did 50 or 100 years ago. Anyone can observe the fact." Aunt Salina: "I've noticed it for a long time. It's got so that one can't pick up a paper any more without reading about someone being cured and seeing their picture."—Brooklyn Life.

You know why? Most diseases begin in disorders of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, blood and nerves. Electric Bitters tones up the stomach, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves, hence cures multitudes of maladies. It builds up the entire system. Puts new life and vigor into any weak, sickly, run-down man or woman. Price 50 cents. Sold by all druggists."

A Cross Clerk

Is a rarity. For the most part the young woman behind the counter is smiling and obliging, though her back hurts, her side pains, or her head throbs distractingly. The wonder is, not that a clerk is sometimes irritable, but that she so rarely shows irritation, when every nerve is quivering and she hardly knows how to hold her head up.

The nervous condition, headache and weakness, which are the results of irregularity or a diseased condition of the woman's organs, can be cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the functions, stops enfeebling drains, strengthens the nervous system and promotes the general health of the entire body.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free of charge. All correspondence private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Having used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription" during the "Golden Medical Discovery" during the past year," writes Mrs. Mattie Long, of Plattsburgh, Perry Co., Pa., "I can truthfully recommend the medicines for all female weakness. I have used several bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' which I consider a great blessing for weak women. I was so nervous and discouraged that I hardly knew what to do. Your advice for home-treatment helped me wonderfully. Thanks to Dr. Pierce."

Those interested in the preservation of the rights of the Indians say that our Indian service is in a worse condition than for many years, on account of the bad character of the appointees, and opponents of civil service reform do not point to our Indian agents with pride. A sample of these is said to be William J. Pollock, agent for the Osage Indians, one of the best of the tribes, whose members have been educated and among whom the average of intelligence is said to be high. The Osage Council in calling attention to the general corruption that prevails at this agency and applying to the secretary of the interior for relief, make a proposition that ought to bring the blush of shame to those responsible for this condition. They say that if it "found that Pollock must be provided for,"
they will appropriate from their own moneys enough to pay his salary by way of a pension, and pray "in the name of the God of the Indian and the white man that some honest, competent man be sent as agent to the Osages, for surely such a man can be found." Could there be a worse comment on our Indian policy than this, or a more severe indictment of the policy of turning the Indian service over to the spoilsmen.

The stories that the Boer women are fighting side by side with their brothers and husbands for liberty and freedom come with a shock to most people. But it shows the sacredness of the cause when even the women take up arms in defence of their native land, and such cases were not unknown in our own war for independence against England. The correspondents say that the Boer women fight as bravely and shoot as straight as the men, but England can hardly feel proud of a war waged against such heroes and heroines. In the Boer army they say are all ages from grey bearded men down to mere youths, all stirred by the same spirit of patriotism. It is no wonder that the Boers astonish the world by the magnificent contest they are waging against overwhelming numbers.

The holiday next Thursday is generally observed as the opening of the athletic season, and also the day to visit the seashore and select a cottage for the summer,
or make other arrangements for the coming summer's vacation. There are many out door attractions, the celebration at Concord, the bicycle road race at Dedham,
and Medford, the opening of the golf season,
and for those not so ambitious the general cleaning up of lawns and backyards and burning of rubbish. The latter is the old-fashioned method of celebrating,
before bicycles and golf were invented and when people had to have something useful to do before they could enjoy being out of doors.

Now that the people have had time to think over Dewey's candidacy, they are treating it with more respect, and the great work of the admiral at Manila after the battle is being remembered. As long as Dewey was in sole command he had no trouble with the natives, as he treated them justly and fairly, and had been left in command there would have been no war.
This part of his fame can never be taken away, and his straightforward character appeals to the public when compared with the wobbles and twistings of politicians, who are willing to sacrifice any principle
for the sake of immediate success.

The final opening of the Lexington Street Railway, of which Mr. H. B. Parker of the Boston and Newton is president, will be held on Saturday afternoon, and will be a well affair with a banquet in the Lexington Town hall, with speeches by prominent citizens of Lexington, Waltham and Newton, the three cities which are united by this road. Cars for special guests leave Waltham at 1.30. This road will be a favorite with summer travellers as it is now finished as far as Bedford, and the route from Waltham is through a charming section of farming country.

CONGRESSMAN LITTLEFIELD of Maine was renominated by acclamation, and his course in Congress was warmly endorsed,
and then the convention mixed up things
by endorsing the President and the administration generally. If Littlefield was right, the President must have been wrong, but possibly the first endorsement was sincere and the other purely formal. At any rate Messrs. Littlefield and McCall are the two New England Congressmen in whose record the people take special pride.

FRANK SANBORN in his witty and outspoken letters to the Springfield Republican says that Senator Wolcott was wrong in charging Senator Lodge with "unqualified falsehood." He should have said
"qualified falsehood," and then his statement would have applied to all of our unior Senator's speeches. Mr. Sanborn's

correction is even worse than the original charge.

The great amount of snow in New Hampshire is said to be responsible for the cold north winds which are so prevalent, and also so disagreeable. The people to the north of us are said to be still struggling through snow banks. The crocuses and other spring flowers that have appeared,
look as though they needed to be wrapped in woolen blankets, and ambitious gardeners find that except in sunny spots the frost still lingers in the ground.

The registration of letters by letter carriers goes into effect April 16th, but the carriers are forbidden to wait a fraction of a minute longer than is necessary to write a receipt, and registry fee and postage must be pre-paid. Carriers have to observe the 8-hour law, and so all their communications with patrons must be "on the fly."

Hunnewell Club Minstrels.

The auction sale of tickets for the minstrel show took place at the club house last Saturday night and was a very spirited affair. The first choice went to the president, Mr. Chas. A. Haskell, after some lively bidding, for $7.50, and the second choice to ex-Mayor Hubbard at nearly the same figure. There was a long succession of other tickets bid in at from $5 down to $1,
and when the auction closed nearly all the tickets for the first night were taken. Since then many tickets have been sold at the club house, and on Wednesday tickets were placed on sale at Hubbard's drug store. There are good seats left for the second night, but application should be made early as they are going rapidly.
Evidently the show is to be a success financially, and there is no doubt that it will be a very amusing affair, from the hints about the funny jokes, cake walk and songs that have escaped the censor.

At the corner of River street the horse overturned the vehicle throwing quantities of milk, cans, etc., about the street. No one was injured, but the wagon was considerably damaged.

—The frame barn at 116 Crescent street owned by George Cook and occupied by George Saunders, was partially destroyed by fire early last Saturday evening. Children playing with matches caused the blaze, which had gained considerable headway when an alarm was rung in from box 45 at 6.12. The firemen confined the flames to the interior and roof of the building. Damage $200.

—The Newton veteran firemen's hand tub, Nonantum, has been thoroughly overhauled and put in condition that the vets themselves believe will win for it much success at the playfests during the coming summer. On April 19 the members of the Newton veteran firemen's association will assemble in the rear of their building on Watertown street and the engine will be given a complete test.

—John E. Ryan, 21 years old, a well known character, knowing that he was likely to be arrested on the charge of larceny, saved the police all trouble by surrendering himself. He was charged with stealing a valuable game rooster from Mr. Thomas Bryson, of Fine street. In court Saturday morning, Ryan was sentenced to the Concord Reformatory, from which institution he was released a few weeks ago on probation.

—There was a serious blaze on the estate at 1839 Washington street last Friday afternoon, the result of brush fire. The burning of the brush made the contents of the barn and ignited the rear of a barn. Prompt action on the part of men in that vicinity and the Newton fire department prevented a considerable loss. The damage is estimated at about $50. The barn is owned by Walter H. Marsh of Summer street, Boston, and occupied by W. R. Graves.

—There was a genuine expression of sorrow on the countenances of all those at police headquarters and the patrol stables at West Newton last Saturday morning. The cause of it all was the death of Jane, Jane was a handsome chestnut, and had been in the police department's service for about 12 years. Every superior officer and patrolman in the department knew Jane, and always spoke of her in admiring terms.

—There will be special music at the First Baptist church next Sunday by the Brookline quartet, composed of H. E. Corbin, first tenor; C. H. Tenney, second tenor; L. B. Fletcher, first bass; J. P. Tucker, second bass. The program will be: Carol, "The Easter Bell Ringers." Collins Response, "Hear us Lord." Perkins Anthem, "Awake thou that sleepest." Froelide Anthem, Alleluia! Alleluia!

—The annual meeting of the Unitarian church was held last Monday evening and there was a good attendance of members. Mr. George H. Ellis was moderator. The annual reports were read and routine business followed. The following officers were elected: Benjamin F. Otis, treasurer; John C. Brimblecom, clerk; Mrs. Harriet M. Freeman, Mrs. Louise A. O. Frost, Captain John W. Weeks, James P. Tolman and Charles P. Hall, standing committee; James P. Tolman and Charles P. Hall, assessors.

—An important change in the hour of the officers in charge at police headquarters has been made by Chief Tarbox and went into effect last evening. Where formerly one lieutenant remained on duty from 3.45 p. m. until 1 a. m., he will report for duty at 2.45 p. m. but will not be relieved until 2.45 a. m. The hour of the other lieutenant will be from 2.45 a. m. until 11.45 a. m. Sergeants in charge of the three divisions will communicate with police headquarters hourly during their hours of duty which are from 5.30 p. m. until 2 a. m.

The Huger Mystery Solved.

For some time stories have been going about of ladies being hanged on the streets at night and much alarm was caused as the identity of the man could not be discovered. The police unearthed several clues and later some young people on the south side of the city, acting as detectives, were successful in finding the man. They were also greatly surprised to find that he was the son of a prominent family, whose mind had become unbalanced by overstudy. He was the intimate friend of some of the party, and had always been a popular and athletic young fellow until recently, when it was noticed that his actions were more or less peculiar. He has left the city and will not return for a long time as it is hoped that a change of scene will restore him to his mental balance. The names of all concerned are kept from the public as no good purpose would be served by revealing them, and meanwhile the streets are quiet at night.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Boston, April 11.

Yesterday afternoon the Governor sent to the Senate a message, bringing the whole matter of the Boston and Maine-Fitchburg lease before the body. In his message he suggests that the action of ratification if taken, contain a provision that the rights of the dissenting minority stockholders be preserved.

The great business interests of Boston and vicinity have been heard within a few days by the committee on railroads on the Boston & Albany lease. They all agree that it will be very much for the interests of Boston to have the lease ratified. The opponents of the lease make a rather poor showing as a whole. They argue that there will be a great depreciation in the value of the property because the New York Central is not in the habit of spending money on its stations, etc., but this is met by the counter argument that as the property of this character is already in good condition, prudence will dictate that the lessee keep it so.

The committee on ways and means still continues its hearings on that famous report of the special gypsy moth investigation committee. One of the best pleas against the proposition to have the work of suppressing the pest done by the cities and towns was made last week by City Solicitor Slocum of Newton, who was sent by Mayor Wilson to represent him. The committee is very clearly impressed with the arguments which are being made, and is pretty sure to gently turn down that special report.

Mr. Slocum has been watching the Clinton water bill of late. This is a bill introduced by Mr. Langford's water supply committee in joint session with the committee on metropolitan affairs. With the city solicitor of other places he sits in the committee hearing listening to the testimony and ready to take such action as may be required in defending the interests of his city. Chief Engineer Stearns of the metropolitan water board has prepared a type-written statement for the information of the committee, in which he clearly states the position of the board. As to the first section of the bill, which seeks to give Clinton the preference in the sale of power or electricity produced at the big Clinton dam, he points out that the town will have a preference irrespective of any legislation, as it is within two miles of the dam, and is the only place where the power can be sold without a great expense for wires. Leominster is 10 miles, Worcester 12 and Fitchburg 15 miles away. He also points out that the water power of Lancaster, Ayer, Groton, Appleton, Nashua, Lowell, and Lawrence is destroyed or injured by the diversion of the water, and if the Clinton contention is right all these other places should be considered too. As to the claim for $200,000 annually for the loss of taxation, it is shown in this statement that the town of Clinton already receives more in taxes from the water board than it received on all the property taxes before the board went into the town. As before the board the town has lost water income, the facts show that only six takers are lost. As to the claim that a source of water supply is lost it is admitted that it has lost Sandy Pond and that it has gained the whole Wachusett reservoir, without cost.

Mr. J. R. Carter has been attending the hearings of the metropolitan committee regularly of late, until the question of the new Washington street subway was closed up. As a prominent member of the Associated Boards of Trade, he is very much interested. The indications are that a bill will be passed providing that the city shall build the subway, provided the people vote to do so at the next election, and that it shall be leased to any reliable company on the same general conditions as now apply to the Tremont street subway. The Citizens' Association of Boston recommended that the bill provide that the Elevated road should build it, and that the city should have the privilege of purchase at the end of a stated period. In the interest of accuracy, it may be said that while Mr. Herbert L. Harding strongly favored the bill as submitted, there are no tears to be shed if the report is otherwise. The fact is that a certain element in the association took this view of the matter, and were anxious to get a new subway, more anxious to get the matter before the General Court than they were to fight over details, acquiesced.

Mr. Carter is going to Washington in a few days. I understand, to speak for the great harbor improvements of Boston. If the river and harbor committee agrees to the survey for the proposed improvements, it will practically mean that the $2,000,000 will be spent in making Boston harbor a safe port for the largest vessels. Mr. Wales of Andover will have to take care of the work of the harbor and land committee for a few days during these hearings, as Commissioners Emery and White will go to Washington also.

Highway Commissioner Ross was before the committee on roads and bridges yesterday to advocate the recommendations of his board as to the work of building state highways. Among these is a recommendation that there be two engineers on the board, and that the salary of the chief engineer, who would receive $5,000 each, devoting all their time to the work, the third member to receive $1,000, act as chairman, and give only a portion of his time. It is understood to be the idea that these two chief engineers, divided the state into two halves, and each take charge of all engineering work in one of them. Mr. Perkins of the League of American Wheelmen, who has been making an effort to get rid of Mr. Ross, who he believes to be a great road builder, as the streets of Newton show. On this point he is opposed by others who say that Mr. Ross is to all intents and purposes a road engineer, and that this bill would give him a $5,000 salary, as he would be sure to be retained by the governor. The chief interest whether she is going to keep or lose her highway commissioner. Should the bill go through he would evidently have to resign one of his positions.

The gas investigation has reached almost a farcical stage, though nobody seems to blame. The New England Gas & Coke Company refuses to have its affairs looked into, on the ground that there is no authority granted in the deed to the trustees to submit its books and papers to the examination of anybody. The committee is far from sure of its ground, and it may take the enactment of legislation to put it in a position where it can insist. Meanwhile, each day brings new developments. MANN.

Remarkable Cure of Rheumatism.

KENNA, Jackson Co., W. Va.

About three years ago my wife had an attack of rheumatism which confined her to her bed for over a month and rendered her unable to walk a step without assistance, her limbs being swollen to double their normal size. Mr. S. Madox insisted on my using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I purchased a fifty-cent bottle and used it according to the directions and the next morning she walked to breakfast without assistance in any manner, and she has not had a similar attack since.—A. THE BATTLE OF SPION KOP.

By Winston S. Churchill.

When it was decided to attack Spion Kop by night, the Boer trenches were possible before dawn, hold on during the day, drag guns up at night, and thus dominate the Boer lines, all of the plans were carefully laid.

Gen. Woodgate, who trusted with the command and Col. Thorneycroft with much of the arrangement and direction of the night attack.

Guided by Col. Thorneycroft the force made its way successfully up the southern spur of the mountain, over most difficult and dangerous ground, and surprised the Boers guarding the intrenchments on the summit.

Morning broke, and with it the attack. The enemy, realizing the vital importance of the position, concentrated every man and gun at his disposal for its recapture. Gen. Woodgate was killed at once.

Sir Redvers Buller then took the extreme step of appointing Major Thorneycroft local brigadier-general commanding on the summit of Spion Kop, and to the bravest fighting man were sent reinforcements.

The Boers followed, and accompanied their shells by a vigorous rifle attack on the hill, and about 8:30 the position became most critical. The troops were driven almost entirely off the main plateau, and the Boers succeeded in re-occupying some of their trenches.

A frightful disaster was narrowly averted. About twenty men in one of the captured trenches abandoned their resistance, threw up their hands, and called out that they would surrender. Col. Thorneycroft, whose great stature made him everywhere conspicuous, and who was from dawn till dusk in the first firing line, rushed to the spot. The Boers advancing to take the position, thirty yards away, Thorneycroft shouted to the Boer leader:

"You may go to hell. I command on this hill and allow no surrender. Go on with your firing."

A thick and continual stream of wounded passed rearward. A village of ambulance wagons grew up at the foot of the mountain. The dead and injured, smashed and broken by the shells, littered the summit till it was a bloody, reeking shambles. Thirst tormented the soldiers, for though water was at hand the fight was too close and furious to give even a moment's breathing space. But nothing could weaken the stubborn vigor of the defense. Though the British artillery, unable to find or reach the enemy's guns, could only tear up the ground in impotent fury; though the shell fire and rifle fire never ceased for an instant, the magnificent infantry maintained the defense, and night closed in with the British still in possession of the hill.

WINSTON S. CHURCHILL.

About 4 o'clock I rode with Capt. R. Brooke, Seventh Hussars, to Spion Kop, to find out what the true situation was. We passed through the ambulance village, and leaving our horses at the spur, streamed on wounded men and obstructed our path. Men staggered along alone, or supported by comrades, or crawling on hands and knees, or carried on stretchers.

Many of the wounds were of a horrible nature. The splinters and fragments of the shell had torn and mutilated in the most ghastly manner.

I passed about 200 while I was climbing up. There was, moreover, a small but steady leakage of unwounded men of all corps. Some of these cursed and swore. Others were utterly exhausted and fell on the hillside in stupor. Others again seemed drunk, though they had had no liquor. Scores were sleeping heavily. Fighting was still proceeding, and stray bullets struck all over the ground, while the Maxim shell guns scoured the flanks of the hill and the sheltering infantry at regular intervals of a minute.

I had seen some service, and Capt. Brooke has been through more fighting than any other officer of late years. We were so profoundly impressed by the spectacle and situation that we resolved to go and tell Sir Charles Warren what we had seen. The fight had been close that no proper reports had been sent to the General, so he listened with great patience and attention. One thing was quite clear—unless good and efficient cover could be made during the night and unless guns could be dragged to the summit of the hill to match the Boer artillery, the infantry could not—perhaps would not—endure another day. The human machine will not stand certain strains for long.

Sir Charles Warren wanted to know Col. Thorneycroft's views. I was sent to obtain them. The darkness was intense; the track stony and uneven. It was hopelessly congested with ambulances, stragglers and wounded men. I soon had to leave my horse, and I then toiled upward, finding everywhere streams of men winding about the almost precipitous sides of the mountain, and desultory cracks of musketry at the top. Only one solid battalion remained—the Dorsets. All the others were intermingled.

I found Col. Thorneycroft at the top of the mountain. Every one seemed to know even in the confusion where he was. He was sitting on the ground, surrounded by the remnants of the regiment he had raised, who had fought for him like lions and followed him like dogs. I explained the situation as I had been told and as I thought. Naval guns were prepared to try; sappers and working parties were already on the road with thousands of sandbags. The decision had already been taken. He had never received any message from the general, had not had time to write any. Messages had been sent to him, he had wanted to send others himself. The fight had been too hot, too close, too interlarded for him to attend to anything but to support this company, clear those rocks or line that trench. His guns, he had decided to retire.

As he put it tersely: "Better six good battalions safely down the hill than a mop up in the morning."

A STUDY OF THE NEW SOUTH.

By Abner McKinley.

I suppose I might say that the first impression made upon me was the lack of what I might call the economy of land in the South. I think in this connection what is most needed in the South to-day is what Minnesota and the Northwest already have, namely, German and Irish and Scandinavian farmers.

I met small farmers, and that is why I use the expression economy of land. I do not wish to be quoted here in any political connection whatever, but it is hard to speak of this phase of the situation without speaking further of the obstacles which have thus far prevented, and are now preventing, perhaps, these small farmers from coming south.

Whenever there has been a movement of the white element toward that section the cry has come that in the field of labor they must be put side by side with the negro. If these people were treated as they are in Ohio, I do not believe that such a question would arise.

In Ohio, for example, we choose our political leaders from the mechanics in the manufacturing, and not, as in New York, from gatherings at the Waldorf or the Belmonts, at five dollars a plate. These men should be taken into the town meetings, made school and church trustees, be reckoned with as citizens, and should be made to feel that they are doing their own work, as he does in other states, there would result a diversification of agricultural products which would soon change the conditions at work in the South.

For example, there is no reason why from all sections of the country between the Piedmont region and the sea, from Portsmouth, through Atlanta and Columbia to Florida, there should not be sent up to the North vegetables of all descriptions a month or more before we get them in the North. This trucking feature has been looked after with profit in the sections of the water and eastern shore Virginia, and there is no reason why such conditions should not be put at work in sections further South.

The North is waiting for this early produce, and eager to consume it, if the South will only send it forward. But do not misunderstand me. These foreigners, if brought to the South, in order to be a bread winner contentedly each one must be treated as a citizen in some such way as I have outlined above, and so as not to bring up the suggestion that he is in any manner brought in contact or competition with the negro.

I recall now a little town in Pennsylvania, of 3,000 inhabitants, where each man tills his own ground, where each man has a bank account, and would you believe it, in that little town there are two national banks, only ten years old each, with $20,000 capital each, with a surplus of $5,000 each—paying a dividend of 6 per cent. per annum, with a combined deposit of over $1,000,000.

ABNER MCKINLEY.

I need not speak of the possibilities of sheep and a fruit culture, but I do wish to lay emphasis upon the possibilities of sheep raising. In a mountain county in Pennsylvania I could point out to you places where, under hard conditions, men have gone to work picking stones from the fields, which were used as ballast for railroads, in order that there might be grazing lands for the sheep, which are now proving gradually more and more valuable in the application of their wool.

AIMING AT ZERO.

A roulette bank at Monte Carlo starts generally with from $2,000 to $3,000, according to season, and the bank is considered broken when this sum is lost.

Very often when the bank has been broken twice in succession, the play is stopped at this particular table and the roulette taken away; proof that the administration must believe in the possibility of pure chance.

It is either the roulette or the croupier that must be out of gear, because after a certain time, fifteen or thirty minutes, he sets the ball moving and the ball rolling with the same swing, so to say, and the result is that the ball will fall time after time into the same section of the disc.

The consequences of this phenomenon have been more than once disastrous to the bank in years past, hence croupiers are changed every half hour, or each thirty coups are made by a fresh hand.

Some 800 coups are played daily at each table.

As a further proof that the hand can acquire a certain monotony may be cited the fact that at the croupiers' school, at the Condamine, there is a daily practice of "aiming at zero."

Zero is the banker's chance, says an English newspaper, winning all other stakes, except, of course, its own, and the single one which are put "en prison" tied over until the next coup; vis-a-vis zero is the croupier's constant preoccupation.

THE STRENGTH OF THE OSTRICH. The British soldiers in South Africa have had no end of fun with their ostrich friends and have made pets of these birds. A tale is told of how an English cavalryman made such a pet of an ostrich that it would follow him everywhere, and when a race had been betted his mount and the ostrich. One day he lay reading and, thinking to tease the bird, he pulled a feather. Quick as a flash up came the ostrich's head, and he put it in a crack in the Briton's skull. The ostrich kicks forward, and with fearful force. Though only from four to six feet tall the bird has great strength and its legs, which run fast, are as muscular as a fighter's arm.

The Maynard Chapter of the Natural History Society.

The twenty-sixth meeting of this society was held at Mr. Maynard's laboratory, 447 Crafts street, Friday evening, March 30th. John Saville gave the first paper of the evening, speaking of the birds he had seen from March 14 to the present date. His notes showed he had let no bird escape his attention.

The subject of iron was then taken up by Lester Avery. Iron has a large distribution; it is found in sand, clay, quartz, wood, water, garnets, etc. Some of the ores are hematite, magnetite, limonite, siderite, chromite and pyrite. Specimens were shown and interesting points about them brought out.

The time was then given over to general notes. A blue bird and her mate arriving on the 15th was seen to begin to build their nest on the 27th.

One of the members had shot a mocking bird for a shrike. These birds are easily confused. A specimen of each was shown and the difference told. The larger Redpoll and Pine Siskin had been seen out at the Arroteur during the week. Some of the members had seen caterpillars, butterflies and snakes, which are harbingers of spring.

Mr. Maynard continued on systematic zoology, speaking first of the foraminifera. To these minute animals we owe the great chalk cliffs of the world. They exhibit many beautiful forms. Another large group of one celled animals is the infusoria. If hay is chopped up and put in water and allowed to stand in the sun a little while, 100 or more of infusoria may be seen in one drop. It is higher in the scale than the aurelia, in that it has two openings where the food is taken in and rejected.

A meeting of the society will be held in the next lecture room today. All interested in nature study are invited to be present. GENEVIEVE DORAN, Sec'y.

Col. J. N. Smith on Woman Suffrage.

Col. J. N. Smith, for many years editor of the Little Rock (Ark.) Gazette, is now located in Colorado, where he is interested in mining. "Things are done somewhat differently in Colorado from what they are in Arkansas," said the colonel, "I confess that I had serious misgivings when woman suffrage was adopted in Colorado. I was afraid that the better class of women would have nothing to do with it, while the lower classes would flock to the polls. The exact reverse has proved to be the case. The good women have taken a deep interest in public affairs, and the bad ones—those who are bad as a class—can scarcely be induced to vote at all. Party lines in Colorado have been largely wiped out by woman suffrage, and that is one of the principal reasons why we have had two Democratic governors in succession, while the present mayor of Denver is also of that party. The other offices, State and municipal, are filled by men and women of every complexion of political belief. The women voters have refused to vote for candidates whose private characters are tainted. They have drawn the line on gamblers, saloon-keepers and men of similar callings. Cases are numerous where candidates have been defeated by the women's vote because it had been found that they were of immoral character."

All but one of the teachers in our public schools are women, but they have no voice in anything except the privilege of teaching our children. If it is not considered proper for women to vote in political matters, surely they can be trusted in moral measures that affect the welfare of their husbands and sons and brothers, and also in all educational organizations. Why does not some member of the Legislature, with a great big heart and brain, champion this reform? The people are ready for it, and will say a Daniel has come to judgment.—Bill Ard, in Atlanta Constitution.

The people are ready for it, and will say a Daniel has come to judgment.—Bill Ard, in Atlanta Constitution.

But one of the teachers in our public schools are women, but they have no voice in anything except the privilege of teaching our children. If it is not considered proper for women to vote in political matters, surely they can be trusted in moral measures that affect the welfare of their husbands and sons and brothers, and also in all educational organizations. Why does not some member of the Legislature, with a great big heart and brain, champion this reform? The people are ready for it, and will say a Daniel has come to judgment.—Bill Ard, in Atlanta Constitution.

How To Gain Flesh

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of SCOTT'S EMULSION. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somewhat the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food, which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking

SCOTT'S Emulsion

You will find it just as useful in summer as in winter, and if you are thriving upon it don't stop because the weather is warm.

A common tarred paper was all right for your grandfathers to use as inside lining and outside covering of their buildings, — but a fabric has been produced which, while thinner, has greater strength, toughness, and wearing qualities.

It is known as the Neponset Waterproof Red Rope Fabric. It is a splendid roof and side covering for outbuildings, and takes the place of back plaster in dwellings. It is proof against wind, water, frost, and insures warm, dry buildings, and is much cheaper than shingles or clapboards.

For inside lining Neponset Black Building Paper is very inexpensive. It is also waterproof, odorless, and clean. Hundreds of farmers are using this paper to-day, and repairing buildings at slight cost.

Nothing in the Wide World has such a record for absolutely curing female ills and kidney troubles as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Medicines that are advertised to cure everything cannot be specific for anything.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will not cure every kind of illness that may afflict men, women and children, but proof is monumental that it will and does cure all the ills peculiar to women.

This is a fact indisputable and can be verified by more than a million women.

If you are sick don't experiment, take the medicine that has the record of the largest number of cures.

When seeking Quality

BUY HERE.

Unworthy Cheapness has no place in OUR STORE

Is it Satisfactory?

That's the question that goes with every purchase here. If it's not satisfactory bring it back. And although we have never found it necessary to advertise to give your money back as a cry to deceive the unwary into buying, still should you want it you may have it without listening to all sorts of undue excuses and quibblings to avoid the same. We believe your satisfaction is our best advertisement. We are not satisfied with today's trade, we want tomorrow's, next week's, next month's, next year's. We want you to be so pleased with every purchase you make that you will come again and again. And we would remark right now that our efforts to please in connection with our first quality goods, make the return of goods or the demands for money back, very rare indeed.

at about $50. The break was discovered

CITY GOVERNMENT.

AUDITING COMMITTEE SEVERELY CRITICIZED BY ALDERMAN LYMAN—HAS NOT THOROUGHLY PERFORMED ITS DUTIES HE SAYS—BREEZE THAT COMPLETELY PHASED THE BOARD MEMBERS—MATTER LAID ON THE TABLE.

In terms that could in no way be misunderstood, Alderman Lyman took exception at last Monday evening's meeting to the manner in which the auditing committee had performed its duties, or better the neglect it had been guilty of.

At the close of a report from the auditing committee, Alderman Lyman announced the report as false from the first letter to the last. A charge of such a sensational nature coming in the midst of a meeting, most of which had been devoted to ordinary matters of routine business, took the board by surprise, and for some moments the members did not know whether to take Alderman Lyman's remark seriously or not.

The report of the committee was relative to the examination of the city's bills for March, and was to the effect that the committee had looked them over, also the accounts of the city auditor, and had found everything correct.

While the aldermen were recovering from the effects from the bomb, which had so suddenly been dropped in their midst, Alderman Lyman continued his remarks. He said it is false when the committee state in their report that they have performed their duty. Every report from this committee for the year and a half has been false, and I move that the report be referred back to the committee. As none of the members seconded his motion, Alderman Lyman again took the floor and said: In this board such a statement as I have just made is worthy of a second. During the last eighteen months there has been disbursements from the city treasury amounting to about $35,000, yet there never has been an order passed by this board appropriating one cent of it. The head of a department hands certain bills to that sum to the auditor, and he has passed them in violation of his duty.

Alderman Warren said: I was on the auditing committee last year and consider the duties as carried out by the committee a farce. I think the matter should be examined into and second Alderman Lyman's motion.

Alderman Dana here requested that some member of the committee give an explanation of the statements which had been made as he thought the matter too grave to be passed over.

In response to his question, Alderman Lyman took the floor and stated that the money had been spent on a sewer project and that as Alderman Dana was chairman of the sewer committee, he ought to have been familiar with it.

Alderman Dana in reply said before a sewer is put in an order must pass this board. Such an order always has been passed and I should like to inquire if Alderman Lyman infers that the work has been done unlawfully.

Alderman Lyman here stated that the work to which he referred was being done on Wales street. He should like to have the city clerk state if according to his records any order had ever passed the board authorizing the work which was at present in progress.

In reply City Clerk Kingsbury stated that an order had passed authorizing the work in Wales street, but not where it was going on at the present time.

Alderman Lyman said, I supposed there existed some order authorizing this work before I commenced to investigate, but as there is not, it is the duty of the chief executive to stop the work.

Alderman Fisher, chairman of the auditing committee, said it is not for the committee to take it upon themselves to go back into the records and see if certain orders have properly passed the board. The bills for the work are presented by the auditor and the committee goes over the bills and examines into their claim there. In pursuance of this duty, the committee has been doing the work entrusted to them, and believe that the wording of the report is correct in view of the authority granted the committee.

After some further explanation by the city clerk and remarks by Alderman Hutchinson and Weeks, it was decided to lay the report on the table, until orders could be prepared for the work at present under way.

Other reports were received from committees as follows:

COMMITTEE ON CLAIMS, recommending leave to withdraw on petition of W. S. Appleton that price be set on land taken for water supply purposes.

JOURNAL, recommending approval of the records to date.

The committee on licenses reported recommending granting licenses, Sixth Class Liquor to Joseph G. Kilburn, M. C. Robbins, P. J. Lacroix, Fred A. Hubbard, Ward 1; Chas. W. Kinder, Edward F. Partridge, John F. Payne, William C. Gaudet, Ward 2; George H. Ingraham, Albert

DEATH OF WM. E. SHELTON.

PROMINENT RESIDENT OF WEST NEWTON FOUND DEAD IN HIS BOSTON OFFICE.

William Everts Shelton, a leading West Newton resident and prominent in literary work, died at his office at 3 Somerset street, Boston, at noon Monday.

The end came very suddenly as he was seated at his desk, when a partner, about to approach him on a matter of business, discovered that he had passed away. Mr. Shelton had been in poor health the past few days, but nothing serious was thought of it by either himself or members of his family.

Mr. Shelton was born in Dorset, Vt., about 68 years ago. His preliminary education was received in the schools of that place. Later he entered a university at Middlebury and received the degree M. A. from that institution.

Shortly after leaving the university Mr. Shelton became a teacher. In 1865 he assumed the duties of master of the Hancock school of Boston. Later he taught at the New Britain normal school at New Britain, Conn. For a time he was engaged as instructor in the schools at North and East Abington. His last duty in this line was at the Waltham grammar school, but he relinquished his position there because of ill health.

Mr. Shelton removed from his home in Abington to Newton, and took up his residence on Highland street. For a time he had charge of a school in West Newton.

During the latter portion of his life Mr. Shelton was engaged in literary work. He occupied the position of manager of the New England Educational Journal and associate editor of the American Primary Teacher. He was prominent as a member of the New England Teachers' Association and National Teachers' Association, and held the office of president and secretary in both organizations.

The Newton Lyceum, formerly one of the strongest organizations in the city, had a firm leader in Mr. Shelton.

As a republican Mr. Shelton attained much prominence. In this city he was looked upon as a party war horse. At the caucuses he was always active and almost invariably chosen a delegate to the different conventions. His knowledge of caucus laws was clearly recognized.

A regular attendant at the West Newton Congregational church, Mr. Shelton was a devout Christian and held in high esteem by many. He is survived by a wife and a daughter.

The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon 2 o'clock from his residence on Highland street. There was a large company of sorrowing relatives and friends present, including many prominent educators and those interested in religious journal reading and prayer. There were appropriate remarks by Mr. A. E. Winslow, Rev. T. P. Prudden, pastor of the West Newton Congregational church, and Rev. H. J. Patrick, pastor emeritus of the same church. The services consisted of Scripture reading and prayer. There were appropriate remarks by Mr. A. E. Winslow. The remains were taken to the Newton cemetery for interment.

Locomotive Operator Fined.

John MacDonald, a locomotive operator, was summoned before Judge Kennedy last Saturday morning for running his machine at a rate exceeding 10 miles. He pleaded not guilty and the case was continued until Monday for a hearing. MacDonald changed his plea and had nothing to say. Chief Tarbox told the court that the man had admitted having run the locomotive at a speed over 40 miles an hour. At the time, however, he was demonstrating to a possible purchaser the swiftness of the machine. Judge Kennedy remarked that the public streets were not intended for those kind of tests, and when they were to be made some place should be selected, where the rights of the public would not be interfered with. MacDonald was fined $5.

Honors for Col. Haskell.

In case Congress authorizes the president to send a commission to China and Japan to study future trade possibilities for the United States in the East, effort will be made to have Col. Edward H. Haskell of Boston appointed as the New England member. He will be amply supported by Massachusetts men. From the governor and United States senators down to public officials of all sorts and business men of influence in any number desired. Col. Haskell is well known throughout the state for his service in the civil war, his former secretaryship of the Republican state committee, two terms in the executive council, and so on. He has been conspicuous in promoting the commercial interests of Boston and has been honored by a variety of trade associations. He is a practical student of our foreign trade, and would be as well equipped as anybody to serve on such a national commission as is talked about.

DEATH OF DAVID A. CONANT.

AT ONE TIME COMMANDER OF CHARLES WARD POST, G. A. R., NEWTON.

David A. Conant, 63, dropped dead while at work in H. H. Hunt's carpenter shop on Webster street, West Newton, about 9 Monday morning. Death, it is believed, was due to heart failure. Mr. Conant was a native of Mansfield, Conn. His mother still makes her home in that state. During the civil war he served with distinction in the 21st Connecticut volunteers. As a member of Charles Ward Post, G. A. R., of Newton, Mr. Conant was exceedingly popular. At one time he was commander of the post. During his 35 years' residence in this city Mr. Conant was held in high esteem by his friends and business associates. For many years he was a carpenter in Mr. H. H. Hunt's employ, and well known for his integrity and faithfulness. He resided with S. A. Langley at 64 Margin street, West Newton. The body was taken to Mr. Langley's residence by Lieut. Ryan and Patrolman Neagle. It was later viewed by Medical Examiner Meade.

A Horrible Outbreak.

Found Dead in the Woods.

The body of an unknown man, who had apparently taken his life by cutting his throat, was found Sunday afternoon in the woods off Washington street, Newton Lower Falls. The clothing was wet, probably from the recent rains, and the condition of the body indicated that the man had been dead for several days.

The body was found by Mr. T. E. Healey of Newton Lower Falls, who was passing through the woods as a short cut to his home on Grove street. The woods are but little frequented. The Riverside rifle range, which is used by members of Co. C, 5th regiment, and others, is a short distance beyond, but the men using the range seldom pass through the woods.

The unknown had evidently cut his throat with a white-handled razor, which was found near his body. Nothing was found about the body that would lead to his identification, except, perhaps, a postal card, on the address side of which was scrawled, "37 So. Russell St., Miss Murray, Stamford and Greene Courts." Near by was found a pasteboard box containing several cuffs and a shaving outfit with an empty razor case, and several other articles.

The suicide was apparently about 60 years old, and had a dark complexion, was about 5 feet 7 inches in height and weighed about 160 pounds. He was dressed in neat black suit, and although only a little money was found in his pockets, his appearance indicated that he was a well-to-do mechanic.

The body was removed to the Newton Hospital morgue, where it was viewed by Medical Examiner Meade.

No. 37 South Russell street is a lodging house, owned by Mrs. Murray. She said there had been several persons at the house during the past year or so who partially answered the description of the suicide, but none of them perfectly.

Remarkable Cure of Rheumatism.

KENNA, Jackson Co., W. Va.

About three years ago my wife had an attack of rheumatism which confined her to her bed for over a month and rendered her unable to walk a step without assistance, her limbs being swollen to double their normal size. Mr. S. Maddox insisted on my using his Pain-Balm. I purchased a fifty-cent bottle and used it according to the directions and the next morning she walked to breakfast without assistance in any manner, and she has not had a similar attack since. A. The Best in the World.

We believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best in the world. A few weeks ago we suffered with a severe cold, and a troublesome cough and having read their advertisements in our own and other papers we purchased a bottle to see if it would effect us. It cured us before the bottle was more than half used. It is the best medicine out for colds and coughs. The Herald, Andersonville, Ind. For sale by A. Hudson, Newton; E. F. Partridge, Newtonville; B. Billings, Newton Upper Falls; J. H. Green, Newton Highlands.

The hall was handsomely decorated with varicolored bunting, while a flag was draped across the head of the hall with a sign bearing the initials of the association. At midnight the intermission was held when a collation was served by Mr. C. Butler of the Woodland Park hotel. The floor director was W. B. Taft, first assistant floor director S. J. Reeves, second assistant floor director D. J. Foley, with a largest staff of aids.

A BURGLAR CAUGHT.

HE ENTERED A WEST NEWTON HOUSE BUT THE POLICE CAUGHT HIM.

The Newton police Tuesday night made a most important capture, in the person of a burglar, who had entered the house of R. D. Young, 33 Berkeley street, West Newton. The credit for the capture belongs to Lieut. Mitchell and Sergt. Clay.

The Young family are at present away from town, and the house has been in charge of a domestic. About 10.30 o'clock last evening, as she entered the house, she detected the odor of tobacco. She was badly frightened a minute later by seeing a man coming down the stairs with a big bundle under each arm. She ran from the house to a neighbor's, who at once notified the police.

Lieut. Mitchell, who was on duty at headquarters, by means of the police signal system, soon had every officer in the city on the lookout for the man. Sergt. Clay, with a squad of officers was sent to the scene, and men were posted to guard every street leading from the hill. As the sergeant was standing on Austin street he saw a man board the 10.33 car of the New-Boston Railway Company bound for Newton Corner.

Seeing that he would be unable to catch the car, Sergt. Clay ran to the nearest police signal box and telephoned Lieut. Mitchell that the man had boarded the car. The lieutenant decided that the burglar was bound for Boston and would probably leave the car at Nonantum square, Newton. He telephoned station 1 for the officers there to arrest the man. When the car reached the square a police officer was there to meet it and the man was arrested.

When searched at station 1, a complete set of burglar's tools was found in his possession and also a bottle of chloroform. In two big bundles which he carried was a quantity of money, silverware, furs and clothing, all valued at about $600. All this, it is supposed, was stolen from the Young residence. The burglar was taken to police headquarters at West Newton. He refused to give his name or any particulars regarding himself. He is about 26 years old, 5 feet and 11 inches in height, light complexion.

The Young house was entered by forcing a rear pantry window. Inside everything was in confusion. Quantities of clothing, silverware and other articles were thrown about the floor. The watch dog was found locked in a bathroom upstairs.

The man was identified on Wednesday by Chief Inspector Murray of Cambridge as George E. Cummings, who had served 10 years for a burglary in Brookline, and afterwards 2 years for breaking and entering schoolhouses in Cambridge. In court Wednesday Cummings was bound over in $10,000 for the Young burglary, and he pleaded guilty and a second charge was brought against him for breaking into Barber Bros. store, and he was bound over in $2,000 on this charge. Three knives, which Mr. Barber identified, were found upon him.

In the man's pocket was a memorandum book containing the names and addresses of some of Newton's wealthiest citizens, in whom he probably intended to call. His arrest within 20 minutes of the time the police were notified of the burglary, and the good work of the police is commended by all citizens. Cummings admitted that he had been out of jail only about two weeks.

St. John's Church Fair.

The fair given on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings by the ladies of St. John's Episcopal church, Newtonville, was a brilliant success in every way, and must have brought a substantial addition to the building fund. It was held in Temple hall, Newtonville.

The decorations of the hall were unique and effective, and were in many novel designs. Red was the predominating color, and quantities of great glowing poppies were mingled with sprays of green in luxurious and artistic profusion. The various tables, in charge of attractive ladies, were decorated after different designs, no two being exactly alike. Some of them had graceful wreaths, at others the poppies were scattered about with apparent carelessness, yet the effect showed that all was the result of a good deal of forethought and study.

A pretty arrangement was a large Japanese umbrella over one of the tables, and from each of its numerous points was suspended a great poppy, making a very pleasing effect. Over another table was a canopy of green boughs on which were sprinkled red poppies, which gave bright gleams of color in the same scheme of coloring was carried out in the dining room, which joined the hall, excepting that rose pink was mingled with the red of the draperies in a charming manner, and the tables were lighted with crimson or pink shaded candleabra. The young lady waitresses were dressed in white with red ribbons.

An orchestra played Tuesday evening and the program was pretty danced by these boys and girls, dressed in Louis XIV costume, under the direction of Mrs. Maud N. West. Marie Hill, Doris Hill, Louise Hill, Evelyn Wardleigh, Myra Schofield, Cecily Chase, Edith Soden, Eleanor West, Russell Kyle, Atherton Kyle, Warren Heath, Stuart Chase, Roger Proctor, Joe Downey, Clinton Kyle, Stephen Hopkins. Wednesday afternoon "The Bird's Christmas Carol" was given under the direction of Mrs. West and Miss Kyle by Lillian Buffum, Sadie Hackett, Mary Rolfe, Russell Kyle, Atherton Kyle, Nellie West, Stephen Hopkins, Clinton Kyle, Walter Bird, Mr. E. M. Hatch and Mrs. S. George. In the evening a hardy-gurdy entertainment was given by Miss Josephine Sherwood and Mr. E. M. Hatch, dressed in costume.

The following were in charge of the tables: Cake, Miss Mary W. Hackett, Miss Constance Ashenden, Mrs. Mulholland; candy, Miss Mulholland, the Misses Smith, Miss Conant, Miss Pierce, Miss Packard; flowers, Mrs. Charles Avery, Miss Avery; children's, Miss Bird, Miss Avery, Miss Carter; handkerchief and bag, Mrs. Will Rogers, Mrs. Brackett, Mrs. Frank Clark, Mrs. Hinkley, Mrs. Kyle, Mrs. Hackett; useful articles, Mrs. William McAdams, Mrs. William Jackson; grab, Mrs. Fred Horner, Miss Ramsay; food, Mrs. Frank Elms, Mrs. E. S. George, Miss Elms, Miss Cutler, Miss Langford, Mrs. Fred Cole, Miss Brown, Miss Nellie Brown, Miss Kyle; lemonade, Miss Powers, Miss Clark, Miss Daisy Ramsay; boy's, Lester Avery, Ralph Powers, Robert Blaupied; refreshments, Mrs. Harry Shaw, Mrs. J. W. Fenno, Mrs. O. F. Clark, Mrs. Frank Clark.

D. A. R.

The members of the Lucy Jackson Chapter D. A. R. of Newton were most hospitably entertained by Mrs. Samuel S. Webber and the Misses Webber at their home on Highland street, West Newton, Monday afternoon, April 16th.

The report of the recent Congress in Washington by Mrs. Richard Carter was read and followed by an unusually interesting paper by Dr. Webber, on the "Causes of the American Revolution, Compared with the Causes which led to the Emigration of the Pilgrims and Puritans." A social hour followed which was greatly enjoyed by all.

Hunnewell Club Minstrels.

The Hunnewell Club minstrels on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings were very successful, calling out a large crowd of the friends of the performers, and there was no lack of enthusiasm. The musical first part was made up of coon songs, some excellent choruses, and the usual jokes of the end men. Alderman Walter Trowbridge was an impressive looking interlocutor, the tambos were Edward M. Hallett, Henry G. Lapham and Ralph W. Angier, and the bones were held by Walter H. Barker, Guy B. Haskell and Jack Farquhar. The circle consisted of the following:

J. H. Wheeler, Jr., J. F. Wheeler, Henry G. Powning, A. J. Wellington, E. E. Elms, Eben H. Ellison, H. C. Spencer, Henry G. Foote, John K. Curtis, Oswald L. Simpson, M. Curtis Baird, C. H. Kendall, W. S. B. Cray, R. C. Cray, C. Cray, Jr., J. Dwight Howard, Paul L. Brackett, L. Baker, T. R. Edmonds, C. R. Eddy, J. H. Hartshorn, William B. Ely, Louis A. Jack, Charles F. Ellis, Ralph Potter, Ralph H. Keller, Raymond C. Cray.

After the opening chorus, entitled "Our Annual," these songs were rendered: "The Ghost of a Coon," Walter H. Barker; "Jackson's Wedding Ball," Ralph W. Angier; "I Don't Care to be Your Lady Friend no More," Henry G. Lapham; "Story of the Rose," Dr. H. C. Spencer; "All I Want is My Black Baby Back," Jack Farquhar; "I've Just Received a Telegram from Baby," Guy B. Haskell; "No Cake Comes Too High for Me," Edward M. Hallett.

The popularity of the singers was shown by the number of houses they received, and encores followed every selection. The local hits brought the house down on several occasions, and the large audiences found plenty to laugh at and applaud.

During the intermission Henry Waitt gave some phonograph selections, and the show was concluded with a cake walk, in which the following took part: Guy B. Haskell, Edward M. Hallett, W. S. B. Cray, Ralph Potter, Jack Farquhar, Frank C. Dorman, J. Dwight Howard, Clifford R. Eddy, L. Oswald Simpson, M. Curtis Baird.

Drs. Bothfield, Jewell and Mr. Hayden were the judges for the first night, and the cake was awarded to Jack Farquhar and Frank C. Dorman, although Guy Haskell and E. M. Hallett were a close second. The costumes, especially those of the ladies, were original and amusing, and the cake walk was voted the great success of the show, calling forth the most enthusiastic applause. The performance was under the direction of Mr. Harry J. Ballou. The souvenir program was a very successful feature of the show, and the amount of advertising gathered in made the program a very successful investment.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Boston, April 18.

Double sessions today and a holiday tomorrow. The net gain will be nothing this week, excepting that a half day's session of the house will be had which would have been lost had there been only an afternoon session Wednesday. The progress of this General Court is slow indeed.

Mr. Langford had an inspiration on Monday. For many weeks a bill has been pending which will provide when enacted into law, that hereafter papers filed in registries of deeds after hours shall be recorded as having been filed with the opening of the office on the following day. The writer mentioned that the Middlesex register cited his experience when city clerk of Newton on this line. On Monday Mr. Langford asked that the vote ordering this bill to a third reading be reconsidered, which motion prevailed, and then had the bill amended by a provision that the present hours be adopted until changed by the judges of the courts. This was a movement in the direction of caution, evidently.

A former resident of Newton, Dr. Louis Bell, lecturer on power transmission at the Institute of Technology, was a witness before the committee on street railways on Monday, he arguing at length that the question of admitting cars of suburban lines to joint use of the Boston Elevated Railways tracks, was not as large as some would have us think. He admitted that he moved away from Newton Centre because of the crowded character of the town, and objected with a great deal of energy to a shot-gun quarantine about Boston. He had a map of the region about Boston, and described the sections just outside the portion served by the Boston Elevated road, which had no electric cars within one mile. There were 2000 acres of such territory, he said, in Brookline, and 174 square miles outside the circle served by the Elevated. He thought "proportionate nuisance" to have to change cars at terminals like Chestnut Hill. James F. Shaw of the proposed Boston and Worcester road then produced a map with the 15, 30 and 45 minute runs from the center of Boston shown upon it, and demonstrated that 15-minute time on all the 14 lines connecting with the Elevated tracks, would mean only 84 cars an hour running into Boston, or 28 cars on each 15-minute period. He urged that all these cars could be brought into Boston without bringing a single passenger into the congested district. This was through bringing all the passengers from Brookline, Milton, Hyde Park, Dedham, Canton, and Norwood to the Dudley street station, where they could take the elevated cars; all the cars from the Worcester line, though Brookline and on the Commonwealth avenue line, with possibly a line from Waltham to Park square, one car every ten minutes; the Lexington, Arlington and Winchester cars to Bowdoin square; and the Lowell, Billerica, No. Woburn and Wakefield and Melrose cars through Somerville and Malden to Sullivan square. This is a very large question, but the fact that the Boston elevated admits thousands of cars daily to its tracks and runs as far as Scollay square, over the Lynn and Boston lines, without the slightest friction, indicates that the same could be done for Newton and Brookline if it was considered desirable. It is evident that the residents of Brookline, Newton, Wellesley, Natick and beyond have made an impression on the committee on this issue.

Ex-Senator Harwood ought to be gratified at the impression made by himself and associates on the state board of insanity on the minds of the hitherto unsympathetic committee on public charitable institutions this year. The committee has reported the bill for state care and control of the insane without a dissenting vote and without change from the form in which it was reported. The bill not only provides for the state care of the insane, but for the purchase of a tract of 2,000 acres with the buildings thereon as the site for a colony for chronic insane. Another provision is for the purchase of land and buildings for the care of the insane in cities, which is supposed to mean the Austin Farm in Roxbury or Dorchester.

It has turned out to be impossible to bring the different elements together on the bill to change the boundary line between Newton and Brookline beyond Chestnut Hill reservoir. It was considered that there was a need of this as the line now passes through the rear of dwellings in Newton, and the middle of the street, but Brookline could not spare the land, and preferred the continuance of the present status. Meanwhile the committee on cities declined to hear the matter until the city of Boston agreed to refer it to Mr. Chadwick to arbitrate. Mr. Chadwick had instructions to report reference to the next General Court if he failed, and he has done so.

The house has substituted for an adverse report of the cities committee a bill to provide that fifteen per cent of the voters in Melrose may secure a referendum on new franchises, by petition. Mr. Adams of Melrose asked this on Monday and Mr. Chadwick had the excellent good sense to advocate the action. That was enough and the house substituted the bill without further discussion.

Mr. Pillsbury has submitted to the committee on railroads, in behalf of the Mayor's committee, a substitute for the Boston and Albany lease bill, providing that the New York Central and Hudson River railroad shall within five years from the first of January of the current year, expend $5,000,000 at the rate of not less than $1,000,000 a year, in constructing wharves, docks and elevators and other improvements thereon, abutting upon deep water in Boston Harbor to be used as terminals for handling the freight of the Boston and Albany road. The bill also provides for a referendum. It may be that this referendum is desired by a majority of the people of the Commonwealth, but it does not seem to be quite clear that they ought to have it. If there could be a referendum which should take up only that portion of the community which could understand all the practical questions involved the duty of submission to the people might be clearer. As it is the proposition involves breaking up the presidential election issues during the coming campaign, so far as Massachusetts is concerned, and may not be desirable. Four years ago we had biennial elections as a state issue, in the same way. MANN.

SENATOR HOAR's speech on the imperial policy of the present administration is the most important contribution to the discussion of that question that has been delivered. It contains a thorough and impartial history of the business from the very beginning, and so many partial reports have been given out and the chief events have been so censored and twisted about that all who wish to find out the real condition of affairs will be much indebted to Senator Hoar for his masterly presentation of the matter. The speech is of great length, but a large part of it is made up of evidence taken from papers submitted to the Senate and not available to the general public.
This is very important as the imperialists
have often denied the existence of facts that are revealed by Senator Hoar. The constitutional aspects of the case are also exhaustively presented, and then Senator Hoar proceeds to his indictment of those responsible for this policy, which is not matched for force and ability in any public speech in our history. It is the duty of every citizen who wishes to have an intelligent opinion on this question to read the speech, and the fact that it was made by such a faithful Republican as Senator Hoar will cause it to be read by those who would never look at it if it had come from another man. Senator Hoar's reply to his critics is certainly crushing, and it is no wonder that it has caused dismay among the imperialistic ranks who see their evasions and perversions of facts and their puerile charges shown up in such an unanswerable fashion. The speech will rank with the great orations of Daniel Webster and other great leaders of thought in our history, and its length does not make it dry reading, as the extracts which have appeared in the daily papers are a sufficient proof. The Senator pleaded for a return to the principles of justice and truth, that have hitherto characterized our history, before the new policy of commercialism and piracy was adopted.

THE BOSTON TRANSCRIPT is authority for the statement that Senator Lodge is seriously displeased with Representative McCall, and thinks of having a resolution
censuring him passed at the State House.
Convention. Senator Lodge is however perplexed because he is afraid that the resolution might be taken as a censure on Senator Hoar, whom he does not dare to attack openly and so he "is seriously concerned at the situation." To say anything against the senior senator would be to endanger the success of McKinley in this state and to loosen Mr. Lodge's hold upon the party, and so after all Mr. McCall may escape punishment for his crime. It is also a matter that is troubling the bosses that Mr. McCall is the one man in our Congressional delegation who has made a national reputation and is therefore regarded as something of a hero, while the rest who have tamely swallowed their convictions at the demand of the bosses, have won neither honor or respect. Mr.
Lodge would be wise to leave Mr. McCall alone and his boss-ships to not so securely established that he can afford to take any chances.

THE Republican caucuses were conducted under the new law, but the small attendance and the lack of interest should not be construed as any objection to the law.
There is nothing about the national convention to arouse an interest among the people as it appears to be all decided already. Even the fact that Newton is to have a candidate for Congress did not call out the voters, as there is no opposition to Mr. Powers in Newton nor in the district, as far as can be seen.

THE starving Porto Ricans are to be treated to a great show upon the inauguration of Governor Allen, in order to recompense them to the present conditions of things. That was the way Napoleon is said to have kept the Parisians happy, during his costly wars, and in seeing the magnificent shows gotten up for them they forgot how severely they were taxed and the scarcity of food and their other sufferings. The inauguration of the first government of our first crown colonies is certainly worthy of some special celebration.

THE weather yesterday must have been like that of 125 years ago, when the patriots gathered at Concord and Lexington and the grass was high enough to hide a man.
It was the warmest 19th since 1891, with 74 in the shade. All roads led to Lexington and Concord and every one was out.

Hunnewell Club Notes.

Candle pins were the attraction on the alleys yesterday, and a large number of members tried their luck. The prize for the three best strings went to C.W. Loring, 45-47-90, with Barber second and Ryder
third.

Newton Education Association.

Prof. Edward Howard Griggs, formerly of Leland Stanford University, spoke in the hall of the High school building, Newtonville, last evening, on "The Influence of the Parent and the Teacher in the Moral Education of Children."

The speaker said the great work of our public schools was not to teach facts, but to build characters, and that what the world needed was not negatively good men, but strong positive characters. To build such must ever be the teacher's highest aim. A distinction must be drawn between moral education and ethical instruction, the latter being only a small part of the former.
Preaching at children has little effect while practising before them has a great influence. The child lives in a personal world and what he knows of right and wrong is what he sees in us and others. Teachers and parents do not realize the great influence of little things upon their children such as tone of voice, or the look on the countenance. Three things should always be borne in mind in the training of children: sincerity, absolute justice, and love.
The latter can best be shown in the behavior of love which is courtesy. Let us never treat our children in anything but a courteous manner.

In closing the speaker made a strong plea for the more unfortunate children, that they have more than ordinary patience exercised with them.

Entertainment Club.

The Entertainment Club should receive hearty congratulations on the successful ending of its second season. The three act comedy, "Tulu," by Grace Livingston Furness, which was presented in the Channing church parlors, Wednesday evening,
was the most ambitious dramatic production the club has yet given, and the character parts were taken in such a commendable manner that all should receive praise. The production was under the personal direction of Mr. Ernest W.
Wright, with Mr. Robert D. Holt as stage manager. Music during the evening was rendered by members of the Oxford Mandolin and Guitar Club of Boston, under the direction of Mr. Bickford Hornbrooke.
The cast follows:

The Duchess of Toedmag. . . Miss Ella Bowker Stearns
Lord Blazonberrie. . . Curtis B. Rhee
Jack Ryder. . . Gordon Ireland
Petrolia Seersucker. . . Mrs. Herbert Chester Stearns
Tulu Seersucker. . . Miss Laura Williams Cook
Dick Chetwyn. . . Percy Wright
Robinson. . . Robert S. Gullford
The Camera. . . A most taking character.

WAR AGAINST THE WILL OF GOD.

By Count Lyof Tolstoi.

You are at a loss to understand by what process of thinking men have become reconciled to the idea that murder is justified if committed under certain circumstances—in war, for instance. You wish to know why soldiers are taught this patent monstrosity
when they know that the Scriptures held sacred by their superiors fail to mention this important exception to the most vital of the Ten Commandments.

TOLSTOI, THE WORKER.

You argue, the Scriptures not only forbid slaughter and wrongdoing of the most varied sort but teach the Golden Rule, "Do unto others as you would have others do to you." You ask: "Is not that justification of murder a lie?
And if it is, for whose benefit is it being perpetrated?"

Yes, my friend, this war doctrine is a huge lie, a vile deception by men accustomed to live by the sweat and blood of their fellow men. To make it palatable they distort the teachings of Christ, given to the masses for their own good, but in their garbled condition, what source of human misery.

How did it happen? Very simply.
You will notice that the German Emperor frightens his burghers into silent submission by harrowing tales of what the wily Frenchman would do. His French colleague pretends to see ghosts at the mention of a Teuton, and the Czar must needs be prepared for both the French and the German. So it goes, even to the Unspeaking Turk.

The truth of the matter is that neither the German nor the French nor the Russian Government is particularly fond of going to war with other nations. What they fear most is war.
To have a valid excuse, however, for their rigid restriction of people's rights they imitate the gypsy cattle-dealer at the horse fair. Having drugged and looted his animal into a white fury, he pretends to try to tame the creature.
The same is true of our governments.

To justify their teachings that war—
a murder—is permissible, they are loud in proclaiming their adhesion to the Christian faith. But the Christian religion is in its very nature opposed to murder and violence. To overcome these seemingly grave discrepancies between their own teachings and those of Christ, what better way is there than to cripple and distort Christ's own religion, hiding its real meaning from the masses, for whom the Saviour died?

This barbaric distortion began in Russia as early as the reign of Czar Constantine, that royal monster who instead of being hung was canonized.
His priests, our priests, are the best of course, to preserve this sacred religion. They stand as an impenetrable barrier between the people and the true meaning of Christianity. Just there should come the when the people—that big-hearted, million-headed child—should discover that the government, with its taxes, its soldiers, its prisons, its false priests, is not only no such pillar of Christianity, it would like to be considered, but its bitter foe.

How can the nation remedy it? Shall it take away the lands from the rich?
If the people make an attempt, even so slight, the soldiers will come armed to their teeth. They will kill the leaders and imprison the rest. Shall the rich and factories be taken away? The same thing will happen. Shall the workmen strike? To what purpose?
The rich will hold out longer, having the soldiers at their beck and call. The workmen in this land of ours will never extricate themselves from the mesh of ignorance and poverty in which he is entangled so long as the army is against him.

But who are the soldiers that rule
the masses with an iron rod? Who are these soldiers that stand ready to shoot down the peasants if they attempt to recapture the land and forests? To murder the strikers if they persist in demanding their rights? These soldiers, my friend, are the same peasants whose land is taken away, the same strikers who band together to resist their employers, the same taxpayers who are groaning under their heavy burdens.

The question naturally arises: How can clear-headed men believe such patent lies? No matter how little educated a man may be, he cannot help knowing that Christ never sanctioned murder, but preached meekness and mercy, forgiveness and love even for foes.

The explanation is simple. Men are not victimized and deceived at the moment of entering the ranks, but are trained from childhood in an atmosphere of lies and falsehoods. Under this system people are not taught to think but to believe, not to understand but to hope. When sufficiently trained they are enlisted and compelled to swear on the Bible (though they were taught before that swearing is a sin)
to do everything which this Bible condemns—to kill people when ordered by the general, though the Bible forbids it.
You wish to know the remedy? Get free from the labyrinth of superstitions planted within you. Put in place of the false, unattainable doctrine of Christ hidden behind it. The true religion of Christ is very simple, clear and accessible, but it is clear and simple only when men have their eyes open for truth.

They had a horse and wagon and left Natick about 6 o'clock. During the drive they put in spare moments drinking, and before West Newton was reached, Moran had to be put in the rear of the wagon, to keep him from falling off. As they were passing police headquarters, Moran commenced to cry out that he had been robbed. Police Sergeant Clay, hearing the noise, placed the trio under arrest. The men were arraigned in court, Monday morning, for drunkenness, and, while their case was pending, they developed that Callahan and McDevitt had stolen about $25 from Moran. Larceny complaints were at once sworn out by Chief Tarbox, to which the men plead not guilty. They were admitted, however, that they had found the money in the bottom of the wagon, but denied having taken it from Moran. Judge Kennedy found them guilty and Callahan and McDevitt were fined $20 each for larceny and in charge of drunkenness. Callahan and McDevitt were fined $10 apiece and Moran $5.

Republican Caucuses.

There was no marked display of enthusiasm at the republican caucuses, Wednesday evening, yet it is generally understood that the state delegations favor the candidacy of McKinley and Long, and the congressional delegates prefer Mr. Samuel J. Powers of this city as congressman from the 11th district.

Caucuses were held in the different voting booths under the provisions of the Boston caucus act, which was adopted by Newton republicans last October and became operative for the first time that evening. The total attendance throughout the city did not exceed 130.

In Ward 1 the congressional delegates were said to be favorable to Mr. Samuel L. Powers, and such was the case in Ward 7. Mr. Powers' own ward, however, the two caucuses presented resolutions endorsing Secretary of the Navy Long for the vice presidency. The other wards were not so emphatic, and it is understood the sentiments were more divided.

The delegates:

Ward 1—Congressional, John T. Langford, E. O. Childs, John T. Lodge, state, J. T. Lodge, E. O. Childs and John T. Langford.

Ward 2—Congressional, W. S. Slocum, N. H. Chadwick, C. D. Cabot, F. L. Nagle; state, J. M. Stieken, A. F. Carter, J. F. Lathrop and C. E. Brundage.

Ward 3—Congressional, G. H. Bond, S. W. Manning, J. B. Langley, G. P. Bullard; state, Charles E. Hatfield, Henry M. Davis, A. Stuart Pratt and John A. Potter.

Lasell Notes.

The school reopened on Wednesday, at noon, after the Easter vacation of a week.

Mr. Bragdon went by invitation with a party of the students, during the vacation, to see the burlesque, Cyrano de Bergerac, at the Fremont. Another party saw "Miss Hobbs," at the Hollis.

On Sunday a party from the seminary attended the services at Trinity church, Boston, and another those of Arlington street church and others still at Grace church, Newton.

On Thursday evening Mr. Louis C. Stanton gave an instructive lecture on the subject, "The Building of a Symphony." Mr. Stanton has lectured at Lasell before on various musical subjects and is much liked. The second lecture on this theme, the Symphony, is to be given on Thursday evening, April 26, at 7:30. Friends are welcome.

On Wednesday morning the Washington party of twenty-three returned to Lasell more than satisfied with their delightful trip to our beautiful capital city. Mr. W. T. Shepherd, the conductor of the party, planned so well the disposal of their time while in Washington that no one of the most notable sights of that city was missed and every day was full of the keenest pleasure and interest. The Treasury building, the Post Office, Patent Office, Congressional library, Smithsonian institute, Corcoran Art gallery, Washington monument, Army and Navy department and the Capitol were visited, as also Mr. Vernon and Arlington. Besides this there were charming drives around the city, and a visit to the White House, during which President McKinley received the party. During the trip the party spent time at the National Academy of Sciences, the United States mint, and an especially congenial party, made every part of this excursion most memorably pleasant.

LOVE AND MARRIAGE IN SOCIETY.

By Mrs. Russell Sage.

The income necessary for a young couple starting out in life together in New York and wishing to continue in the fashionable set is altogether relative. The lowest possible figure is $5,000 a year—but it could be done for that by careful expenditure and the wholesale and wholesale disregard of opera boxes, theatre tickets, carriages, etc.

I am acquainted with a very charming woman who is in a distinctly fashionable clique, but lives on the extreme west side of the city because she can't afford to live in the vicinity of Fifth avenue. She manages to dress well, keep up a good appearance and a swell circle of friends on an amount even less than that named above. She rarely entertains, however, as she resides in rather a small apartment, but she and her husband are invited to everything worth attending simply because she is so brilliant and clever and entertains by her wit and originality those who invite her. In this way she more than repays their hospitality. This couple received no less than twenty invitations for Thanksgiving Day.

Many young men with rich fathers make the mistake of depending upon them for their future support, and for that reason make no effort to obtain employment for themselves. I have a case of this sort in mind—that of a young man who had a wealthy father and never considered the possibility of misfortune overtaking him. This young man was in love with a rich girl, but she did not care for him, and eventually he married a woman with no money at all; but as he had plenty from his father it didn't matter. Financial disaster overtook him, however, and in consequence the son became penniless. Then it was that the rich girl whom he had formerly loved, showed her noble nature. Unknown to any one she gave the young couple financial assistance until the youthful husband obtained employment.

Much stress is often laid upon the fact that wealthy men are on the lookout for wealthy husbands for their daughters. This is not so. As a rule a father prefers to see his daughter married to a good, honorable, ambitious young man who has no fortune, rather than to an idle, fashionable fop who cares for nothing in life but clubs, clothes and a competency.

Poor young men should not allow false pride to stand in the way of their accepting the love of a rich girl, for a man has no fortune if he is but a stepping stone to his goal.

Sometimes, however, the thing doesn't work out so well. I remember distinctly the case of a young man who was very promising architect—I expected great things of him. He married a very wealthy girl. Well, she simply ruined him—carted him off to Europe, on the go all the time. If he attempted to settle down to work she pouted, and sulked until he quit, and altogether she smothered every spark of ambition there was in him. Now he is a non-entity—and all because he married a rich girl. What do you think of a woman like that? For it was all her fault. The great trouble in estimating the cost of living in New York is found in the immense number of overlooked expenses that are continually cropping up in the way of concerts, fairs, charity entertainments, etc. A person of any social standing whatever is supposed to subscribe to all these affairs, while people of a large means are simply swamped with tickets of all sorts.

In talking to my physician the other day, I questioned him concerning the reported illness of Mrs. H.

"I understand she has nervous prostration," I remarked.

"No, madam," he made reply; "it's nervous prosperity."

And that's what ails half the society women of the day. One's expenses in the city may be easily regulated to one's income. Now, old Commodore Vanderbilt told Mr. Sage that it didn't cost him $10,000 a year to live when he was worth thirty or seventy millions. He had simple tastes, and his tastes remained the same to the day he died.

In regard to the marriage of young people in ordinary circumstances, I have a story in mind of a young man who was employed in Mr. Sage's office at a salary of $50 a month. He was nineteen years of age and fell in love. He came to me and asked me to intercede with Mr. Sage, that he might receive an increase of salary and thus be enabled to marry. I told him I would do nothing of the sort until he was twenty-one and old enough to vote—when, perhaps, he would be old enough to marry. At that time I considered him worse than a goose; he was a mere gosling. When he was twenty-one Mr. Sage gave him the desired increase and he married. In about a year's time he came to my husband with the news that a baby had been born to his wife and naturally there were additional expenses. Mr. Sage again increased his salary. The following year he again appeared with news of another arrival and an itemized list of expenses he had been forced to meet. Among the items was $24 for shortening the first baby's dress.

Ah! if young people would only look at the practical side of matrimony! It is not all romance. Much of it is prosaic bread and butter. But love, naughty spirit! works much mischief. Even our Great Dewey lost his head and a little of his glory in the delirium of love!

SHALL SUNDAY BE "LORD'S DAY."

By Martinelli, Delegate Apostolic to the United States.

The Latin races have used the word "Dominico," or Day of the Lord, to designate the first day of the week since the reign of Pope Sylvester I, who ruled the Church from A. D. 314 to 337. From the beginning we find that all those people who derive their language from the Latin—the French, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese—do not honor a heathen god in the specific title which they give to the day which we call holy, but they call it, as we do in ecclesiastical Latin, "Lord's Day," "Dominico"—in Spanish, Italian and Portuguese, and "Dimanche" in French.

The change which the Christian Church made from the Sabbath to Sunday is too well known to need discussion. The early followers of Christ chose in rather a small apartment, but she and her husband are invited to everything worth attending simply because she is so brilliant and clever and entertains by her wit and originality those who invite her. In this way she more than repays their hospitality. This couple received no less than twenty invitations for Thanksgiving Day.

MARTINELLI.

The teachings of the early fathers tell us that the Holy Ghost descended upon the disciples on Whit Sunday or Pentecost, and this constitutes another reason for the change. The observance of the Sunday or day of rest does not emanate from the natural law, which would indeed require us to worship the author of nature during parts of every day rather than during a whole day of every week.

There is no divine law which commands us to commemorate Sunday. The observance is purely of ecclesiastical origin, dating, however, from the time of the Apostles. But as we have no trace of the Sabbath being observed among the Hebrews before the time of Moses we need not question the authority of the Apostles to sanctify Sunday and set it apart as the day on which we honor the resurrection of the Son of God.

The Anglo-Saxon word Sunday is the name given to honor the Sun, the divinity considered the most powerful in heathen mythology. The names of the other days of the week are chosen to honor some other divinity, as Monday, Luna, the moon; Tuesday, Mars, the god of war; Wednesday, Woden, or Mercury; Thursday, or Thorday, the day on which Jupiter was remembered; Friday was dedicated to Venus, and Saturday to Saturn, the father of Jupiter and Neptune.

I believe that all Christian people should proclaim their belief in the Son of God by honoring His name in the day which they have chosen to consecrate to Him. This great country is a Christian country, and by adopting the word "Lord's Day" or "Sunday" to honor the Word Incarnate it will bear witness of the truth. In the Latin we used to say "Dies de Dominus," but this was considered too cumbersome for ordinary use, so the name has become simply Dominico.

There will be some means of simplifying the English word to meet the popular requirements. We follow the New Testament as our guide and we will find therein many reasons for calling the first day of the week the "Lord's Day." Thus, there is but one passage in the New Testament in which we find the first day mentioned specifically as the Lord's Day, namely, in the Apoc., 1, 10. In Acts xx, 7, we are told that St. Paul abode seven days at Troas, and that on the first day of the week the disciples came together to break bread. We have every reason, both from revelation and from tradition, to consecrate the first day of the week to the Son of God, and to name it for Him is consistently and religiously to put in practice the theory of our belief. I am interested in this discussion, and hope that it will bear good fruits among the believers in Christ in this country.

A NEW SOCIAL FAD.

When the Duchess of Marlborough recently acknowledged receipt of a formal dinner invitation by a personally typewritten note, English aristocracy felt a distinct shock and murmured, "How horrid! How American!" Her example, though, has found followers on both sides of the water and the modern note has many skillful operators of the keyboard, who have practically broken down conventionalities formerly rigid lines and introduced the little machine into nearly all forms of social correspondence.

Many ladies of prominence personally use the typewriter and are proud of their accomplishment in this direction. Among its English devotees are Mrs. Sidney Bate and Lady Colville, while in New York its vogue is established by no less authority than Mrs. H. P. Whitney. The fad is spreading.

USEFUL CHEESECLOTH.

The uses of cheesecloth are infinite. One of its greatest advantages is its cheapness. It is so cheap that having served its purpose it may be thrown away. It is excellent as a strainer—better for jellies than the old-time flannel bag—and it has no equal as a duster or cleaning cloth.

A GHOSTLY JEWEL.

A strange and curious personal ornament is now owned by a Chicago merchant. It is a necklace composed of three rows of human eyes in a state of perfect preservation, polished, and set in a costly mounting of virgin gold. The eyes were taken from the mummies in the burial places of the Incas in Peru. Although it is said nothing can equal the grace and softness of this ghostly ornament, so far but a single young woman has had the temerity to wear it.

This type of ornament is very much in vogue in all completely savage tribes, as, for instance, the Zulus and the Bushmen, who, when they suffer the misfortune of losing their better halves, deprive the dead of those charming weapons, their eyes. But savage men are not alone in their fondness for human eyes as ornaments.

WOMAN AND HER ACHIEVEMENTS.

By Julia Ward Howe.

The changes in the position of women which this century has witnessed appear to those who take note of them little less than miraculous. This change has been brought about in great part by women themselves, leaders of the sex within the sex, women who have keenly felt the disabilities imposed upon them by law and custom, and who have valiantly striven to win for themselves and their fellows the outlook of a larger liberty and the inspiration of a loftier interpretation of womanly duty.

I was a girl in my teens when Frances Wright came to this country to speak in public in behalf of "Woman's Rights." The theme of her new and unpopular at that time, was not more odious to the general public than the agency which brought it forward. "A woman speak in public? How improper! How wholly unfeminine!"

A few years later this voice was multiplied. Then and there rose up women who dared to claim the public attention on the platform, and who succeeded in winning it. Ernestine L. Moss, Lucretia Mott, Mrs. Stanton, Miss Anthony and Anna Dickinson became known as able and eloquent speakers. Abby Kelly Foster, the Grimké sisters and May Stone woke the old echoes of New England to a new and brave music. Not without difficulty, not without perseverance were the triumphs of popular oratory won by the sex. No one has established herself so solidly on this field than Mary A. Livermore, who, a medal scholar of a Boston public school, sought admittance to Harvard College more than forty years ago, and was warded off by the authorities as a dangerous type. More fortunate, Lucy Stone put her pennies together and obtained a deck passage to Cincinnati and a place among the pupils of Oberlin College, where she presided over the class and read her own thesis at her graduation, and, sturdy in her determination to speak for herself, she refused to allow it to be read at all.

In the early part of the nineteenth century the bread-winning resources of women of the middle or higher classes were limited to needlework, trading or taking boarders. The remuneration commanded by these and kindred services was meagre and uncertain, and offered for the greater number little more than the keeping together of body and soul. At the period of which I speak even women of fortune possessed nothing individually after their marriage. The ring which promised to endow them with all the bridegroom's earthly goods really endowed him with all that belonged to them, even to the clothes that they wore. Their children were not their own. The father could dispose of them as he might see fit. Under these circumstances an unborn child might be, and often was, willed away from its mother, who thus could only look forward to the pangs of maternity, not the dear companionship which is their sacred and natural reward.

Pew achievements in our century appear more wonderful in retrospect than that of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, in writing "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The matter of her story was not new. The abuses of child sale, which she chronicled, were familiar to many in the North as well as in the South. The touch of genius so illumined and combined the materials of this simple narrative that the heart of the nation rose up to protest against the outrageous wrong or slavery.

The proposal to render women eligible for service on the School Board was met at first with derision and with serious disapproval. The late Abby W. May had thought to do so, and the early ordinance of this measure, and the work which finally resulted in its adoption had its first beginning in the parlors of the New England Women's Club, where especial meetings were held in its infancy. The extension of the school suffrage to women followed, after much work on the part of men and of women. Col. T. W. Higginson, Lucy Stone and Mrs. Livermore all united in pressing this important matter upon the notice of the public. A number of States have conceded so much of the franchise to their women.

A notable gain in the progress of the century has been the employment of women in the care and discipline of criminals of their own sex. Massachusetts possesses a prison for women which is a model institution of its kind. The rule of its late superintendent, Mrs. Ellen C. Johnson, has been one of power and beneficence united.

Mrs. Josephine E. Butler led a forerun hope to attain an infamous social ordinance and prevailed simply through the energy and persistence with which she appealed to the public sense of justice and of decency. Florence Nightingale, in her very girlhood conceived the plan of an educational ministry for the needs of sick and wounded. Resolved to make this the leading study of her life, the war of the Crimea found her prepared to bring into the field an army of trained nurses, and to make her name a glory for her country and for the world. The horrors of the war were greatly mitigated by her labors and those of her assistants, and her example encouraged our own brave women when their turn came to follow in the wake of their soldiers with ready aid and comfort.

Some thirty or more years ago two women's clubs were started, almost simultaneously, one in Boston and one in New York. This novel departure was regarded with much suspicion and fear of evil consequences, but the women who took part in it so made good their cause that kindred associations gradually sprang up and multiplied. And now a general federation of women's clubs stands over this whole country and binds together its wide-apart regions in a fellowship fruitful of good will and good deeds.

JOSEPH LOOK ON JINGOES.

HE ASSAILED IMPERIALISM IN ENGLAND AND THE UNITED STATES.

Rev. Joseph Cook spoke with his old fervor at Berkeley Temple, Sunday afternoon, on "Christian and Cormorant Imperialism."

There was no jingoism in his speech. He criticized Joseph Chamberlain a little, hit Cecil Rhodes very hard, and hurled some very strong orthodox language at jingoes in general. He said that the English lion of such men as Chamberlain and Rhodes was a whining jackal—a thief and a robber—while the real English lion, the lion of such men as Bright and Gladstone and Cobden and Cromwell, was a noble animal.

He said that this whining jackal found its prototype in America in the commercial cormorant, which was not by any means the eagle of the republic.

He does not believe the United States has any right to buy people, nor take them into the government of the country without their consent; but he felt that the United States would come to its senses before long in this matter.

"When you take a region like the Philippines it is not expansion, it is accretion. You can enlarge a tree by nailing slats around it, but that does not enlarge its growth."

"We put a tariff on Puerto Rico to pay her expenses—we are not to treat her as sugar growers alike. Hawaii is a case of expansion beyond seas that is a sort of engrained expansion. It may make a state like some southern states full of southern notions and a little capital."

"Cuba wants to take one breath of freedom. I have no objection. You cannot find white republics in the tropics. White men will not move to the tropics permanently. The tropics belong to the colored races. I believe with James Russell Lowell that the declaration of independence was meant for all the zones of the world."

"But in America there are two birds—the American eagle with his vast power to see from great heights and look at the sun, and with his strong talons capable of self-defense; then there is the American cormorant, that bird which is the glut of the sea, an enormous eater, always wanting more; he represents conscienceless commerce. There is a greed fostered by our immense commercial opportunities which is cruel."

"The Christian imperialists of England and the United States may always clasp hands, but I do not like this sympathy between the cormorant and the jackal. That is what I call Christian imperialism," but I am not a turncoat American nor a cormorant American. My contention is that Americans cannot become cormorants without becoming turncoats."

"The Philippine soldier has proved himself to be brave, bright and alert—we have not caught Aguinaldo yet, but he deserves respect."

"Europe tells us that until 10 years ago she did not believe we would ever hold vassals. It isn't in us to rule foreign peoples and we have no right to. It isn't in us to do it, and we must not let the jackal jingo press egg us on. Taxation without representation is tyranny, a proposition that is yet revered in America."

"Such noble work as Harvard College is about to do this summer for the Cuban teachers is what we want to do. Teach them. That is what I call Christian imperialism. Cuba will come in of her own accord, one of these days, when the Cubans are educated."

"I, like Senator Hoar, would be glad of some arrangement with the Philippines such as we have with Cuba. We must make Christian imperialism supersede cormorant imperialism. Just as the lion triumphed over the jackal again and again, so we must triumph over the cormorant."

"Marie, after we are married what course shall you pursue to retain my love?" "Oh, Harry, I shall spend an awful lot of money on the things I look just as pretty as I can."—Chicago Record.

"We'll send you these circulars early to-morrow." "Can't you print them and deliver them today?" "Goodness, yes; we'll send them to you yesterday if you say so."—Chicago Record.

When egotists marry there is a fair chance that one of them will get over it.—Puck.

is a food medicine for the baby that is thin and not well nourished and for the mother whose milk does not nourish the baby.

It is equally good for the boy or girl who is thin and pale and not well nourished by their food; also for the anemic or consumptive adult that is losing flesh and strength.

Should be taken in summer as well as winter.

The April number of Current History (Vol. 10, No. 2) fully maintains the standard of comprehensiveness and literary quality which has caused this unique publication to be recognized during the past ten years as a most satisfactory and reliable digest of contemporary history. It is beautifully printed and abounds in useful maps and portraits. The record covers in the usual lucid and judicious way all the important incidents of the preceding month. The recent change from quarterly to monthly form is more than justified by the increased interest and freshness of the content. Some such summary of the month's news—covering the whole ground in concise form and readable style, gathering up the threads lost in the course of ordinary newspaper reading, and valuable as a permanent work of reference, which one can turn to in a moment to learn all essential facts—is an absolute necessity to any anxious to keep himself and family in touch with the life of the world. The low price of the publication—now reduced from 40 cents to 15 cents a number—puts it within the reach of all. State Telephone Supervision.

Springfield Republican.

—Somebody is always opposing state supervision of the telephone companies, and just now it appears to be the new companies that desire to do business in Massachusetts, although some of the promoters of state regulation are not sure that the New England telephone company, is not secretly opposing all legislation, as before. The Newburyport News calls the report of the committee on manufactures against state supervision a "legislative vagary," and so it was. It was quite in order for the House to substitute the bill for the report, as was done. Now let state supervision be insisted upon. We need it more than ever now that Springfield and other places are ready to permit expensive and wasteful rivalry in the telephone business.

GOOD INFLUENCE OF THE STAGE WOMAN.

By David Belasco.

The bad woman of the modern drama is a good influence in the modern world. I say this fearlessly because I know something of what she has done. The good woman has had the center of the stage for many years. We have all suffered with her sufferings and rejoiced in her happiness, but have we been greatly improved by the spectacle of her joy or of her misery? I think not.

We take the good woman for granted. She has been born good. All her surroundings have been good. If she were bad it would be monstrous, and we should hate her. But being good, we regard her goodness as a matter of course. It does not impress us deeply. It is commonplace.

The bad woman is different. She interests us powerfully, because we are unaccustomed to her. We look upon the good woman as we might on a well-known lesson, or on the sun, or upon our sisters. She has been our daily companion all our lives.

But the bad woman is something novel. I do not mean to say that bad women are so few in daily life, but we do not always know that they are bad. The good woman confides in us. She tells us of her goodness. But the bad woman is reticent. She has all the fascination of a mystery.

The bad woman has worn a mask for many centuries, which has concealed her good qualities as well as her ones. In removing this mask the modern drama has done what was a double service. It has shown her critics that the bad woman is not all bad, and it has shown her possible imitators that the life they have contemplated is one of misery.

Under the glare of the stage lights the bad woman is shown as she really is, as her critics do not know her, as her daily associates do not know her, as no one on this earth knows her except her God and herself, and perhaps in a lifetime, one sympathetic friend—or two. I say that this is an impressive spectacle—one not to be lightly cried down, but to be considered and remembered and discussed as one of the most pitiful conditions which confront the world to-day.

We learn from it, perhaps, that the bad woman was born bad; that her childhood was one which stilled every good impulse in her; that she never could have been good, and yet in that woman's life comes a day when she would give her heart's blood—when she would go down into hell, if by so doing she could gain the right for even one day to call herself pure.

What a spectacle, what a sublime warning, what a mountainous example it is to the world! How vast and terrible it is beside the simple notion of a good life! I myself have seen lost women leave the theatre after an hour of Camille or Zaza with every atom of their better nature in revolt against the life they lead. Perhaps the impulse passed. Perhaps their environment was too strong, and they fell back once more into the old life. But I say that for only a day, an hour, a moment, the modern drama brings pure emotions to those worn hearts, it has not been in vain, and if it so deeply affects such as they, how much more powerful must be its influence upon better women who, perhaps at the moment, are struggling against the temptation to do wrong.

There is where the bad woman of the modern drama exercises her influence for good, and the good woman, herself, possesses no power which will even compare with it. It is well, I believe, that the world should not forget the misery which goes with an evil life, nor the forgiveness which it extends to the penitent, and yet it is for preaching these truths that the modern drama is condemned. The gentlemen of the pulpit cry out upon us that the bad woman should have no place in poetry, in literature, no place upon the stage, yet they give the lie to their teaching by bestowing upon her a place in the churches, for Mary Magdalene was a bad woman and the story of her repentance is preached from every pulpit in Christendom. When the women of a Christian country cry out, as they do, that fallen women cannot rise again, they give the lie to Christ himself, who said to the mob, "Let him who is without sin among you cast the first stone," and then to the woman, "Go and sin no more!"

AMERICAN HORSES IN RUSSIA. (By W. H. Holloway Consul-General at St. Petersburg.)

A few years ago American horses could start in all races in Russia, but they were so much faster than the Russian horses that they were barred from the big races; but as a majority of Russian horsemen now own American horses, and more are constantly being bought, there is a growing sentiment in favor of their being permitted to start in all races except those intended exclusively for Russian horses. At one time it was noted with satisfaction that American horses had been purchased for the Russian imperial studs, but recently the Russian horse having American blood has been removed from these studs. Disinterested persons declare this to be short-sighted policy, and say the Americans do not care what nationality a horse is provided he is fast; and notwithstanding American horses are the best trotters in the world, there will be a big demand in the United States in the near future for Russian mares, because after interbreeding the different families for so many years Americans will be glad to get an outcross with trotting blood and muscle.

Horses are driven at a furious rate even through the principal streets of St. Petersburg, there being no limit to speed in the city limits, the centre of the streets, next to the street-car tracks, being reserved for the fast driving. During the winter months single double and three-horse abreast sleighs dash along the streets at three-and-a-half and four-minute gits.

A Western Republican View.

(From the Chicago Evening Post, rep.)

In truth, the bill has been jammed through in defiance and contempt for the people, in order to "vindicate" the organizations of the dominant party in the two houses. They had blundered, and lacked the courage to rectify their fatal error. Selfishness and pride triumphed over principle and enlightened consideration of the party's real interests. The Porto Rican act is un-republican and un-American. It not only levies a tariff upon an American possession, but it denies citizenship to the Porto Ricans, mocks them by "deeming" them citizens of Porto Rico (which is not a state and can have no citizens) and gives them carpet-bag and alien rule by providing that a majority of the senate shall be Americans.

The civil provisions of the Foraker bill are ill-conceived, ill digested and a farrago of nonsense. If House never even considered them. The question could not safely be reopened, for the gain by the free traders of a week's time would have wiped out the miserable majority of eight and insured the success of reason in principle. The people will yet be heard from. The day of reckoning is nigh.

Spreads Like Wildfire.

When things are "the best" they become "the best selling." Abraham Hare, a leading druggist, of Belleville, O., writes: "Electric Bitters are the best selling Bitters I have handled in 20 years. You know why? Most diseases begin in disorders of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, blood and nerves. Electric Bitters tones up the stomach, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves, hence cures multitudes of maladies. It builds up the entire system. Puts new life and vigor into any weak, sickly, run-down man or woman. Price 50 cents. Sold by all Druggists."

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

TREMONT THEATRE—"Cyrano de Bergerac" In comic opera garb with Francis Wilson as the famous long-nosed poet-hero, has set a lively pace for the musical season in Boston. Big audiences are thronging the Tremont Theatre to enjoy, laugh over and applaud the popular comedian's performance, and it is the universal opinion that in no characterization he has ever offered playgoers has he met with greater success. As for the opera itself, the lovely melodies, stirring marches, lively dances and rousing choruses composed by Victor Herbert, Harry B. Smith's bright and witty lines and flowing lyrics, and the splendid costumes and picturesque scenic setting, combine in a harmonious whole that delights the ear, the eye and the intelligence of all who see and hear it. Mr. Wilson's support was never stronger than in this season, his company comprising 70 people. Pauline Hall has added to her well-earned reputation by her personation of Christian, the guileless youth, utilized by Cyrano to make love to Roxane by proxy, and the last named character is capably sustained by Lulu Glaser. Wm. Boderville, the admirable Captain Javalot, and in brief the entire cast is fully equal to all demands made upon it, while the chorus is as able, vocally, as it is large.

Mrs. Brooks: "John, do you think Mr. Joblitz is going to marry our daughter?" Mr. Brooks: "Yes; if he doesn't look sharp."—Puck.

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

COMPROMISE REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE ADOPTED AND THE STUDY OF LATIN IN THE EIGHTH GRADE WILL BE REDUCED ONE-HALF—WOMEN'S CLUBS WILL HAVE CHARGE OF RICE AND JACKSON SCHOOL BUILDINGS FOR SUMMER SCHOOLS—OTHER INTERESTING BUSINESS.

Chairman Benner called the board to order Wednesday evening at 7.52. There was only one absentee, Rev. Dr. Hamilton of Ward 1.

City Treasurer Banlett notified the board that the amount of dog tax received up to Feb. 1 was $2,549.94.

An order granting Clara H. Thompson, an assistant at the Franklin school, West Newton, a leave of absence from May 1, was referred to the finance committee.

Superintendent Field in his report said there had been no changes in the personnel of the teaching force during the past month. The number of those pupils and teachers absent on account of illness continued to remain unusually large. At the opening of the schools after the April holidays eight teachers were unable to attend on account of illness. Nothing was done to relieve the crowded condition at the Williams school and there was assurance that the new Bigelow building would be ready for occupancy in the fall.

The committee on text books and courses of study reported recommending that the amount of time devoted to Latin in the eighth grade be reduced one-half, and the amount of work expected of the pupil be reduced accordingly.

Mr. Huntington said he thought the committee was in deep water. Newton schools were quite in advance of those of many other cities in the introduction of Latin in grammar grades. The proposition offered by the committee he looked upon as a compromise, but considered it a good one. Educators agreed that the earlier the study of foreign languages was begun the better for the pupil. There was weakness in the present system in view of the fact that pupils began Latin before they had mastered the English language. Mr. Huntington continued pointing out where the study of Latin and English grammar could be successfully combined.

Mr. Gorham of Ward 3 didn't see the occasion of a compromise. Other cities and their doing should have no effect on Newton in this regard. He had heard Latin in the eighth grade was an experiment. It was an experiment, one that had not been tried out. He thought it certainly be tried out.

Then discussion at this point became almost informal, there being a difference of opinion regarding the time that Latin was first introduced. It was quite agreed that the step was taken by the school board about 5 years ago.

Capt. Howard of Ward 3 thought there was such a thing as overworking the curriculum. This had been the cry of many, and in his mind the amount of Latin in the eighth grade could be beneficially reduced, thus relieving the overwork.

Mr. Huntington said Mr. Adams of the High school favored Latin in the eighth grade. Later a letter to this effect from Mr. Adams addressed to the superintendent was read.

Mr. Luitwiler said he had asked for the committee's investigation of the subject, because Newton Highlands school had demonstrated with him, saying there was too much expected of each pupil. The line of study he and his constituents thought should be just as much for an embryo business man as an embryo college graduate.

Mr. Gorham believed that the high standard attained by the Newton schools should not be lowered. He thought that a pupil should have all the training in the public schools necessary for a college course. He was of the opinion that a pupil ought to be so instructed as to be ready to enter the college from the High school, and no tutoring should be demanded.

Mr. Luitwiler's amendment that Latin be eliminated from the eighth grade was seconded by Mr. Rand, whose opinion was that it was too early in the pupil's life for a proper decision in the matter to be made by either the pupil or his parents.

When called upon Mr. Field said his sentiments were those of the committee. Latin was not taught in the grammar schools of Cambridge, Hartford or Springfield. He intimated that Newton pupils read more Latin than colleges required, and believed the committee's report to be for the best interests of the pupils. Mr. Luitwiler's amendment was not seconded and the committee's report was accepted.

The finance committee reported the April department expenses to have been $18,617, and an order covering this amount was later adopted.

The committee appointed to consider the petition of the Newton Centre Women's Club asking for the use of the basement and first floor of the Rice school building, in which to conduct a summer school during July and August reported with several recommendations. It was the committee's belief that the use of the building for a school apparatus at present located in the Hyde building at Newton Highlands, that the building should be insured for at least $30,000 during the time of its occupancy by the Newton Centre Women's Club, and all apparatus, and further that in granting this the city would be relieved of all expense.

Mr. Dewey thought the schools were closed during the summer for the purpose of giving the pupils a rest. He did not consider such schools a necessity. He believed that the board would be establishing a bad precedent by granting the request of the Newton Centre organization. If they women desire the schools for cooking why that only a fad," added Mr. Dewey. He desired to have the subject laid on the table.

Mr. Hornbroke expressed a hope that such action as proposed by Mr. Dewey would not be taken. He commended the spirit of the Newton Centre Women's Club, which he thought should be properly recognized by the school board.

Mr. Howes was in favor of granting the request and said that the Social Science Club intended asking a similar request of the school board. Mr. Howes had with him a communication from the latter club. There was at this point some discussion regarding the insurance provision imposed. Mr. Howes championed it and moved that the permit be granted exclusive of insurance clause.

Mr. Rand told of the need of the summer school, what interest the movement had provoked in Newton Centre and how many had requested tuition in the different branches. The numbers included nearly 200.

Mr. Bacon said the committee of ladies that had met the sub-committee of the school board had quite agreed to the insurance, realizing the necessity of it.

Mr. Huntington said that at the time the women of Newton Centre had been turned down (2 years ago), on their petition that cooking be introduced in the public schools, he as a member of the committee on text books and courses of study had recommended leave to withdraw, suggesting at the same time that the women's clubs take the matter in hand and defray the expenses. At this time Mr. Huntington felt he should be the very member to champion the cause and he did so most heartily.

A motion to relieve the women's clubs from the insurance provision was carried, consequently there will be no insurance of the Rice or of the Jackson building.

It was stated during further discussion that the buildings would be turned over to the regular janitors in sufficient time for the annual cleaning prior to the opening in September.

There was a suspension of the rules that the same permission might be granted the Social Science Club under the same restrictions. Mr. Bacon rattled off the names of the women of Newton Centre who had been turned down, its on the school board and not on the mayor.

Mr. Howes said that he was sure school buildings had been given over for other purposes, particularly dancing, and he believed there had been as much "hot stuff" as cooking would promise.

It was voted to request the city government to attend to the matter of increased accommodations at the Williams school, Auburndale.

Mr. Bailey of the board of aldermen explained that the matter must come before the board in some definite form. It had been acted upon by the 1899 board, which appropriated $20,000 and Mayor Wilson had vetoed the order at 2.55 o'clock on Inauguration Day, thus disposing of the matter. Mr. Bailey suggested another hearing before the new board and this suggestion will undoubtedly be acted upon.

Citizens of Newton Upper Falls asked that the board investigate the question of new buildings in that district. One building has been in use 45 years and the other 32 years. The subject was referred to the committee on school houses.

The finance committee said through its chairman, Mr. Dewey, that it would be ready to report on the question of supplying each school building with a piano, next month.

Remarkable Cure of Rheumatism.

KENNA, Jackson Co., W. Va.

About three years ago my wife had an attack of rheumatism which confined her to her bed for over a month and rendered her unable to walk a step without assistance, her limbs being swollen to double their normal size. Mr. S. Maddox insisted on my using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I purchased a fifty-cent bottle and used it according to the directions and the next morning she walked to breakfast without assistance in any manner, and she has not had a similar attack since.—A. Pleaded Guilty to Bigamy Charge.

William Kenyon, whose home is in Newton Upper Falls, and who is employed as a silk dresser in one of the mills at that place pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy Saturday morning in the Newton police court.

Kenyon was complained of by his wife, Catherine Prentice, whom he married, according to his own statement, about April 5, 1890, in Patterson, N. J. Kenyon made a partial confession to Chief of Police Tarbox.

In reply to the chief's question, Kenyon said he was a native of Manchester, Eng. He came to the country in 1871. His first wife died in 1888, in Patterson, N. J. By this wife he had three children, one of whom is now living.

On April 5, 1890, or thereabouts, Kenyon married Catherine Prentice. They had one child who died, and after this they separated.

His marriage to Sarah Bigham of Ireland took place June 12, 1893. He first made her acquaintance in 1889, in Slough, N. Y. They were married there and remained in Slough but a week. From that place they went to Whitehall, N. Y. For about four years they resided in Newton Upper Falls, where Kenyon was arrested by Chief Tarbox and Patrolman A. M. Fuller.

In court Saturday morning Judge Kennedy found probable cause and held Kenyon for the grand jury in $800.

The Maynard Chapter.

The twenty-seventh meeting of the Maynard Chapter of the Newton Natural History Society held April 13th, 1900. This was a very interesting meeting to all those present as it marked the opening of the new lecture room. It was filled to its extreme limits. After the minutes of the preceding meeting had been read and approved, the president gave a short account how the Maynard Chapter had taken up the work of the old Newton Natural History Society and spoke briefly of its progress. At this point Mr. Bailey, secretary of the Old Society, came in and congratulated the Chapter on the successful termination of their endeavors in obtaining a new lecture room for their meetings.

Mr. Rand read the first paper, the subject being, "Some Experiments Concerning the Sleep Movements of Clover and other Plants."

Miss Noyes then spoke on "Pond Slimes," which were so abundantly in brooks and ponds. These plants contain chlorophyll and starch. They give off oxygen and take in carbon dioxide. She also spoke of pleurococcus found everywhere on shady sides of trees and rocks. There are two groups, those blue green in color and those bright green in color. Pond slimes and pleurococcus are good examples of unicellular plants containing chlorophyll. Mr. Bailey read a poem addressed to Mr. Maynard written by Mr. Hubert Scott. A copy of this poem will appear later.

The following poem written by Theodore Parker was then read.

"SPRING BIRDS."

The Song Sparrow has now come here,
His song is heard in every bush and tree;
And soon the Blackbird's "Oak-a-ree!"
Is heard among the marshes low.
All day long till the sun goes down
And then the Blue Bird's merry note,
Comes sailing on the winds aloft.
In budding orchards Purple Finches play
And nesting Pheasants and the barn's decay
Call to their mates the time of day.
So ends the spring time bird display.

Mr. Thomas Fitzpatrick then gave a few notes on the birds he had seen lately.

The meeting adjourned at the regular time to meet again April 27th, 1900.

Boston, April 25.
The House has begun morning sessions, which is a very necessary thing for it to do if it endeavors to cut down its orders of the day of 20 pages to anything like a decent length. The House is very niggardly in its treatment of the upper branch, passing a very few measures along for discussion there, and of course the result is going to be that sometime between the middle and the last of May the Senate will be sitting and sweating over the matters the House should have given it long before; while the members of the House will hold the Senate up to ridicule as a slow old body anyway.

Mr. Langford, in the chair of the water supply committee, attempted on Monday to get light on a very peculiar bill. It was the petition of the mayor of the city of Worcester for an act to acquire additional land and rights to increase its water supply; and providing that the city might take hold by purchase or otherwise such lands in fee or otherwise, easements and rights of way in the towns of Holden, Paxton and Leicester, as the city council of the city of Worcester may from time to time judge necessary. That section was remarkable enough, but the third section was even more so, as it provided that the city for the purpose of defraying all costs and expense, incident to the acts authorized, etc., and for necessary expenditures in connection with the improvement, development and extension of its water works, should be authorized to borrow from time to time such sums of money as the city council should vote, and issue therefor its notes, bonds, or certificates of indebtedness. Such certificates were to be denominated "Worcester water scrip," to be payable at such time or times and bear such rate of interest as said city council might determine. In other words, the city council of Worcester may, by this bill, go anywhere within certain limits, help itself to any lands or other property it desires, issue anywhere from $1,000,000 to $20,000,000, or more in securities, to run 100 years, at a thousand if it pleases, at a rate of interest of from one per cent to 10. Undoubtedly, this is the broadest bill that has come into the general court this year. Nothing could be imagined that could be broader, unless the whole of Massachusetts was presented to the city of Worcester as a source of water supply. The funny part of it is that the executive and legal authorities at Worcester are unable to see that anything is the matter with this measure.

As a contrast to this the committee on the same day had a modest petition from Pittsfield for authority to issue a few thousand dollars in water bonds. This city with 23,000 inhabitants has thus far spent but $100,000 for her water supply. Worcester, last year, was authorized to spend $750,000 additional, and nobody seems to know what use she made of that authority.

The metropolitan committee took a trip on Friday to Lynn, Wakefield, and Stoneham, looking over locations for boulevards. The probability is that the committee will report adversely upon all boulevard bills, but it is understood that so far as the Lynn boulevard is concerned, strenuous efforts will be made to substitute a bill for the adverse report, if it could come from either the metropolitan or the ways and means committee. Meanwhile, at the request of the metropolitan affairs committee the park commissioners have furnished a list of every purchase and improvement that has been made thus far in the line of metropolitan parks and boulevards; and has also given a list of each contemplated improvement on hand, taking the commissioners recommended but three expenditures for new work this year. One of them is for the completion of a park in Worcester, which the State, or the district rather, is in honor bound to build under agreement, through which Winchester has already expended $80,000 on her part. Another is the completion of the Revere Beach parkway, already partially built, which is a new appropriation for the State. The other expenditure recommended is for rebuilding the bridge at Mattapan, which is in such a dangerous condition that it is considered an unsafe one to longer.

Meanwhile it will probably interest the readers of the GRAPHIC to know that through an inadvertence, for which the court may be responsible, or which may be laid at the door of the Attorney General's department, the long expected apportionment of the expense of metropolitan parks and boulevards which was to have been assessed this year, and upon which the first payment it was presumed would be made, will have to go over again. A short time since, at the request of the park board the attorney general asked the court to appoint the commissioners to apportion these assessments. When the matter reached the court writs were issued, calling upon the legal representatives of the towns and cities in the district to appear in due time. This means, of course, that the commissioners will be appointed at the time, but that it will be utterly impossible to put the first assessment into the state law of the metropolitan municipalities this year.

Senator Ray did excellent service, on the line that would probably be endorsed by the people of his district, during the discussion on the Cape Cod Canal bill in the upper branch. He offered an amendment to the bill which provided that the board of harbor and land and railroad commissioners, sitting jointly, might decide upon the sum of money reasonably requisite to build the canal, but that only 80 per cent of that total amount should be issued by the company, unless it should be found when it had been expended that it was inadequate. This amendment Senator Ray withdrew when he became satisfied that the amendment offered by the friends of the measure and accepted by its opponents covered the ground in a different way. While it would appear that many of the company have secured nothing out of all the weeks of debate on the bill which finally passed the upper branch, it should be noted that it has secured one very important concession. Commissioner Bishop and his associates on the joint board last summer flatly refused the request of Governor Boutwell, acting as counsel for the company, that the entire $12,000,000 in stock and bonds should be decided by the commission to be reasonably requisite or that such other sum as it determined through its engineers should be so approved. The joint board gave its opinion in its decision that $12,000,000 would be requisite to build the canal, but permitted only an issue of something like $120,000.

It will be seen, therefore, that notwithstanding all the talk as to stock watering and not withstanding the flat refusal of the Senate to agree, that when the canal is completed the company shall have the right to issue any balance of stock and bonds remaining, it has secured the thing for which Governor Boutwell pleaded before the joint board. What the House will do about this it is impossible to say at this writing.

A bill has been reported in the House by the cities committee to authorize mayors to pass upon or veto certain orders, resolutions and votes of school committees. Upon this bill Senator Chamberlain and Representative Newton, the latter a member of the committee, with Messrs. Chadwick of Newton and Chas. of Lowell dissent, and it may be prophesied with some confidence that it will never become a law.

Rev. Wm. H. Cobb of your city acted as chaplain of the Senate yesterday. Chaplain Dowse being under the weather.

Mr. Dean of Brookline has roused to the gravity of the situation and had the Brookline-Newton boundary bill rejected on Mr. Chadwick's recommendation, reconsidered. Evidently, legislation will result from Brookline's late repentance.

GOODFELLOWSHIP REIGNED.

FOURTH ANNUAL BANQUET OF ELIOT CHURCH YOUNG MEN'S CLUB ATTENDED BY DEEP MEASURES OF HOSPITALITY AND SUCCESS—BRIGHT SPEECHES, SINGING AND MUSIC.

The spirit of goodfellowship enjoyed an uninterrupted reign of several hours last Monday evening in the parlors of the Eliot Congregational church at the fourth annual banquet of the Young Men's Club.

The gathering was composed of representative young men of the church, together with several of the elders and other invited guests. Every hope of President E. O. Childs, Jr., and those who assisted him in completing the arrangements was fully realized, as the occasion proved thoroughly enjoyable and eclipsed its predecessors as a social success.

There was an absence of fair guests, which brought out many tributes on the part of the speakers, and many a token of high esteem was paid by those called upon to respond to appropriate toasts. While perhaps the ladies were not missed, they certainly were not forgotten.

A neatly arranged menu card contained not only a list of the edibles but quotations and other "gentle-jollies," which provoked no end of laughter.

"Our appetites are excellent spurs to our reason." Lamb.

At the conclusion of the demolition of good things President Childs as toastmaster called the assembled company to order while he, in a brief speech, welcomed them and read two letters of regret. One came from the pastor, Rev. W. H. Davis, who at the time found it impossible to be present, and Mr. George C. Ewing, a non-resident member of the club.

The toasts which followed were all of a vein calculated to arouse the guests from the languor attendant upon a state of passive gastronomic satisfaction, and to say they accomplished their purpose would be but a mild expression of the enthusiasm displayed during the remarks of the speakers.

The principal toasts were "Our Club," Mr. W. F. Garelson; "Our Church," Mr. Allen C. Emery; "The Elders," Mr. Laurence D. Allen; "The Young Men in Business," Mr. John N. Eaton; "The Married Men," Mr. William T. Coppins; "The Engaged Men," Mr. H. S. Johnson; "The Ladies," Mr. Thomas Weston, Jr.; "Our Club," Mr. F. E. Ewing; "Our Country," Hon. Gorham D. Gilman. There was singing by a quartet of club members made up of H. S. Johnson, E. L. Bacon, W. F. Hudson and F. W. Cutler. Mr. George C. Ewing read a number of humorous selections, which were cordially received, and throughout the evening music was furnished by "the Newtonians," mandolin and guitar club.

She gave a very interesting account of the painters, D. Michelangelo and Raphael, with their best works: "The Last Supper," "The Resurrection of the Sister's Chapel" and "The Sister's Chapel." A musical treat consisting of violin solos by Mrs. Hall, and songs by Mr. Franklin B. Wood. At the meeting of the club held April 24, with Mrs. Albert H. MISS MAUD KENYON.

Of 1533 Orange Street, Los Angeles, Cal., writes: "I had been afflicted with my eyes for over a year with such a dreadful itching and inflammation that I could not use them for anything. Physicians had given me many different remedies which were like using so much water; they caused my eyes for glasses, which I got and wore for some time, but they did not benefit me in the least. My mother desired me to write to Dr. R. V. Pierce and explain the condition of my eyes. I did so, and after following your advice, and using eight bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and eight of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' I can say my trouble is entirely cured. I would advise anyone so afflicted to try these wonderful medicines. My health was never so good as it is now, and I shall never tire of praising Dr. Pierce's medicines." Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter and secure a specialist's advice free of charge.

The Republican State Convention was not a very exciting affair and there was nothing for it to do except to formally endorse the plans the leaders had arranged in advance. There was some enthusiasm at the mention of Secretary Long's name, at first rather timidly expressed, but growing in volume when the delegates saw that it was to be permitted. The platform was a good deal in the nature of a stump speech, and the planks were supported by rather lengthy arguments, as if their assertions were not self evident. This is rather unusual in a Massachusetts platform, but the political situation is rather uncertain just now, and no one knows just where they may be standing in a few months, so that it is best to be cautious, and that perhaps explains the length of the platform. It will be easy to take any stand under that platform, when the campaign has crystallized, and we find out whether we are for doing our plain duty or for putting on a 15 per cent tariff. The platform makers had a difficult task but they performed it well, and are entitled to credit. Under our present system of conducting political affairs, conventions are getting to be as useless as the Electoral College.

They had rather an interesting time at the Republican state convention in New Hampshire, although the state which the bosses had prepared went through all right. There were several uncomfortable delegates, who think for themselves instead of being willing to let the bosses think for them, and such men always make trouble. Mr. Remick was one of these and wanted the platform to express something definite in regard to Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines, instead of saying that everything was intrusted to the President and Congress. He said: "I want to hang the Declaration of Independence, the Monroe doctrine and Abraham Lincoln out on the wall, and kick imperialism down the back stairs," and the convention hall fairly rang with applause. This startled the managers and Mr. Remick was voted down. Mr. Fellows was another man to make trouble, and he had the effrontery to object to Jones as a delegate, Jones, the many times millionaire brewer, who has always been a Democrat but who is now for McKinley. Mr. Fellows said the reason Jones was put forward was because "the politicians were pulling his leg," and the voting sentiment of the Republicans of New Hampshire was against the renegade Democrat, and his nomination would disrupt the party. Fellows was also voted down, but evidently they still raise men in New Hampshire.

MAYOR JONES of Toledo made an address Tuesday night at the "Liberal Congress of Religion," now being held in Boston, devoting himself mainly to the theory that a man should carry his religion into his business and his daily life. Incidentally he touched upon politics, and the growing discontent with the way we are governed. He said that people are finding out that in paying to be governed as they are they are victims of a sawdust swindle. He closed by saying: "Remember that patriotism and patriotism cannot be made together. No man can serve two masters. If you are owned by a party you cannot be a patriot. Claim allegiance to none of them. The way to develop the religious instinct in politics today is through absolute non-partisan political action on the part of every individual. Surrender your party to no party. Own yourselves; be free and freedom is yours."

HONEST politics wins a victory by the turning out of Boss Quay from the nation at Senate. He has made Pennsylvania the most corrupt state in the union, and has pushed his corrupting tactics into the Senate itself, and helped to bring that body into contempt among honest men. His defeat was only one vote, and most wonderful of all, Hanna, whose reputation is as unsavory as Quay's, is credited with the responsibility of Quay's defeat. It is only a short time since Quay was the most powerful politician in the country and held the place now held by Hanna, but his expulsion from the Senate is a good omen and seems to foreshadow the end of boss rule in politics, with all its unsavory scandals. The expulsion of Quay and Clark raises the average of honesty in the Senate.

THE Social Science club has at last succeeded in securing recognition for their summer school from the school board. A vote was passed at the meeting Wednesday night allowing them the use of the first floor and basement of the Jackson building, for their vacation school, the club to pay the teachers, and to have the use of the manual training equipment of the school if they desire. The Women's club of Newton Centre gets the same privilege and can have the use of the Biss school building and the manual training equipment is to be loaned them. Perhaps in time the board will come to see the necessity of having vacation schools in certain sections, maintained by the city.

The report that the General Court will vote to allow Westminster chambers to remain at their present height seems improbable as that would make the legislature ridiculous. The builders violated the law, and knew they were violating it, and should the legislature vote to relieve them of all punishment, it will leave our great and general court liable to the suspicion of being unable to punish men who violate its orders provided the men have sufficient influence.

BROOKLINE has decided to build a contagious hospital, in accordance with the latest and most improved design. Newton is also discussing the question of building.

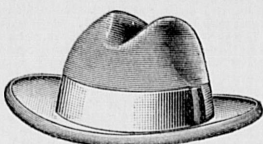

Social by Newton War Veterans.

The newly formed Thomas Burnett camp 10, Legion of Spanish war veterans, inaugurated its social season Wednesday evening, with a smoke talk and entertainment in Cole's hall on Centre street. The speakers were Senior Vice Commander Thomas F. Clarke of the national muster, Capt. Ernest R. Springer of Co. C, 3rd Infantry, M.V.M., of Newton, and Commander Hugh Wiley, of George G. Whitten camp of Spanish War veterans of Boston. Commander Henry McManis and staff of the local camp composed the committee in charge. An entertainment program was given with success, followed by refreshments.

THE HUMANITIES OF ANY WAR.

By Gen. O. O. Howard, U. S. A.

I have been asked to write on the established amenities of civilized warfare.

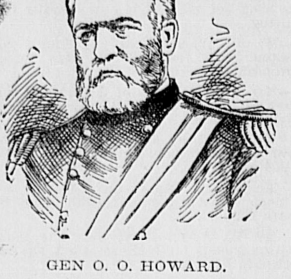

There are well-settled principles of modern international law and custom of service:

1. Concerning Prisoners of War.—The published regulations which pertain to prisoners of war, issued by the War Department in 1861, with which I was familiar at the outbreak of our civil war, were brief—to wit: Prisoners on capture were to be disarmed and sent to the rear, and prompt returns made specifying number, rank and corps.

Rank was to be carefully observed and private property duly respected. Obedience of the captives was required and a ration daily given to each.

The enemy's wounded were to have the same care as our wounded; but special allowances over and above those named, also paroles and exchanges were left to be settled by specific conventions between the belligerents.

A single phrase has since then been added to our regulations which is now part of the international agreement, viz.: "Prisoners of war shall be treated by the captor with humanity."

The Geneva Convention of 1864, in which eleven nationalities were represented, succeeded in establishing a few important rules for mitigating some of the evils of war, particularly those relating to the sick and wounded.

1. They made hospitals and ambulances for all wounded neutral.

2. The medical-service people and chaplains, all engaged in the care of the wounded, were to participate in the benefit of that neutrality.

3. Inhabitants, non-combatants, to be allowed to aid and care for the wounded without detriment to themselves.

4. Soldiers wounded or ill to be cared for regardless of nationality.

5. The distinguishing badge and flag to be uniform for ambulances and hospitals—a red cross on a white ground, with the national flag near at hand.

The provisions have been agreed to by nearly all civilized powers, the United States having acceded to them in 1882.

We may add concerning our own custom of service during our civil war that it was universal to observe these or similar humane regulations. In those instances on either side where prisoners were taken, the captives were otherwise treated, there was strong protest from all quarters and deep feeling of indignation manifested. The principle of action demanded, however, was as clear as day, and that principle was humanity, resulting in kind treatment.

During that great contest we had the Sanitary and the Christian Commission to supplement all the possible governmental relief to prisoners, to the sick and wounded; and during the Spanish war came forward the International Red Cross Society, the Army and Navy Christian Commission and other private benevolence for the same purpose. Such were some of the amenities that appeared in those times when the clouds of disaster were heaviest.

2. Concerning Soldiers Who Offer to Surrender.—Lawrence on International Law says: "Recent wars between civilized powers have afforded no instance of the slaughter of a garrison." We thought we had a case of such slaughter at Fort Pillow, but the evidence since the war it is claimed, shows that the soldiers of the garrison, as a rule, kept to their arms and resisted surrender.

The loss of the Confederates was very excessive when in 1864 Fort McAllister was taken, but the commanding officer refused to surrender, so that Gen. Hazen's men were obliged to pursue and defeat them from traversing to traverse. Of course, soldiers defeated on the battlefield are entitled to have considered the least sign of a wish to surrender. Many followers of the Mahdi in Upper Egypt and in the Philippines in Luzon have offered to surrender, and later have been treacherous and spared or shot their captors. I have had but few experiences of a personal nature bearing on the subject of soldiers surrendering in battle during the active conflict.

At Fair Oaks, however, June 1, 1862, two of my regiments in deployed line charged through a thin Confederate line of battle. I noticed then that the Confederate soldiers gave up as soon as we broke and passed their line, and ran back to our rear to be cared for by our Provost Marshal. No Yankee soldier molested a man who thus ceased fighting. At that time of the war our captives were treated with respect and kindness, certainly by the soldiers who had fought them.

There were, doubtless, instances in the heat of battle where individuals violated this custom of service and allowed the person of the moment to rule. Capt. William Duncan of my escort, reported to me two cases where a commissioned officer shot a prisoner after the prisoner had offered to surrender. The circumstances were unusual. The said officer was just then in peril of his own life and craved to escape from Duncan's on-coming scouts.

If a British officer ordered or justified that sort of brutal conduct, he would surely be called to a severe account for it. Our own cavalry under such men as Custer and Kilpatrick, and the Confederate under Stuart and Wheeler, made some terrible charges where very few soldiers asked for quarter, yet some individuals might have done so and not have obtained it in the high excitement of battle.

All lovers of men do hope that there will be no conduct of such kind as that boasted of in present or future wars, if they must come, and they do hope that a very soon—the strife itself will end, and peace and good-will prevail.

SOLDIERING IN MANILA.

WILLIAM HENDERSON DESCRIBES THE DAILY LIFE OF A SOLDIER IN THE PHILIPPINES—PLENTY OF HARD MARCHING AND SCOUTING.

Seelang, P. I. Headquarters 40th V. S. V. Feb. 11, 1900.

Dear Mother:—Here it is Sunday, and I am sitting in a bamboo shack in a light summer shirt; there is just breeze enough to make it comfortable. The boys of my squad are busy getting ready their supper of bacon,hardtack and coffee. Billy White, the cook, and myself, had such a large dinner, that we decided to put in the time writing.

The shack, I speak of, is a one-story affair, set off the ground on posts about six feet; it is made of bamboo, except the roof, which has bamboo rafters and is thatched. The floor is of split bamboo about one inch wide, and laid one half inch apart, giving abundant ventilation.

All our boys are quartered in shacks, the natives having all vacated before the town was taken, we immediately took possession of those we required. When they came back they wanted to move into them, but had to go elsewhere for lodgings. They do not need many express wagons when they move, as all they have is on their backs; also a few pots in which to cook their grub, and possibly a suit or two. It is their fashion whenever an American column approaches to take a town, or when a Filipino mob comes back trying to retake it, (which seldom happens), the natives get out and wait in the woods till the trouble is over, when after a wait of a day or so they return, and everything commences to go on as quietly as ever.

We left the Nipa Barracks, which are about three miles from the Walled City, on the 3d of January. The barracks there are built of bamboo and were originally used by the Spaniards. From there we marched to San Pedro Macati, a distance of six miles, arriving there at eleven o'clock.

Now, to go back to the time when I wrote you last on the transport; we landed on the 19th and marched up a boulevard about 150 feet wide, through the centre of which was a narrow park about 50 feet wide, on which, about every quarter of a mile, was erected a band stand, where during the evening the various military bands played. Up and down on either side the various people of the city, including the various military officers, drive in the peculiar carriages they have in this man's country. It certainly was a pretty sight, with the women in their many colored dresses and wraps.

The boulevard extends about two miles from the water front where it ends in a narrow business street, paved, and stone buildings on either side, used by various kinds of merchants. We marched up this street half a mile when we swung to the left up Herran street on which is located the barracks.

We reached them at 9:30, everything was in darkness, and as the quartermaster had not put in an appearance, it was a question whether we would get any supper. But it did not amount to much as we were so tired that we were glad enough to lie down and have a good sleep without the supper. At 10:30 the grub was passed around, and consisted of canned corned beef andhardtack, but I didn't bother to get any.

The next day or two we used in getting acquainted with our surroundings, and it certainly was a novelty. We had been there about three days when the company was ordered to Pazo Cemetery to do guard of honor over General Lawton's body, which was lying in state in the chapel, he having been killed a few days before on the South line. It was quite an honor for the company as there were a number of other regiments in barracks through Manila. While we were there, the rest of the First battalion and the whole of the third, were ordered to the line. We were disappointed at not being able to go but we could not be in both places at once, so swallowed our disappointment.

At the close of ten days, the body of General Lawton was removed to the Transport Thomas, and we returned to the regiment for duty.

In the meantime the 3d and 1st battalion had gone out on the line as far as San Mateo, and finding the insurgents strongly entrenched in the rear of that town, they, with part of the 11th cavalry and a battalion of the 45th, charged and took them, the niggers retreating to the mountains; our 1st battalion was sent in pursuit, while the 3d battalion and the 11th cavalry and 45th returned to their regiment.

After a rest of a few days the 3d battalion also the 2d and our company started out and went on the hyck which brought us to the town of San Pedro Macati, where as I said before, we went into camp. Besides we were camped the 30th and part of the 4th. In the evening the 4th and 30th cavalry pulled up near us, we four regiments, the 4th and 11th cavalry and the 46th and 29th infantry, forming Schwan's Brigade, known as the Flying Brigade.

We spent the first day resting and the next morning the three companies of the 1st battalion came in. Talk about hoboes! They were a sight, as they had been doing some hard old hycking out through the mountains, they had a fine growth of beard, their clothes were torn, and some had no shoes; those who had any were pretty well done up.

That noon the 11th and 4th cavalry went out. About ten hours after they followed, and at 4 o'clock we marched out and hycked till 7:30 that evening, when we went into camp near the 47th outpost.

We were up the next morning at 4:30 and were ready for the trail at 6 o'clock; we were as was Co. C, detailed as rear guard, also guard for the bull and wagon train. It was slow going as the bulls they use here cannot go more than two miles an hour. They have to be unhitched every mile in order to give a chance to wet their selves as they have to be constantly wet in order to be of any use.

We kept well together until about six o'clock, when there were six bull carts that lagged behind, and three squads, including mine, were detailed to guard them, while the rest of them hycked on ahead to find a good camp ground for the night.

Darkness came before long and it seemed we would never reach camp. The bulls were almost done up, and one might take an iron bar and hammer them, but they would go no faster. To add to our discomfort the water had given out about five o'clock, and we were unable to get any more. We kept at it however, and finally reached the camp ground.

The boys had fresh built and water had been brought, so all was right again, and by taps, I felt as fresh as ever; we turned in and had good sleep till 4 o'clock, when we were called up to get breakfast; that was soon over and dog-enters were rolled, and we were off once more at five o'clock.

We hycked three or four miles when we met a detail and some mule teams sent back from the main columns to relieve us, and we went on ahead and joined the regiment which was encamped about four miles ahead.

After a rest and a bath, we had two days rations issued to us, after which we started once more on our journey, no one knew where.

Our march took us along the edge of a large lake, and marching through the sand was something to be remembered. At noon we entered a small village, after wading two streams waist deep, and fell out to cook our dinner; then left there after a short rest, and by all accounts we went to have a little scrapping before we went to bed that night.

But we were doomed to be disappointed for we hycked all that afternoon till 4 o'clock, when we entered the outskirts of the town of Mayaguez, which had been taken that afternoon by the 30th, with the loss of one man; the niggers lost between twenty and twenty-five killed; their loss by wounds not known as they take them with them.

Our company was placed on outpost that night and maybe we didn't live high; chicken was a coming dish that night. The night passed all right without any trouble, but the next morning we rained the march, leaving the 3d battalion there as garrison.

All the next day we hycked and not a steam of smoke, dimly visible on a high hill after a march of twelve miles, and that night we camped on the road outside of Seelang, the town we are now doing garrison duty in.

The day we entered this town, it having been taken the night before by the cavalry, without the loss of a man. They did not let us rest more than an hour, when A. C. and D. companies were ordered to bring up the bull and mule trains which were some miles in the rear.

We went back about four miles and met them, but we came back a different route as the one we came out on was impassable to the wagons, on account of the ravines just outside the town. Some of these ravines are a hundred and a hundred and fifty feet deep and so steep that it is hard work for the troops to crawl through them, let alone bringing wagons over.

However, we marched along with the wagon trains till we came to a road which entered the town on the opposite from which we had left it, and here the ravines were not so bad, and the engine corps were able to bridge them. We had to guard the train two days and nights before they had them completed, and we were able to bring the wagons over into the town.

We were assigned quarters in the shacks and some of the company was placed on outpost. I was lucky, however, to get placed in the support; getting camp-guard about once a week, the rest of the time I had to myself, except to go out on an occasional hyck.

In a little shack the Chinos attached to the company were quartered, and among them was a little fellow named Lee, who was as fine a cook as I have ever seen. The boys in the squad used to go out and capture chickens, eggs and rice; this with the regular rations he would cook for us, and maybe we didn't live well, but this was too good to last long, and we had been here about ten days when we were ordered to Indan, a town about 9 miles from the town garrisoned by our 3d battalion.

We left in the morning and reached there early in the afternoon, and were placed on outpost in order to give them a night's sleep before starting on a ten days' hyck in the morning. Our one company was ordered to do the work of a whole battalion, and it kept us busy doing it, too.

They pulled out the next morning and we heard nothing of them till they pulled back to do the work of a whole battalion, and it kept us busy doing it, too.

The morning they left Indan they marched over towards the lake for about twenty miles where they had an occasional band of niggers, but they didn't put up any scrap until they came to a small town, when they ducked behind trenches, but were finally run out without the boys losing anybody.

They camped there all night and the next day started for Taal. The enemy were entrenched there on the other side of the river. Our boys did not know the river was there until they had charged and were heavy fire to within 200 yards of the trenches, when they had to retire, it being too swift to ford.

That evening they charged across the bridge and drove them from the trenches, killing about sixty and capturing a lot of rifles, ammunition, and also three cannons. Our boys lost one man killed and two wounded. They came back into Indan in the evening and relieved us, and the next morning we started for Seelang. We were marching in two files on either side of the road, and were all laughing and talking when all of a sudden we were fired on from both sides of the road.

It was not here for a few moments and the bullets were cutting the leaves over our heads, and maybe we didn't hug the ground. The first and second sections were ordered to the rear, and I was with them. We went up the road a little way, the bullets singing all around us, and then went out through the woods, and gave them a scare. When they did in good shape, how we wanted to chase them, and they dusted; we went back to the road and found the rest of the company waiting for us.

After lining up we found nobody hurt, although we knocked out three niggers' stay. That is the way it is out here, every little while a small scrap, with nobody hurt. We got into Seelang that night all right, and were once more placed on outpost, in the expectation we were here now for good, and it will be nothing but routine duty. The weather has been fine and I am in the best of health, and intend to stay that way.

We have good officers and everything goes along in good shape. How are all the folks? I had a letter from Harry the other day, wanting to know why I didn't write, so I supposed you hadn't got the one I wrote in Manila. I got the letter and papers you sent me and I was mighty glad to get them. They are the only enjoyment you get out here. Well, mother, I will close now with lots of love for you and all the rest.

Your Son, WILL.

Does Coffee Agree With You?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, and follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful beverage for old and young. 15c and 25c.

Lasell Notes.

The law lectures for this year are to be given on Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Anna C. Fall of Malden, a member of the Boston bar. Mrs. Fall has already begun the course, the first lecture of the six having been given on Saturday afternoon last. Besides being a lawyer Mrs. Fall is also an author, and has written an interesting story, "The Tragedy of a Widow's Third."

The usual symphony party, Saturday evening.

Mr. Stanton's two lectures on the building of the symphony were charmingly illustrated by the speaker, who played a number of compositions, wholly or in part, to show among other things the development of a theme, the characteristic rhythm, and the close relations existing between certain sorts of measures and certain moods or emotions of the mind; relations so close that one sensitive to music, derives from it actual suggestions of condition and circumstance, even of speech itself, so that there is in a certain picturing power in the harmonies and melodies heard.

On Sunday a number of the students attended services in Boston.

Mrs. Blanche C. Martin, Lasell instructor in oratory, gave on Monday evening a very pleasant recital, in which she was assisted by Mr. Charles Ridgway, pianist, and Mr. Arthur Phillips, baritone. The gymnasium was full to the doors, and the entertainment heartily enjoyed by the audience. The stage has been provided with handsome curtains, and the organ now occupies the deep recess at the back of it, so that the effect of the whole is much improved.

REMEDY FOR BADLY PAID WOMEN.

By Mary A. Livermore.

The subjection of woman to man in the long past has not only hindered her development in normal ways, but has created a contemptuous opinion of her which runs through the literature and legislation of all nations. It is apparent to-day in the different codes of penalties for crime and in the dissimilar relations of the sexes to the Government. In marriage woman is not legally her husband's equal, for he has control of her person and in most instances of her earnings and of her minor children. She is rarely paid the same wages as man, even when she does the same work and does it as well, and she is the legal equal of man only where punishment and the payment of taxes are concerned. All these unjust inequalities are survivals of the ages of servitude through which women have passed, among all peoples of the earth, from the date of their historic existence.

We boast of our advanced civilization in America and point with laudable pride to our schools as its foundation. They are the corner-stone of our free institutions, the everlasting granite on which the superstructure of the Republic is given the early training and discipline that tell through life and which are vital to the integrity of the Republic. A Bureau of Education has been established by our national Government which carefully collects and critically sifts all data pertaining to public school instruction. Its high purpose is to place education on a scientific basis and to include in the curriculum of the State its beneficent provisions. The overwhelming majority of the teachers in the schools are women, cultivated, conscientious, hard working, normal and unselfish. They are called upon to fit them for their vocation, and the college and university train them in the specialties they are expected to teach. After years of costly preparation at home and abroad they are assigned to their various positions and begin their life-work.

They are the equals of the clergy of the land in the correctness of their lives, their aims and intelligence, and co-operate with them to bring in a nobler civilization. They stand on every round of the ladder of learning, lifting the children and youth of their charge to a development of whose existence they are the parents are unaware. They surround them with an ethical environment in the schoolroom. There they breathe a moral atmosphere. There they must be punctual, obedient, truth-telling, respectful, tidy in person—in short, they are put in immediate training for the development of qualities without which they cannot become good members of society.

How do we compensate these faithful women teachers for their great work in behalf of the generations to come? The dusty years stretch far behind them, youth and comeliness drop away from them, and they grow worn and faded before their time. How do we pay them for the divine service they render our children while they are on duty? We pay them as we pay the small bookkeeper, the stenographer, and the typewriter. Outside our large cities we pay them as we pay the chambermaid, the laundress, the housemaid. They are as thoroughly educated as the men with whom they are associated, they do the same work and do it as well, and they bear as heavy burdens and responsibilities. And yet their salaries rate a third, and sometimes a half, lower than those of the men with whom they teach.

They are forbidden to marry under penalty of dismissal from office, and if their husbands drop into invalidism, or for any other cause are unable to support them, the women cannot be reinstated. In no other line of employment does this discrimination exist against married women. In Boston policemen and firemen are pensioned after they have served the city a specified number of years if they become disabled for further employment. But when the teachers of Boston have petitioned to be similarly pensioned and have presented a most feasible scheme for the pensioning of the fund to be contributed by the teachers themselves, they have thus far received no encouragement and have only been granted "leave to withdraw."

constant glow of human interest to the tale. The author has a quaint and delightful humor, which will be relished by every reader. While his story deals with actualities, it is neither depressing nor unpleasantly realistic, like many "stories of low life," and the reader gains a vivid impression of the sunnier aspects of life in the Italian quarter. The book will contain a series of well-studied and effective illustrations by Mr. Emil Poliak. In order to obtain accurate material for the illustrations, the artist and author together have visited the scenes of the novel in the neighborhood of Mulberry Park, formerly known as Mulberry Bend, where they obtained photographs and sketches which Mr. Poliak has consulted judiciously with a view to the interpretation of the actual atmosphere of the scenes described.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

TREMONT THEATRE.—Francis Wilson's revival of the ever-popular "Erminie" at the Tremont Theatre has been attended by the success which has never yet failed to follow its presentation. No other piece of its class has remained so long and so high in favor with playgoers. Mr. Wilson's very diverting performance as Gadeaux, of course, has something to do with this; nevertheless, the opera itself, with its lovely music, naturally comic situations and witty dialogue, contains all the elements of popularity. With Mr. Wilson appearing two other members of the original cast, Pauline Hall in the title part, and Jennie Weathersby as the Princess; Lulu Glaser as the Javotte and William Broderick as the Ravannes. The beautiful things about this performance is the fact that it does not disappoint, although expectancy is keyed to the highest pitch, for, with his coadjutors, Mr. Wilson has accomplished such satisfying results as to bewilder those who have seen earlier productions of the opera. This is attested by the liberal applause which greets him nightly, for, from the time he makes his first appearance until the fall of the curtain, "the house belongs to Wilson." People who have heard "Erminie" again and again, laugh at his capers, witticisms, jokes and dances, as if they had never seen anything like it before. His humor is as rich as a Christmas plum pudding, and as exhilarating as the brandy sauce thereof. The opera is magnificently staged. It will be played only until the end of next week, as on May 7, the Tremont stage will be occupied by the gorgeous spectacular fantasy, "Broadway to Tokio," one of the most elaborate productions of the season, which has just concluded a run of over 100 nights at the New York Theatre. The cast is headed by Fay Templeton, Joe Ott, Joseph Sadler, Joseph Sparks, Maym Kolos, and other favorites, and the company includes more than 300 people.

The tracts can be obtained free from the headquarters of the league at 164 Dearborn street, Chicago. Applicants are requested to enclose one cent to cover the postage on each tract.

FOR WOMAN'S HEALTH

Earnest Letters from Women Relieved of Pain by Mrs. Pinkham.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before I commenced to take your medicine I was in a terrible state, wishing myself dead a good many times. Every part of my body seemed to pain in some way. At time of menstruation my suffering was something terrible. I thought there was no cure for me, but after taking several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound all my bad feelings were gone. I am now well and enjoying good health. I shall always praise your medicine."—Mrs. AMOS FESCHLER, Box 236, Romeo, Mich.

Female Troubles Overcome

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I had female trouble, painful menses, and kidney complaint, also stomach trouble. About a year ago I happened to pick up a paper that contained an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I read how it had helped others, I thought it might help me, and decided to give it a trial. I did so, and as a result am now feeling perfectly well. I wish to thank you for the benefit your medicine has been to me."—MRS. CLARA STEIER, Diller, Neb.

No More Pain

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Your Vegetable Compound has been of much benefit to me. When my menses first appeared they were very irregular. They occurred too often and did not leave for a week or more. I always suffered at these times with terrible pains in my back and abdomen. Would be in bed for several days and would not be exactly rational at times. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and menses became regular and pains left me entirely."—MRS. E. F. CUSTER, Brule, Wis.

TALK WITH SIR GEORGE WHITE.

By Winston Churchill.

Durban, South Africa.—I lately had the pleasure of a conversation with Gen. Sir George White on the defense of Ladysmith. The General, who seemed in good health, though worn by anxiety and privations, received me at his house, from the windows of which he has a complete view of the defenses stretching around a wide circumference from a rocky hill to another, and beyond rose the frowning profile of Bulwain Mountain.

He reminded me that he had arrived severely ten days before the outbreak of the war. He had found certain arrangements in progress to meet a great and rapidly approaching crisis. He had full confidence in Gen. Symons, who was "a soldier of the highest ability, and, besides, a good, brave fighting man." Gen. Symons proposed to hold Dundee and Ladysmith, and under-rated the Boers gravely.

WINSTON CHURCHILL.

Gen. White, who had Col. Ian Hamilton's experience in South Africa to fall back upon, viewed the situation in a more serious light.

The story of what followed is told in the blue books. The General determined to ask the opinion of the first great general of the political result of abandoning Dundee. This appealed to Sir W. Hely-Hutchinson said that grave consequences would result, notably a rising of the disloyal Dutch in the Kikp country, and perhaps elsewhere in Natal and Zululand at that event.

Dundee was actually abandoned, but the electrifying effect of Elands Laagte to some extent neutralized the retreat of the British forces.

But though Gen. White had doubts whether he should attempt to hold Dundee, he had none about Ladysmith. This town, he said, "was the first main objective of the Boer forces of the Transvaal and the Free State."

"Here the lines of the railway met and here the Republican armies were to make their effective junction and so the capture of Ladysmith, which the Boers never doubted for a moment, was to be the sign for a general rising of the Natal Dutch."

To insure success twenty thousand men were first gathered at Ladysmith. This town, he said, "was the first main objective of the Boer forces of the Transvaal and the Free State."

THE MARRIAGE BOND IS SACRED.

By Dean Farrar.

I feel no hesitation whatever in declaring in the strongest possible terms my conviction that the strength and prosperity of the nation depend more on the indissoluble sacredness of the marriage bond than upon any other conditions.

A great man has said that "the foundation stone of the republic is the hearthstone." Certainly the happiness of every individual life depends more on the tender sanctity of the home affections than upon any other circumstances. This is the testimony of all history and all human experience.

ROMAN EXAMPLE.

The grandeur of ancient Rome was built to a very great extent upon faithfulness to the marriage tie, and when the shameful day came in which the satiric historian could say that many women no longer reckoned the years by the names of the consuls but by the names of the husbands whom they had married, then the freedom and glory of Rome became more and more overshadowed until

Rome herself was bane unto herself; She whom mightiest kingdom courted to, Life a forlorn and desperate castaway Did shameful execution on herself.

And this must always be the inevitable consequence, for nations are composed of individuals, and if custom is so lax as to destroy in the case of individuals the choicest and purest of earthly blessings, then the country in which this state of things becomes chronic will soon vander everywhere "in search of air unpolluted by herself."

The unit in a nation is the family and if the ties of family be lax the cohesion of the whole nation must suffer.

It is the duty of the nation to impress on the minds of all people the sacramental dignity of wedded life. This must be the main element of human happiness.

We should ever keep before us the picture which Scripture gives of the happy home and peaceful tent of Abraham under the rustling boughs of the oak; the home to which Isaac took the wife of his youth; the home into which Boaz led the sweet woman of Moab; the home of Jesse with his strong sons, of whom the youngest, the ruddy shepherd boy, grew up to be the Sweet Psalmist of Israel; above all, that home at Nazareth in which the Son of Man grew up like the flower of roses in the spring of the year and like lilies by the watercourses.

An Eastern legend tells us that when Adam was expelled from Paradise he was allowed to carry with him a single rose in order that each man might breathe its odor and so be able to believe in heaven. That rose is the rose of holy matrimony.

Marriage is one of those main events of life which are great natural blessings, common to all. Into the true some the demon of divorce can hardly enter. True and pure marriage is "the queen of friendships."

A nation in which the happy sanctity of home and the primeval mystery of the marriage bond is kept inviolable is a nation which may say:

Come the four quarters of the world in arms And we will shock them.

A nation which suffers marriage to lapse into loose and easily terminable union is doomed sooner or later to perish by its own inward decay.

EARTH EATING.

Earth eating is a practice of great antiquity, for it is recorded by tradition and history that the people who ruled Mexico before the coming of the Spaniards were accustomed when making a vow to eat a bit of earth and to swear by the sun and the moon. Earth eating also seems to have been a common article of commerce with these early Mexicans, for it was sold openly in the markets in the cities of that country.

Cabeza de Vaca tells how the Indians used to eat the earth, and that the natives offered him food, as a most delectable dish, beans mixed with clay and baked in small cakes. The Indians of San Juan de Capistrano, it is said, used to make themselves large head dresses of edible clay, and when they grew hungry contented themselves with breaking off and munching a piece of this adornment. According to another writer the Tatu Indians of California were accustomed to mix red earth with their bread and grain in order to make it more sacred and so that it might last the longer.

Sir John Franklin, the great Arctic explorer, reported that the banks of the Mackenzie River contained a sort of oily clay which served the Tinah Indians as food during periods of famine. It tasted like new milk and its odor was not disagreeable.

MAKING A BILLIARD BALL.

It requires skilled labor to turn out a billiard ball. One-half of it is first turned, an instrument of the finest steel being used for the work. Then the half turned ball is hung up in a net and is allowed to remain there for nearly a year to dry. Next the second half is turned, and then comes the polishing. Whiting and water and a good deal of rubbing are requisite for this. It is necessary in the end that the ball shall to the veriest fraction of a grain be of a certain weight.
